WHAT THEN? ASKS SPANISH MEMBER

Henderson Replies He Expects to Be in Geneva Until February Instead of Christmas.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 16.—The world disarmament conference today adjourned to Oct. 26.

The Steering Committee previously had recommended this and also decided that it would meet Oct. 25.

Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, the only speaker, asked what the conference expected to do when it resumed.

Arthur Henderson, president of the conference, replied: "You know as much about it as I do, but I will tell you one thing: I expected to finish the disarmament work by Christmas, but now I expect to be here until the anniversary of the opening of the conference next February."

Galleries Are Crowded.

The conference session was opened with the public gallery crowded. Hundreds were unable to gain admission.

Henderson read the disarmament resolution adopted by a peace mass meeting last night which expressed its "earnest desire for a successful issue of the disarmament conference."

He then expressed the hope that the conference would continue unflinchingly until it achieved the first stage in the reduction of armaments.

Henderson followed this with an outline of the developments in the situation leading up to Germany's withdrawal, and then read a reply Konstantin von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, who on Thursday advised the chairman of the nation's intention to withdraw both from the League of Nations and the parley. The reply had been approved by the steering committee, and was read amidst applause from many of the benches.

The chairman declared he did not wish "to let pass unchallenged" Von Neurath's declarations that the highly armed nations had no intention to disarm and that Germany could not get equality rights.

Henderson's Reply.

The Henderson reply read:

"I communicated to the General Commission your excellency's telegram of the 14th announcing the decision of the German Government to discontinue participation in the work of the conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments, and indicating the reasons for that decision.

"The German Government took this step at the moment when the Bureau had just decided to submit to the General Commission a definite program.

"This program, to be completed within a limited period, provided for the realization progressively, in accordance with the resolutions of the conference in which Germany herself concurred, of the reductions of armaments comparable to those contemplated in the draft convention submitted to the General Commission.

"This program was provided also with corresponding measures of security for the realization of the rights which the German Government have always placed in the forefront of their demands.

"I regret, therefore, that this grave decision should have been taken by your Government for reasons which I am unable to accept as valid."

Hungary in Some Difficulty.

Hungary announced a difficulty in supporting the reply because of her special position.

Russia made a vehement protest at her exclusion from the great power conversations. The Soviet representative insisted that the parley could not approve things done while Soviet Russia was not represented. Poland and Turkey supported the Soviet protest, but Henderson swept them all aside with the remark that all delegates would know what was going on.

He said the conference must go on with the work of obtaining an arms convention with "all earnestness" so as to get the convention ready as quickly as possible.

Henderson Urges Peace.

Aged President of Germany Considers With His Cabinet Possibility of Stepping Aside After Elections Next Month.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—When the German nation goes to the polls Nov. 12 to give Chancellor Adolf Hitler an indorsement, it may put an end to the German Presidency.

There are indications that President Von Hindenburg, after the nation has overwhelmingly indorsed Hitler and his policies, may decide that the moment has come when he can retire to his home at Neudeck —thus making Hitler Germany's supreme ruler in name as well as in fact.

It is an open secret, though the press says nothing about it, that the question of Von Hindenburg's retirement has been under consideration by himself and by the Hitler Cabinet.

Devotion to duty kept Von Hindenburg from resigning as long as the Nazi Government was not completely entrenched.

Talk of Restoration.

There is little doubt that Hindenburg, from a sense of loyalty to his former Emperor, would be happiest if he could resign in favor of Wilhelm II.

In this connection, the recent visit of the former Crown Prince Frederich Wilhelm to Neudeck was much commented on in political circles.

However, among Nazi storm troopers who are the backbone of the Hitler Government, there is little enthsuiasm for a monarchy.

In the Reichstag election campaign, called when the German Government withdrew from both the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, the Presidency question naturally will not be mentioned.

The publicity campaign is in full swing. Thousands of meetings are advertised and every conceivable means of reaching the public ear and eye is being employed.

The President's dissolution of the Reichstag is regarded as ridding Hitler of his last opponents. Men who have fought him will not be up for re-election.

Hitler Men Alone on Ticket.

Voters merely will mark "yea" or "nay" on the Nazi ballots—with no alternative names in case of a "nay."

In inner Nazi councils, the idea has been discussed of abolishing the presidency after Hindenburg and creating the office of "Reichsfuehrer"—meaning Reich's leader—who naturally would be Hitler.

It is conceivable that the Chancellorship would then be abolished, although another version has it that Minister of propaganda Goebbels would be appointed Chancellor by Hitler.

Hitler was cheered wildly in meetings at Munich and Berlin yesterday.

"Ours," Hitler declared at Munich, "is the splendid task to fill people's heart's with fresh courage. . . ."

A speech by Foreign Minister von Neurath will be recorded on wax and made available to the German public in a nation-wide address at 10:15 o'clock tonight.

A foreign office spokesman pointed out that many commentators abroad mistakenly had read into Chancellor Hitler's address Saturday night his intention to open negotiations.

"That is wrong," said the spokesman. "Hitler spoke of an earnest desire for reconciliation and a mutual understanding, but said nothing at the time about the method for effecting it.

"We consider that it is rather up to the other nations to make the next move and indicate their intentions in view of the changed world situation."

CONVICT SLAIN IN PISTOL FIGHT WITH OFFICERS

Killed at Statesville, N. C.— Companion, Who Escaped From Prison With Him, Captured.

By the Associated Press.

STATESVILLE, N. C.—Oct. 16.—Charlie Hilton, North Carolina outlaw, was slain here today as he sought to shoot his way through a cordon of officers after alighting from an eastbound train. His outlaw companion, Dud Travis, who escaped with him from State's prison in 1932, was captured.

Finding themselves surrounded, the pair drew their pistols, Sheriff G. C. Kimball said. Officers opened fire immediately and both men fell.

Hilton died a few minutes later in a nearby hospital, and Travis, who had pretended to be wounded, went to jail.

Coroner N. D. Tomlin at an inquest found the Sheriff fired in line of duty.

Travis and Hilton had been sought for 15 months, and several times fought with officers since their escape. Travis, 25 years old, was serving a term for murder, Hilton for robbery.

TWO MEN KILLED IN LEAP FROM BURNING AIRPLANE

Parachute of One Fails to Open, Other Has None; Accident Near Clarksville, Tenn.

By the Associated Press.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 16.—William T. Murray, Nashville transport air pilot, and Harry P. Lyle, former Clarksville pharmacist, were killed today in a leap from their flaming plane near here.

The men were en route from the Clarksville airport to Murfreesboro. About a mile from Clarksville the plane's motor began to miss, persons in the vicinity said, and then died, and the ship was seen to catch fire.

It was estimated the plane was flying at an altitude of about 600 feet when the trouble developed. As it started to fall, the men leaped. Murray's parachute failed to open. Lyle did not have a parachute. Both apparently were killed outright. The plane was smashed to bits.

N. DAKOTA GOVERNOR READY TO ORDER WHEAT EMBARGO

To Issue Proclamation Today Forbidding Shipments Out of the State.

By the Associated Press.

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 16.—Gov. Langer announced today he would issue a proclamation this afternoon declaring an embargo on spring wheat shipments from North Dakota in an effort to raise prices and center attention on the farmers' plight.

The Governor said the final draft of the proclamation was prepared for issuance under a 1933 legislative act authorizing an embargo on farm products produced in the State when prices fell below the cost of production.

The farmer, Gov. Langer said, "appears to be the forgotten man of the NRA."

The law gives the Governor power to use the National Guard, if he deems this necessary, to enforce his order, which may by law continue in effect indefinitely.

Claire Luce Enters Into Separation Agreement With Clifford Warrent Smith.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Claire Luce, musical comedy star of the Broadway and London stage, has settled with her wealthy husband, Clifford Warren Smith, on a separation annuity of $25,000.

Terms of the separation agreement were made public today by Smith's attorney, Bennett E. Siegelstein, and Miss Luce's attorney, Max D. Steuer.

The contract, Siegelstein said, provides payment of $25,000 a year to Miss Luce from a trust fund producing $80,000 a year. Miss Luce is now in London to star in the production, "Gay Divorce."

POLICE RADIO SQUADS CATCH ROBBERS ON ROOF

SHOTS FAIL TO FRIGHTEN THIEVES

So Two Policemen Climb Telephone Pole and Club Pair Into Submission After One Surrenders.

Three safe robbers were captured on the roof of the H. Heinrichsmeyer Feed Co., 6830 South Broadway, following a police radio broadcast at 2 a. m. today.

The cracksmen were discovered in the place by a citizen who telephoned police. Several radio cars answered the broadcast and 15 officers surrounded the building.

Discovering that the three robbers had fled to the roof of a one and one-half story rear section of the building, the police ordered them to come down and fired shots to frighten them. When the robbers failed to descend, Patrolman Arthur Sept and Detective Eugene O'Rourke climbed up a telephone pole to the roof.

One robber surrendered without resistance but the others fought with the officers and were clubbed with revolvers until they gave in. All three refused to make statements.

The three, who said they were Robert Hilton, 25-year-old chauffeur; Peter Carroll, 26, salesman, and Julius Jensen, 25, laborer, were locked in cells at the Carondelet District Station within 20 minutes after the radio broadcast.

Officers found that entrance to the building had been made through a skylight in the back section. The combination had been hammered off and the inner doors pried apart, but nothing had been stolen. Near the safe were a sledgehammer, crowbar, punch, three chisels and a loaded revolver.

An automobile belonging to Hilton was found parked a block from the feed company. All three men have been arrested several times before on various charges.

Jensen and William Tierney, an ex-convict, were arrested at a side door of the Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards, last Feb. 20, after an attempt had been made to steal a 400-pound safe belonging to the church. Burglary charges against the two were dismissed at a preliminary hearing, but charges of carrying concealed weapons are still pending. Each man had a revolver in his possession, according to police. Jensen's case was scheduled for trial in Circuit Judge Hoffmeister's court today, but his counsel obtained permission of the Court to have the case placed farther down on the week's docket.

Another Radio Squad Catches Burglar in Store.

A Negro burglar was captured inside the dry goods store of Mrs. Bessie Polinsky, 2247 Clark avenue, early today, by police in a radio car, who went there when a burglar alarm was set off.

Finding a front window broken out, Patrolman Joseph Strauss entered and discovered the burglar hiding on the balcony. The burglar said he was Horace Young, 25 years old, and admitted having served a Workhouse sentence for a burglary recently. He had spread two blankets near the front door and was preparing to tie up merchandise in them when police arrived.

BODY NEAR WRECKED SHIP

Coast Guards Fear 10 Lost Lives in North Pacific.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 16.—Reports of the finding of the body of an unidentified girl near the wreckage of the motorship Good Hope of Nome, Alaska, which was swept ashore by a heavy gale eight miles north of Cape Prince of Wales in Bering Strait Saturday, led the coast guard here to believe today that the eight or 10 persons on the boat lost their lives.

Elmer Henderson and three native girls were passengers on the 40-foot motor vessel, which operated between Nome and Kotzebue in the Arctic. Capt. Henry Ivanoff commanded the crew of three. It also was believed that two Russian scientists rescued by the mail boat after they had been shipwrecked on Little Diomede Island, were on the vessel. If this were true, the persons lost would total 10.

SUPREME COURT DISBARS PAUL RICHARDS FOR PART IN BERG KIDNAPING CASE

HEBER NATIONS NOT TO BE TRIED FOR FOURTH TIME

Liquor Conspiracy Charge, Convictions on Which Were Reversed Three Times, Dismissed.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ORDERS ACTION

Case Was to Have Been Heard Oct. 5—One Other Defendant Pleaded Guilty and Another Died.

Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner, was freed today of the Federal charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act, of which he was convicted three times, each conviction being followed by a reversal in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

District Attorney Breuer, acting on instructions from the Attorney-General's office, dismissed the case in Judge Davis' court. It had been on the docket for a fourth trial to begin Oct. 5, but on that day was passed, at the Government's suggestion, to await a further order. The same action had been taken at previous times.

The District Attorney, in a statement to the Court, said that since the first trial of Nations, in 1925, witnesses in the case had died, beer had been legalized, and "the eighteenth amendment is now on its last legs." In view of all the facts and circumstances, he said, the Government does not feel justified in taking the case to a fourth trial. The question of a fourth trial has been before the Attorney-General's office for more than two years, Nations' third conviction having been reversed and remanded in August, 1931.

Prather Pleaded Guilty.

Nations and Charles S. Prather, then State Food and Drug Commissioner, were arrested in February, 1924, on the charge of conspiring to protect the Griesedieck Brewery here in the manufacture and sale of beer of unlawful alcoholic content. Prather pleaded guilty, and sentence was suspended while he testified for the Government at Nations' successive trials. July 1 last, Prather was fined $500, which he paid.

Raymond B. Griesedieck, vice-president and manager of the brewery, was indicted with Nations and Prather, and testified for the Government, but did not enter a plea, and died while his case was pending. The brewery company was made a party to the prosecution, and was fined $10,000, which it paid.

First Conviction in 1925.

Nations' first conviction was in Judge Faris' court, June 1, 1925, and Judge Faris fixed his punishment at 18 months' imprisonment and a fine of $3333. The unusual amount is one-third of $10,000, the approximate sum which, it was testified, was paid to Prather by the Griesedieck Brewery for protection of its output in 1923-24. Prather testified that he made a division of the money with Nations.

The appellate court reversed and remanded the first conviction because Judge Faris had refused to disqualify himself, on Nations' allegation that he was prejudiced.

The second trial was before Judge Davis in 1929. Following conviction, Judge Davis assessed an 18 months' sentence and $2000 fine. This conviction was reversed because of remarks of District Attorney Breuer to the jury, which the Appellate Court held to have been prejudicial to Nations' case.

After conviction in the third trial, in January, 1930, Judge Davis assessed the same punishment as before, 18 months and $2000 fine. The Appellate Court's reversal of this conviction was because of the admission of certain evidence, which was admissable in the second trial, but not, the Court held, in the third trial, because a conecting link of evidence was lacking, a Government witness at the second trial failing to appear at the third trial.

LONG CHALLENGES HECKLER OVER LONG ISLAND AFFAIR

By the Associated Press.

DONALDSVILLE, La., Oct. 16.—United States Senator Huey Long, while speaking here yesterday in behalf of seven new tax measures, was interrupted by a voice from the grand stand of the South Louisiana State Fair: "What about that Long Island affair?"

The reference was to fisticuffs that occurred a few weeks ago when Long was a guest at a Long Island club. Long got a black eye.

The Senator shouted back at the heckler: "Come down here and I'll man-to-man it with you. I won't have five or six men jump on you like they did on me and then run off. Come down here and I'll Long Island you."

SIAMESE NAVY JOINS REBELS; CAPTURES NATIONAL ARSENAL

By the Associated Press.

PENANG, Federated Malay States, Oct. 16.—Passengers arriving today from Bangkok, Siam, said the Siamese navy had joined rebels in their attack on the Government and seized the national arsenal. They reported also the important station of Petchaburi was captured.

Seizure of the arsenal means that Government troops will be unable to replenish ammunition when the present stocks are exhausted.

The Siamese navy has a personnel of 5000, with 20,000 in reserve. Naval equipment includes two 1000-ton cruisers, three destroyers, four torpedo boats and various small gunboats and other minor craft.

ROOSEVELTS ON SHORT CRUISE

President and Party Make Sunday Trip Down the Potomac.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt took a small party of guests for a short cruise down the Potomac on the Government yacht Sequoia yesterday, returning to the White House soon after 5 p. m.

In the party were Governor Eugene R. Black of the Federal Reserve Board and Mrs. Black, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, new United States Representative from Arizona; Mrs. Anna Dall, the Roosevelts' daughter, and her two children; Lorena Hickock, Jan Dickson, Marguerite Lehand, a personal secretary, and Capt. Walter Vernou, naval aid.

NRA PLANS TO EXEMPT SMALLER EMPLOYERS

Ruling Expected to Apply to Hirers of Fewer Than 10 Persons.

(Copyright, 1933.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Exemption from NRA codes and the President's re-employment agreement for employers of 10 or fewer persons in small towns will be provided in the near future, it was learned today.

Action probably will be taken in the form of an executive order by President Roosevelt.

This step will affect several million workers.

As now prepared by NRA officials, the ruling means that small employers in towns of less than 2500 or possibly 5000 persons, will not be called on to live up to the codes now drawn or the NRA agreements they signed to get the Blue Eagle.

The principal argument advanced for the proposal is that small employers are being seriously handicapped financially by the code program and are unable to make appreciable additions to their payrolls.

Those small employers who desire to obey the codes and the NRA will be able to do so and retain their Blue Eagles, under the plan as now drawn, but they will not be liable for penalties if they fail to live up to the compacts.

TWO WAVES OF SELLING DRIVE DOWN STOCK PRICES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Hit by two successive selling waves in the afternoon, stock prices dropped as much as $7 today.

A closing slump of 5 cents in wheat, the limit for one day, added to the selling.

The strength in the dollar and weakness in commodities combined with weakened speculative accounts as the result of the recent decline were responsible for the break.

All groups were carried down with United States Steel and the rails and such individual issues as National Distillers and Allied Chemical leading the decline.

FINDS HIM UNFIT TO PRACTICE, EVEN BY HIS OWN ADMISSIONS

CASTS ASIDE HIS ACQUITTAL DEFENSE

Unanimous 11,000-Word Opinion Says Power of Disbarment Exists in Judicial Branch, Independent of Any Constitutional or Statutory Grant.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Paul A. Richards, St. Louis attorney, was disbarred from the practice of law by the Missouri Supreme Court today for professional malpractice in his acts as go-between for the kidnapers of the late Alexander Berg, in November, 1931.

The Supreme Court's decision was unanimous, the six other members concurring in the opinion prepared by Judge Frank E. Atwood. After reviewing the evidence presented by the St. Louis and Missouri Bar Associations as to Richards' negotiations in behalf of the wealthy fur dealer's kidnapers, the Supreme Court said:

"It is hard to think of a practice more devastating to right standards of an honorable profession, or more hostile to the public good. According to all the decisions, such conduct renders an attorney unfit to engage further in the practice of law. An order of suspension would be inadequate. Under the evidence, respondent (Richards) should be removed from the practice of law in this State, and his license to practice law in this State revoked. It is so ordered."

The greater part of the 11,000-word opinion is devoted to discussion of technical and legal pleas made by Richards, aside from the issues of fact. One of these pleas, which the Court overruled in a discussion 3000 words in length, was that the Supreme Court had not original jurisdiction in disbarment cases, but must wait for such cases to come to it from the lower courts. The Supreme Court, on the authority of many decisions, holds that courts cannot function properly in the administration of justice without having power to admit and disbar attorneys; and that this power is not denied to the Supreme Court, or withheld from it, by the Missouri Constitution and statutes.

The Court moreover holds that the power of disbarment exists in the judicial branch of the Government, independent of any constitutional or statutory grant. The effect of this ruling would be to place the power of disbarment above any legislative act which might be designed to restrict that power.

Acquittal by Jury No Defense.

Richards pleaded also, as a bar to the proceedings, the fact that he was acquitted by a jury in his (second) trial on a charge of kidnaping for ransom, in May, 1932. He said the allegations in the Bar Association's complaint were the same on which he was tried and acquitted.

The Supreme Court's reply to this is that after indictment and acquittal, the same acts may be charged and proved as reasons for disbarment "if they in fact show that he is unfit to continue in the

NEGRO MUST GO BACK TO VIRGINIA AND FACE TRIAL

U. S. Supreme Court Denies Review to Alleged Slayer of Two Who Is Held in Massachusetts.

JUDGE UNDER FIRE FOR FIRST DECISION

He Ordered Release of Man on Ground That Negroes Did Not Serve on State's Grand Juries.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Supreme Court today denied a review to George Crawford, Negro, indicted as the slayer of Mrs. Agnes B. Ilsley, wealthy sportswoman, and her maid, Mina Buchner, at Middleburg, Va., in January, 1931, who is fighting to prevent extradition from Boston to Virginia for trial.

This is the case in which a resolution for the impeachment of Federal Judge Lowell was introduced in the House of Representatives, following his order directing the release of Crawford and refusing to order his extradition to Virginia. The resolution was adopted by the House and a committee is making an investigation.

He took this action on the ground that Negroes did not serve on grand juries in Virginia, implying that Crawford would not get his constitutional rights if delivered to that State for trial.

A murder indictment was returned against Crawford and he was arrested in Boston. In January, 1933, the Governor of Virginia asked for his extradition, and in February the Governor of Massachusetts, after a hearing, ordered him delivered to Virginia authorities.

Counsel for Crawford promptly began habeas corpus proceedings, contending his return to Virginia would deprive him of constitutional rights. It was brought out that, while the laws of Virginia make no discrimination against Negroes for jury duty, it was the practice of the Loudon County Judge designated to select grand jurors to refuse to permit Negroes to serve on that jury. Judge Lowell ruled that the indictment returned by a grand jury from which Negroes had been excluded was void, and ordered the discharge of Crawford.

The first Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Judge Lowell, holding in effect the constitutional questions in the writ for habeas corpus had been prematurely raised; that Crawford would have an opportunity to assert his constitutional rights when brought to trial in the Virginia courts, and should the decision there be against him he could petition the United States Supreme Court for a review.

Should the high court decline to grant him a review, he would have the right, it added, to apply to the Federal courts in Virginia by habeas corpus proceedings, and thus fully protect his rights.

In reversing Judge Lowell, the Appellate Court ordered Crawford be delivered to the proper authorities for extradition to Virginia.

BARRED WRITER TO ATTEND JOHNSON'S PRESS CONFERENCE

Trade Paper Correspondent Says He Will Not Surrender Free Press Guarantee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—James True, representing the "Industrial Control Report," plans to attend Hugh S. Johnson's press conference tomorrow despite the NRA chief's notice he would "not be welcomed."

True wrote Johnson that to pursue any other course would "constitute a surrender of the constitutional guarantee of a free press." His letter was in reply to one from Johnson barring him from future press conference, and saying:

"Your last industrial control report is full of misinformation and sabotage of NRA. I encourage constructive criticism, but your statements have been consistently without foundation in fact and in one case distinctly libelous."

True replied he was not aware his last report was "either inaccurate or libelous."

The NRA has ruled press conferences would be limited to reporters representing daily newspapers or newspapers requiring telegraphic service, and accredited representatives of recognized trade and business papers or publications.

Paul Richards Disbarred By Supreme Court

practice of law." The Court holds that "though for one reason or another a criminal proceeding results in acquittal, the acts charged may be a proper matter for disbarment." A previous majority decision of the court, which would in some respects support Richards' contention, is spoken of as a "judicial aberration," and whatever ground existed for it is declared to have been removed by a later change in the statutes.

The discussion of these and other legal points shows exhaustive study on the part of Judge Atwood. More than 100 decisions, by the higher courts of 29 states, are cited. The decision as to the court's jurisdiction is of particular importance, as the court reaffirms, in broader and more definite language than heretofore, its power to disbar.

Background of the Case.

In reviewing the issues of fact, the Supreme Court uses the record of the three-day hearing held in St. Louis, last March, by Scott R. Timmons of Carrollton as Commissioner for the court. At that hearing, the charges of the city and State bar associations against Richards were presented by Glendy B. Arnold and J. Wesley McAfee, representing the grievance committees of the organizations. Richards, represented by Don Purteet of Jefferson City as his counsel, took an active part in his own defense.

Chief witnesses against Richards were Morris Levinson, Berg's attorney, and John T. Rogers, Post-Dispatch reporter, both of whom told of conversations with Richards, as representative of the kidnapers, during the period in which Berg was held in captivity for ransom. Berg died before the hearing, but the transcript of his testimony in Richards' trial on the kidnaping charge was admitted in evidence, giving his account of the manner in which the kidnapers compelled him to write a note directing Levinson to "hire" Richards.

Richards was the only witness in his own defense. He said, in his testimony and in his later argument in his own behalf before the Supreme Court, that he had undertaken a dangerous task as the duly chosen representative of Berg, and had been "double-crossed" by Levinson, who had paid him $1000 at their first meeting, but had cheated him out of a $10,000 "fee" which he was to receive after Berg's safe return. He gave his version of the arrangement by which he was to receive the agreed $50,000 ransom the day after Berg's release, and was to divide it among persons named to him in a telephone conversation by Charles Heuer, ex-convict and leader of the kidnapers. Richards' arrest on a capital charge came before the time set for the pay-off.

Arguments before the Supreme Court were made May 24, former Circuit Judge Arnold making the plea for disbarment, and Richards an his attorney speaking for the defense. The case had since been under advisement. Heuer and three others of the Berg kidnapers are now in the penitentiary, a fifth participant having been paroled.

Court's Review of Facts.

The Supreme Court begins its review of the facts by quoting at length from Richards' answer, filed with the Court, in which Richards gave his version of his talks with Rogers and Levinson and, by telephone, with the kidnaper Heuer. Richards' quotations of dialogue with the three persons named are given at length.

Richards, in the passages cited by the Supreme Court, related that Rogers called on him, asking him to "accept employment," through Levinson, to represent the Berg family. "Tell Mr. Levinson," Richards said he replied, "I will accept employment if they will pay me a retainer fee of $1000, and if they will pay me an additional fee of $10,000 after Mr. Berg is delivered safe and sound." He told of having received, by mail, a special delivery letter containing a $50,000 promissory note signed by Berg. The payment of $1000 to Richards by Levinson, in Levinson's office, and Richards' announcement to Heuer, in their next telephone talk, that "I now represent the Berg family," were recited by Richards. He told also of Heuer's later message to him, naming the time and place for Berg's release, and instructing him, on getting the ransom money next day, to pay $14,500 to three men named by Heuer, and to take the rest of the money to Kansas City and wait at a hotel for a man who would give his name as "Blackie."

Summarizes Berg's Testimony.

The Supreme Court then summarizes the transcript of Berg's testimony, as to the facts of his abduction in his own automobile on Lindell boulevard, and his subsequent five-day captivity in a flat on Easton avenue. Berg testified, the court says:

"That while he was so held his kidnapers compelled him to write a letter to a friend, Ben Harris, telling him to raise $65,000 or they would kill him (Berg); that they also compelled him to write several letters to his personal attorney, Morris Levinson, and one to an attorney unknown to Berg, Joseph Lemen; that in the letter to Lemen they compelled Berg to tell him that he should act as go-between for them and Berg's family to collect money, and that if he did not they would kill him and his family; that he was compelled to inclose some notes in the letter to Lemen, one of which he thought was for $20,000 and the other for $50,000; that one of his captors told him the next day that Lemen had refused to act and that they were going down there and shoot up his house; that about 3 o'clock Monday morning, Nov. 9, 1931, they prepared draft of another letter to Levinson, and forced him, to copy, sign and address same. This was the special delivery letter received by Levinson about 1:30 p. m. that day, and is as follows:

Mr. Morris Levinson,
St. Louis, Mo.,

Dear Sir: I want you to hire Paul Richards to represent me and handle the negotiations for my release pay him about a thousand dollars and I will pay you back. try to get him to get Bussy at once. Some one will get in touch with him soon.

(Signed) ALEX BERG.

"At the same time they compelled him to copy and sign a promissory note payable to Paul A. Richards in the sum of $50,000 and inclose same in an envelope, forcing him to address the envelope to Paul A. Richards from one of Richard's professional cards, which they handed him."

Comment on Richards' Defense.

"Respondent (Richards) voluntarily took the stand at the hearing before the Commissioner," the Supreme Court says, "and without substantial variation related under oath the evidentiary facts quoted from his answer. He also admitted that he had read of the Berg kidnaping before Rogers first called him, and had reason to believe Berg was being held for ransom, but had no personal knowledge of the fact. It appears from the telephone conversation he admits having had with Charles Heuer the same afternoon that, before he ever talked to Levinson he had very definite information that Berg was being so held, and that the ransom then demanded was $50,000.

"Respondent's own admissions," the Court continues, "thus show that he not only accepted $1000 from Berg, through Levinson, with the information and belief that Berg was then under duress and acting in conformity with the wishes of his captors, but that he took advantage of Berg's helpless condition and the consequent mental anguish of his family to exact a promise to pay him an additional sum of $10,000 contingent upon the success of efforts he proposed to render in effecting Berg's release.

"We are not called upon to rule on the question whether, in such negotiations and in his undertaking pursuant thereto, he was acting 'in his professional capacity,' because in his answer respondent avers 'that in his dealings with Levinson he was arranging in good faith for legitimate payment for legal services to be rendered,' and for the purposes of this proceeding he is bound by the admission.

"Upon this state of the record certain questions naturally arise. How did the kidnapers happen to have respondent's professional card, and why did they force Berg to name him, who was wholly unknown to Berg, as the person to whom Levinson should pay 'about $1000'; and why did the kidnapers force Berg to name him as the payee in the $50,000 note which they compelled him to sign and send by special delivery letter to respondent; and why did they have such implicit confidence in respondent as to make him their 'pay-off' man? Respondent attempted no explanation, though he admitted on cross-examination that he 'had represented Mr. Heuer in a minor case in St. Louis County.'

Rogers-Levinson Testimony.

The Supreme Court then summarizes the testimony of Rogers and Levinson. Rogers said that, being in Levinson's office when the letter from Berg arrived, he went to see Richards, and that Richards showed him the promissory note he had received, saying the note was no good to him in that form, but that he could have Berg released by the kidnapers in two hours for $50,000; that he had received a telephone message the night before; that a client of his was the leader of a gang, and was a man whom Richards had gotten out of trouble in Indianapolis and in St. Louis County.

Rogers testified, the Court continued, that Richards told him he was to get $11,000 of the ransom. Rogers flatly denied that Richards said to him, as represented by Richards, "I will accept employment if they will pay me a $1000 retainer fee and an additional fee of $10,000, etc." Rogers testified also that Richards said he had feared that he might get "burned up" if he handled the ransom money, but would find a way to "get away with that;" and that Richards dwelt on the desperate character of the men holding Berg, who might kill Berg, or shoot Richards or Rogers, if the ransom was not paid. Rogers said that when he asked Richards, by telephone later, to see that Berg's captors should not hurt him, Richards replied, "I will go right out and do that very thing."

Levinson's testimony, to the same effect as that of Rogers, was cited by the Court. He told of paying Richards the $1000, and of discussion as to the money, in which Richards said, "It wouldn't do you any good to try and trap me; if the police question me, I am going to tell them I represent the Berg family."

Levinson testified also, the Court said, that he asked Richards as to the man who pointed out Berg to the kidnapers, asking specifically, "Was he a Jewish man?" and that Richards replied that he was not. He testified as to Richards' statements about his expected $11,000 fee, and that he warned Levinson "If I don't get that money, you will be killed."

"It is conceded," the Supreme Court says, "that Berg was released substantially as planned, that Richards was arrested the following morning before any further payment, and that no part of the $50,000 ransom was ever paid.

"It developed in Levinson's testimony that after his first contact with respondent, he felt he (Richards) was very closely allied with the kidnapers, and without respondent's knowledge he conferred with the city police. He also frankly admitted that he lied to respondent when he told him that he was going to assist him to progress in the practice of law, and when he told him that Rogers was in Chicago. Respondent bitterly complains of these matters as professional misconduct on the part of Levinson, affecting his credibility as a witness.

"He also intimated that Rogers' testimony, in so far as it conflicts with his own, should be disbelieved, because he (Rogers) was out to make a 'scoop' for his newspaper and would probably receive extra compensation therefor.

"It is an ancient custom of persons accused of wrongdoing to impugn the acts and motives of their accusers. In this proceeding we are not called upon to determine the fitness of Levinson to practice law, or to criticise the professional ethics of Rogers, or to pass judgment upon the means used by them to save Berg from bodily harm and effect his release. At least it can be truthfully said of them that there is no evidence that they were in any manner allied with the kidnapers, or attempted to serve two masters for gain. Though respondent and his counsel exercised their full privilege of cross-examination and impeachment, we find nothing in the record casting doubt upon the truth of the testimony of these witnesses.

"The admissions and principal evidence have been set forth with particularity because of their unusual character. The record speaks for itself.

"If the testimony of Levinson and Rogers is worthy of belief, and we are well convinced that it is, respondent is guilty of enough of the charges set forth in the complaint to justify his removal from the practice of law in this State.

Plea of $10,000 "Legal Fee" Fails.

"According to respondent's own admissions, he accepted a retainer fee of $1000 from Berg for legal services to be rendered in procuring his release, with good reason to believe that his employment was being dictated by the kidnapers and was not the voluntary act of Berg; and he used the situation to coerce an agreement to pay an additional contingent fee of $10,000.

"However, the clear and convincing weight of the evidence is that there was no agreement that he would be paid a contingent fee of $10,000 by Berg as his attorney, but that he accepted this payment of $1000 with the assurance that upon Berg's release he would be paid the ransom of $50,000 indicated by the note payable to his order for that amount which Berg had signed under compulsion and which he had received by special delivery letter from the kidnapers, notwithstanding he had previously agreed with the kidnapers that he should retain $11,000 of the ransom money as compensation for his services to them.

"His admissions to this effect, testified to by both Levinson and Rogers, are corroborated by his own unexplained choice as 'pay-off' man by the kidnapers, as well as by his intimate knowledge of their movements and identity, disclosed in his conversations with Rogers and Levinson.

"The apparent naivete of respondent's claim that in all that he did he was acting solely as Berg's attorney, without any knowledge or intent of aiding and abetting the kidnapers, is belied by the legal knowledge and intelligence displayed by him throughout these negotiations.

"It would serve no good purpose to enlarge upon the obvious gravity of respondent's offense." The Court's final statement, already quoted, characterizing Richards as "unfit to engage further in the practice of law," then follows.

Commissioner Upheld.

Besides the objections on legal grounds previously mentioned, Richards and his attorney attacked the appointment of Timmons as Commissioner to take testimony, on the ground that Timmons was a member of the State Bar Association, one of the organizations which preferred charges against Richards.

"The Commissioner," the Court says, "whose authority did not extend beyond the taking and returning of testimony, was not by reason of his membership disqualified from performing this service." A motion was made to suppress the Commissioner's return, on the ground that the Commissioner, who had the opportunity to observe the conduct of witnesses on the stand, was not required to state findings of fact and conclusions of law. The Court holds that this fact in no way prejudiced Richards' case, and that the law does not require such procedure as that suggested.

The defense also charged that the Court, in assuming jurisdiction, violated provisions of the Federal Constitution. This is overruled, the Court stating that "no constitutional objections are urged or in any way kept alive in respondent's brief."

The six Supreme Judges concurring in Atwood's opinion are Chief Justice Ernest S. Gantt, Judges William F. Frank, G. R. Ellison, Charles T. Hays, Ernest M. Tipton and C. A. Leedy.

Doctor Tells of Overweight Dangers

A physician says, "Overweight is always dangerous in heart disease, but reduction of weight should be undertaken only under the guidance of a high-class physician. The same is true for constipation. If the condition is more or less chronic, consult your doctor; do not attempt to medicate yourself."

The value of the above advice is so self evident that it needs no comment on our part.

Always consult your physician promptly whenever any physical condition requires attention and let us serve you whenever prescriptions are to be filled.

'CAPTIVE' MINES STILL CLOSED IN PENNSYLVANIA

Gov. Pinchot's Plea to Cease Roving Picketing, However, Is Generally Respected in Coal Fields.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16.—With striking miners generally acceding to Gov. Pinchot's request to cease roving picketing, more men went back to work in the Western Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields today.

As the strike neared the end of the fifth week, the "captive" mines—those whose entire output is consumed by the owner—remained closed, however, pending adjustment of differences between the idle workers and the H. C. Frick Coke Co., owned by United States Steel.

Strikers continued to picket "captive" mines and no effort was made to reopen them.

The miners are awaiting resumption of peace negotiations between Thomas Moses, president of the Frick company, and Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers, over union recognition, the "check-off" system by which the employer collects dues for the union, and other disputed points.

A repercussion of the difficulties in Fayette County, storm center of the strike, was seen in the announcement by Murray that William Feeney, president of District No. 4 of the United Mine Workers of America, has been replaced by William Hynes, who is to serve as provisional president.

Murray said that Feeney "has been ailing for some time," although observers several weeks ago pointed out that the district chief apparently was not in complete control of the miners. Hynes is a union organizer.

ICKES OUSTS HEAD OF INSANE ASYLUM

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Secretary Ickes today dismissed Dr. Harry R. Hummer, superintendent of the insane asylum at Canton, S. D., as a result of charges preferred by John Collier, Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Hummer had been given five days to answer charges based on a report of conditions at the asylum by Dr. Samuel A. Silk, medical director of St. Elizabeth's Hospital here. The answer was found "unsatisfactory."

The charges by Collier included one that 20 "sane" Indians had been detained in the asylum for some time, that conditions of sanitation were "unbelievably bad," that the plant and equipment of the asylum were antiquated and inadequate and that "patients are neglected and cruelly treated."

An injunction against the release of the "sane" Indians was obtained after arrangements were made by the Interior Department to transfer them to St. Elizabeths.

A statement by the Interior Department today repeated a charge made Saturday by the department that the effort to release the Indians "was met by certain Canton interests who profit from selling supplies to the asylum."

The Secretary's notification of dismissal follows: "Your answer Oct. 9 to charges not satisfactory. You are hereby dismissed effective when Superintendent Balmer, Pipestone, receipts to you for funds and property in your charge. Have wired him proceed immediately to Canton and receipt."

BIG STEEL COMPANY INSISTS ON OPEN SHOP

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, today told the National Labor Board his company "insists on maintenance of the open shop" and declined to submit to arbitration the question of recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Weir summoned to Washington by the Labor Board in its inquiry into the strike at the company's mills at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., told the board:

"There is no requirement of the steel code, the NRA or the President's recovery program that we make any contract with any labor union."

Weir said employes of the company last June chose by secret ballot a committee to deal with the company in collective bargaining and that these negotiations have been carried on "with satisfaction to both sides."

He asserted the strike had been called by 39 men "without most of the employes knowing what it was about," and added that 8074 workers out of a normal working force of 9858 already had returned to work in the Weirton plant and that 825 out of 900 had returned to the Steubenville mills.

"There had been no dispute," Weir said, "between the company and the men, no vote was taken by the employes as to whether they should strike and no grievance was brought to us by the committee elected by the employes, or any other persons."

WOMAN'S CLAIM ON STRICKLAND ESTATE UPHELD

Judge Hamilton Decides She Is Entitled to Widow's Share in $100,000 Left by Grocer.

HIS WILL FAILED TO MENTION HER

Testimony That Marriage Ceremony Was Held When First Wife Was Still Alive in Asylum.

Mrs. Mary Theis Strickland's claim for a widow's share of the $100,000 estate of Albin Strickland, retired grocer, who died four years ago, was upheld in a decision by Circuit Judge Hamilton today.

Evidence in the case was heard several months ago and taken under advisement. The decision affirms an earlier ruling by Probate Judge Holtcamp. Under it Mrs. Strickland, who said she was married to Strickland in 1915 at a time when he had another wife, of which fact she was not aware, is entitled to one-half of the property, less whatever fee she has agreed to pay to her counsel, Peter T. Barrett, H. Randolph Mudd and Jerome Simon, the latter now an Associate City Counselor.

It was alleged the claimant had gone through a civil marriage ceremony with the grocer, only to learn that his former wife, who had been ill for several years in a State hospital, did not die until 1918. After that time the claimant, it was said, continued to live with him under a common-law arrangement, and it was on this basis her suit was filed. Since 1921 common-law marriages have not been recognized under the law of this State, but the law forbidding such a contract is not retroactive.

The claim was resisted by relatives of Strickland, among them Mrs. Samuel Ludwig, a niece, who was principal beneficiary under his will. The defense asserted that the petitioner was the grocer's housekeeper at his home, 4527 Clayton avenue, where she continued to live after his death.

In two previous wills, not filed for probate, Strickland, it was testified, had bequeathed the petitioner $10,000 in one and $5000 in the other, in addition to the Clayton avenue property, but he referred to himself as a widower. In the will admitted to probate she was not mentioned.

Neighbors who took the stand for her said they regarded her as Strickland's wife and he had so introduced her. They told of seeing her with a wedding ring which she said was from him, and he did not deny it.

For the defense it was testified Strickland had said she was his housekeeper and he was not married to her. On the occasion of his last illness, when she called to see him in a hospital, it was stated, he said to her: "We were never married and you know it. Get out of my room and get off of my premises."

Strickland was 76 when he died four years ago. The plaintiff is much younger.

Receiving the International Peace Association, a majority of whose delegates are Americans, Henderson said: "My message is that the struggle for disarmament must go on and that the covenant of the League of Nations shall not be treated as a scrap of paper. We will not break faith with the dead who fell that there should be no more war.

"Nail your flag to the mast of the League. "Make the will to peace stronger than the will to war. Every delay or defeat must call forth fresh reserves of stubborn and relentless energy. The flower of one generation was slain in the great war and it is our duty to give the world peace in our time."

Germany's Withdrawal.

Apparently alluding to Germany, he continued: "We must not hesitate to incur risks and make whatever sacrifice may be necessary to insure the final triumph of the reign of law over international anarchy that breeds war."

Henderson said the withdrawal of Germany from the League necessitated asking what all were trying to do at Geneva and his answer was that all were endeavoring to organize a peace. "That enterprise is not confined to members of the league," he said. "We have welcomed as partners the United States and the Soviet Union and both have made great contributions to the cause of consolidating world peace—the United States through its nine-Power treaty and other agreements concluded at Washington through the Paris pact, the London Naval Agreement and numerous conciliation arbitration treaties."

After paying a tribute to Russia's impulse for peace Henderson, making what was considered another allusion to Germany said: "However just its cause or good its intention, no Government can be trusted to remain loyal to the cause of peace if it flouts the collective peace system to which the world is pledged. The Government which rejects that system is inevitably encouraging its citizens to regard war as legitimate and inevitable."

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan of Washington, representing the American Council on Disarmament, read to the assemblage cables selected from 50 received in the course of the night from numerous mass meetings in the United States urging the continuation of disarmament efforts.

MacDonald Asks for Results.

A message from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain was read to the assemblage urging the "vital necessity" for the conference to arrive at a successful and speedy conclusion.

Of all the great Powers represented at the disarmament meetings only Italy was ready to propose adjournment.

The others—Great Britain, France and the United States—called for a still more determined effort after today's session to reconcile differences and draft a permanent program for peace.

Whatever may be accomplished in the recess, the delegates planned to advise Germany first that her contentions of insincerity were unfounded.

France Supports American Opposition to Ending Arms Session.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Vigorous French support for the stand of Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large, against an adjournment of the disarmament conference, was announced today at the Foreign Office.

The completion of a disarmament convention along the lines already drawn, despite the German withdrawal from the conference and the League of Nations, was viewed officially as the best way out of a "serious situation."

Roosevelt's Plea to Press for Disarmament Read at Geneva.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President Roosevelt's belief that statesmen "should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles" blocking the path to disarmament was expressed in a statement made public today at the State Department. The message was communicated yesterday to a mass meeting promoted by peace societies, and delivered through Norman H. Davis, representing this Government at the disarmament conference.

The State Department said the message had been written in Washington on Oct. 13, which was before Germany's sudden announcement of withdrawal from the arms conference and the League of Nations.

The text of the letter addressed by Davis to Lord Cecil of Great Britain follows:

"The Secretary of State, on behalf of the President, wishes me to convey to you his sympathetic interest in the mass meeting, which is to take place on Sunday, and to express his belief that this impressing demonstration of the aspirations of millions who are looking to the conference to take a decisive step toward reducing armaments will constitute a solemn reminder to the representatives of the nations of the world that they must not allow the conference to faid.

"Fortified with the knowledge that world opinion is backing them in their difficult task, they should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path and bring about the constructive achievement which mankind confidently awaits."

WOMAN KILLED, BODY CUT UP AND THROWN IN SEA

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 16. — Thomas M. Jones, 48 years old, ex-convict sought in connection with the murder of Mrs. Laura Ellen Straw, 60, wealthy widow, police said today, had quarreled frequently with his benefactress recently.

Mrs. Straw's dismembered body was found in San Diego Bay early yesterday. The torso was in one bag and the legs in another.

Jones had lived at Mrs. Straw's house for about a year and recently had a quarrel with her because she would not mortgage her property and take him on a trip to New York City, police said they learned. Police have fingerprints and a complete description of Jones.

Jones is reported to have been committed to the State Penitentiary at Columbus, O., in 1925 for possession of a still. He was recommitted to that institution for possession of liquor in 1927 under the name of Tully McQuate, police said. In the early part of 1931 Jones was arrested here on a vagrancy charge, but later released.

Police think robbery was the motive for the killing.

The woman's legs had been hacked from her torso, then chopped into four pieces. Her head had been mashed in.

In her home police found a smeared hatchet, hammer and carpenter's saw, all of which bore signs of having been used by the slayer. A blood-stained mattress and pillow also were discovered.

A shore boat crew from the U. S. S. Trenton discovered the bag containing the body near San Diego's main piers. A few hours later four sailors from the U. S. S. Langley saw a sack bobbing on the bay near where the body was found. It contained the legs, some of the woman's clothing, newspapers and towels. Identification was established through a string of beads the woman wore.

Mrs. Straw had four husbands. The first was a man named Alvis. Next she married Herman Helms in Tacoma, Wash., in 1911, and in 1916 she became the bride of Alonzo Straw. Straw died in 1923, leaving her considerable property. Several years ago she married Frank Jewett. She and Jewett were divorced.

Among Mrs. Straw's survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Bessie Willows, Keokuk, Ia., and Mrs. Lillie Curran, Lyons, Ia., and a son, Sidney Alvis, Newton, Utah.

THREE MORE ACTRESSES SAY READ MADE LOVE TO THEM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—Alfred C. Read made love to three actresses besides Claire Windsor while posing as a single man, according to eight affidavits filed in Superior Court today. The affidavits were filed by Miss Windsor's attorneys in an effort to have set aside the $75,000 judgment awarded to Read's wife, Mrs. Marian Read, at the close of her suit against Miss Windsor, charging alienation of Read's affections.

Chief among these were the statements of Dorothy Granger, Julie Carter and Aljean Hemming, who declared that Read represented himself as a single man, made love to them, and when finally pressed concerning his marital status, told them, just as Miss Windsor said he did her, that he was "married but getting a divorce."

BANKERS' CODE IN EFFECT

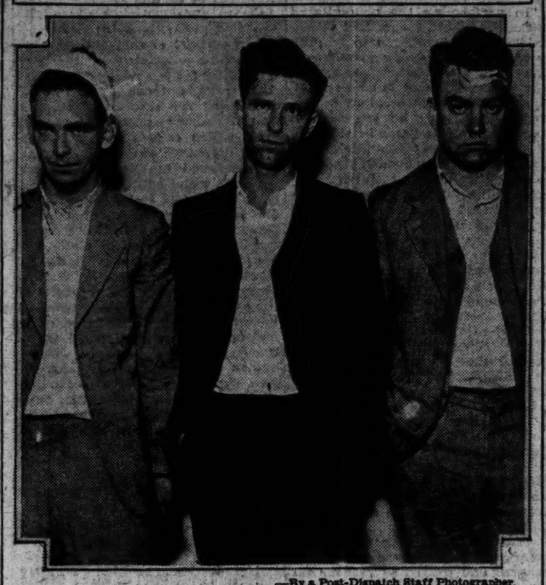

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' Association, said yesterday that the bankers' code "contains within itself the possibilities of the major part of the reform of the present banking system desired by the public, the Government and the bankers alike."

The code went into effect today.

"In so far as the bankers' code aids in the definite elimination of loose or uneconomic practices from banking," Shepherd said, "it will confer permanent and fundamental benefits on the nation's banking structure and rebound to the welfare of depositors aside from all questions of its function as an emergency measure."

Safe Robbers Trapped on Roof

HELD AS SLAYER OF MAN WHO RAN OVER HIS DOG

Twice-Convicted Bootlegger Denies Charge at Nevada, Mo., but Girl Identifies Him.

By the Associated Press.

NEVADA, Mo., Oct. 16. — John (Casey) Jones was arrested yesterday charged with shooting and killing Arthur Knapp, 23 years old, who ran over Jones' dog with his automobile and broke one of the dog's legs. Jones denied the charge but police said Miss Geneva Irwin, 21, daughter of a farmer 12 miles south of Nevada, had identified Jones as the slayer. According to police Miss Irwin said she and Knapp had driven past Jones' house in Knapp's motor car and that the car ran over a dog. The girl said Knapp did not stop. About two hours later, she said, when she and Knapp were leaving the car in front of a store in the business district, Jones called to them from behind.

"Aren't you the fellow that ran over my dog?" Miss Irwin quoted Jones as saying. "Yes, sir," Knapp replied.

Miss Irwin said Jones drew a revolver and fired one shot. A bullet struck Knapp in the chest.

Jones was arrested by Policemen W. E. Butner and Holland Crawford, who said he was running down an alley from the scene of the shooting.

Police said Jones had served two sentences for illegal sale of liquor.

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 16.—The Mexican army has one Lieutenant for every two enlisted men, according to a War Office report yesterday. The total number of enlisted men is 49,731, while there are 21,750 Lieutenants in active service. The Generals number 398.

TWO KILLED WHEN AUTO RUNS INTO TRAFFIC "ISLAND"

Two Other Persons Seriously Hurt in New York City; Driver Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—An automobile ran into a traffic "island" last night when its driver swerved to avoid collision with another machine. Ralph Jacobs, 60 years old, and Alexander Canter, 60, were killed, and Jacobs' wife, Bertha, and Morris L. Goldstein were seriously injured.

All four were seated on a bench on the "island"—a fenced-in spot in the street—when the car, driven by William Devereux, a Peekskill (N. Y.) radio technician, crashed through the fence. Devereux was arrested on a charge of "suspicion of homicide."

BABY BORN ABOARD TRAIN

Mother Was on Her Way From Joplin to Kirkwood.

A fast Missouri Pacific passenger train was stopped for 45 minutes yesterday at Adrian, Mo., where a passenger, Mrs. Susie Johnson, gave birth to a daughter.

Mrs. Johnson, whose home is in Joplin, was on her way to Kirkwood to visit relatives. Dr. H. C. McConnell, physician who was summoned to attend her, said mother and child were doing well when the run to St. Louis was resumed.

Khaki Shirt Leader Surrenders.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Art J. Smith, "commander-in-chief" of the khaki shirts of America, who disappeared on the eve of a scheduled "march on Washington," gave himself up to police today after they had sought him five days on a warrant charging fraudulent conversion. Wearing the flashy uniform of his "army," Smith entered the District Attorney's office with the announcement that charges against him were "all a lot of hot air," and made arrangements for his release on bail.

WOMAN DRIVING TRUCK FATALLY HURT IN CRASH

Miss Anna Webbe, 24 years old, was killed and her sister, Miss Eva Webbe, 26, was hurt when a truck driven by Anna collided with another machine and upset at Twelfth street and Chouteau avenue yesterday afternoon. Both resided at 1330A Hickory street.

Rolla Hoehn, an engineer of Gillespie, Ill., told police he had stopped his automobile at Chouteau avenue for an automatic traffic signal at 5:30 o'clock. The light changed in his favor, Hoehn said, and he started up. The truck, belonging to Vincent Webbe, a brother of the young women, hit the side of Hoehn's car and overturned. The women were pinned beneath the wreck, being extricated by Hoehn and witnesses.

Anna Webbe died at City Hospital several hours later of a skull fracture. Eva Webbe is at the hospital suffering from fractured ribs and internal hurts. Anna Webbe was housekeeper for her father, Joseph, and several brothers and sisters. Eva is a bookkeeper.

Hoehn was accompanied by his wife, three children and two friends, all of whom escaped injury.

Body of Man Killed by Auto Is Identified.

Theodore Gallagher, 1019 North Eighteenth street, the driver, reported that Southard started across the street, then turned back and stepped in front of the machine.

Detective Sergeant Hurt When His Auto Hits Parked Car.

Detective Sergeant Kenneth McGuire suffered scalp wounds and the loss of two teeth when he was forced to swerve to avoid a collision with another machine and crashed into a parked car in front of 5164 Enright avenue early yesterday.

Probationary Patrolmen Clyde Woolsey and Adam Horas were cut and bruised in a collision between their car and another at Arkansas avenue and Chippewa street while they were on their way to report for duty early yesterday. The second machine, driven by Verlin Cotner, 4204A Manchester avenue, jumped the curb and stopped against a porch.

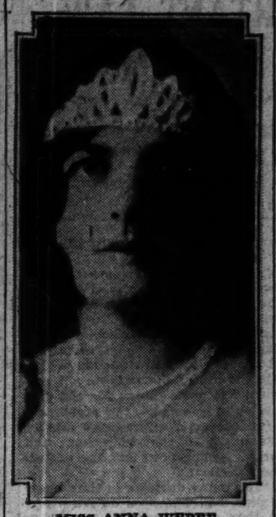

Virginia Jacoby, 6 years old, suffered a skull injury when she ran into the street near her home and was hit by an automobile yesterday morning.

NRA TO INTERVENE IN CLOTHING STRIKE

Hearing on St. Louis Labor Row to Be Held in Washington Friday.

The National Labor Board of NRA will intervene in the clothing workers' strike in St. Louis, according to word received from Washington today from Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board.

Senator Wagner's telegram, to employers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, read as follows:

"The National Labor Board has assumed jurisdiction over strikes in the men's clothing industry in St. Louis, and will hear the parties to the dispute in Washington Friday of this week at 10:30 a. m. Please send representatives."

Hyman Schneid, organizer in charge of the strike of 1600 clothing workers in the city, said the union probably would be represented by its international president, Sidney Hillman, who is in Washington. The strike is in its eighth week.

COOK BEATS RETIRED BOXER

Former City Champion Kabakoff Goes to Hospital.

Harry Kabakoff, retired boxer, came out second best in an argument with a restaurant cook yesterday afternoon, and was taken to City Hospital for treatment for scalp wounds.

Kabakoff was in a restaurant at 3524 Franklinn avenue when the cook, Frank Bowen, tried to eject a customer. Kabakoff took the customer's part, and Bowen promptly seized a heavy water tumbler and hit the former city lightweight champion on the head. At the hospital Kabakoff said he is 34 years old and lives at 1113 North Sixteenth street.

GIRL SLAIN AT TOURIST CAMP; THREE ARE HELD

Other Members of Auto Party Questioned in Shooting at Evansville, Ind.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Three persons were held for investigation after Miss Mary Elizabeth Robb, 20 years old, of Stewartsville, Ind., was shot to death at a tourist camp near Evansville early yesterday. Those held are Cyril Staab, 22; Edward Gumble Jr., 23, and Beulah Bender, 18, all of Evansville.

Miss Bender told police the shooting occurred after Staab and Miss Robb left the automobile in which all four had been riding. She said Staab later took a handkerchief, wiped off the pistol from which the shot was fired, and threw the weapon into a cornfield. Staab told police the girl shot herself.

Miss Robb died in a hospital an hour after the shooting without making a statement.

DRIVERS FOR FIVE LAUNDRIES STRIKE FOR UNION RECOGNITION

Ninety Men Involved in Walkout—Twelve Firms Sign Up.

Drivers employed by five laundries went on strike today in an effort to obtain recognition of the newly organized laundry, Linen & Towel Chauffeurs' Local No. 366.

The strike, involving about 90 men, affects the following laundries: J. Arthur Anderson, Excelsior-Leader, Justin T. Flint, Walker and Grand.

Daniel Murphy, local representative of the Teamsters' International Union, with which the new local is affiliated, said the owners of the five laundries have refused to negotiate with the union, which was organized during the recent membership drive conducted by the American Federation of Labor. Twelve laundries have made agreements with the union, Murphy said, while others have given a hearing to union leaders.

The management of two of the laundries involved said there were no plans for operating trucks. At the headquarters of the Laundry Board of Trade it was said no statement would be made at present.

TEMPORARY PICKREL ALIMONY

$55 a Week to Wife Pending Outcome of Divorce Suit.

Pending the outcome of her husband's divorce suit, Mrs. Ray E. Pickrel, wife of the president of the Pickrel Walnut Co., was allowed $55 a week temporary alimony today by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton. Mrs. Pickrel also will receive $12.50 a week for the support of their minor daughter, Helen, and $500 on account was authorized for her lawyer's fees.

The divorce case, which Mrs. Pickrel is contesting, will be resumed Thursday, when the husband will have an opportunity to offer testimony in answer to her testimony of last Wednesday.

2 PCT. CUT IN EXPENSES OF CITY WATER DIVISION

Official Says Rates Can't Be Reduced Because Several Improvements Are Needed.

Expenses of the Water Division for the first six months of the fiscal year, ending last week, were $176,869, or 13.7 per cent, less than in the corresponding period of the last fiscal year, Director of Public Utilities Wall announced today. The expenditures in the six-month term just ended were $949,968, compared with $1,126,838 in the corresponding time last year. This is the largest decrease in expenses of any city department.

It is not possible to reduce water rates, Wall said, as surplus funds of the division are needed for a new pipe line from the Stacy Park reservoir to the city and other extensions of the system. The division is supported entirely by water revenue. Figures on the revenue for the first half of the fiscal year have not been compiled.

All branches of the Department of Public Utilities reduced expenses by more than $300,000 in the first half of the current fiscal year, compared with the corresponding period last year, Wall said. This includes the Water Division and a saving of about $105,000 in street lighting. The department eliminated 152 jobs this spring, including about 100 in the Water Division.

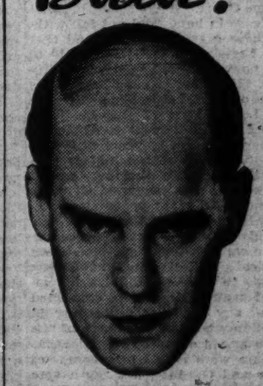

TWO ROBBERS GET 10 YEARS

Two young robbers were sentenced to 10-year concurrent terms by Circuit Judge Landwehr today when they pleaded guilty to two charges of robbery with a deadly weapon under the Henry law. The prisoners, William Freeman, 20 years old, 2811 North Twenty-second street, and Harry Gibson, 22, 1535½ Benton street, will serve the sentences at Algoa Farm.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16. — Judge Frank E. Atwood's opinion, accepted by the six other members of the Missouri Supreme Court, in the Paul A. Richards disbarment case, is of unusual interest and importance to the legal profession, in its determination of hitherto doubtful and disputed law points.

Preparation of the opinion represented a large part of a summer's work on the part of Judge Atwood, who, since the case was argued May 24, had covered a wide range of legal decisions. Besides more than 100 decisions, by the courts of 29 states and in Federal jurisdictions, Judge Atwood presented the opinions of various recognized textbook authorities.

Chief of the legal points raised by the Richards defense was the contention that the Supreme Court lacked original jurisdiction in disbarment proceedings—that it must wait for the lower courts to send such cases to it. The Richards proceeding, instituted by the grievance committees of the St. Louis and Missouri Bar Associations, was brought first in the Supreme Court, with a view to expedition, since it was believed that Richards would appeal if disbarred by a lower court.

In support of its contention, the defense cited sections II and III, article 4, of the Constitution of Missouri; 15 C. J., p. 732, section 30; 2 R. C. L., p. 1086, section 179; in re Sizer and Gardner, 300 Mo. 369, 254 S. W. 82; and State ex. rel. Hopkins vs. Daues et al., 6 S. W. (2d) 893, 319 Mo. 733.

Cites Selleck's Case.

Judge Atwood, after stating the defense's contention, refers to the Selleck disbarment case, in which the St. Louis Bar Association, through its Grievance Committee, filed charges in the St. Louis Court of Appeals for disbarment of Ellroy V. Selleck.

"The Court of Appeals," Judge Atwood says, "appointed two members of that bar to hear the charges and report thereon. Their report presented a finding of guilty on two of the charges in the petition for disbarment. The Commissioners' report was approved by the Court, and Selleck was disbarred. In the certiorari proceeding, as well as in the disbarment proceeding, jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals was attacked on the grounds that the Supreme Court was the only court having power to license attorneys to practice law in this State, that the question of the Court's inherent authority to control the conduct of attorneys practicing at its bar did not arise because the acts complained of were not committed in reference to or in connection with any matter pending in that court, and that the jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals is limited by constitutional provisions making its character, duties and functions strictly appellate, with certain marked and defined exceptions among which is the power to issue, hear and determine writs of habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto, certiorari and other original remedial writs.

"Constitutional questions connected with these grounds were properly lodged and pressed in the Supreme Court. While conceding that the case in hand "did not fall within these granted powers" and that the Legislature could not add to the powers named in the Constitution, this Court in banc held in the face of these objections that the St. Louis Court of Appeals possessed inherent power to disbar attorneys licensed to practice law in this State, all of the Judges concurring in this holding except Brown, J., who expressed opposing views in a separate opinion."

Sizer and Gardner Case.

Judge Atwood then refers to the Sizer and Gardner case, filed as an original proceeding in the Supreme Court, to disbar attorneys for alleged malpractice not connected with any case or proceeding in the Supreme Court. Some of the same points urged by the Richards defense were raised in support of Sizer and Gardner, but "by a vote of five to two this Court in banc disregarded the contention and entertained jurisdiction."

The Richards defense counsel, Judge Atwood says, cited the Sizer and Gardner and Selleck cases, calling attention to the fact that the decisions were not without dissent, "and invoking the plea said to have been made by Edmund Randolph in the trial of Aaron Burr, that no Judge will oppose reconsideration of a subject merely because he has given an opinion on it, which thought is with fine discrimination expressed by Judge Lamm in State ex rel. vs. Gordon, 133 S. W. 44, 231 Mo. 547." Judge Atwood continues:

"In 2 R. C. L., sec. 179, pp. 1086, 1087, it is said: 'In the absence of constitutional or statutory restrictions, a court of superior or general jurisdiction has authority to suspend an attorney from practice as such, or to disbar or strike from the rolls an attorney of such court upon proper grounds, because attorneys are officers of the court in which they are admitted to practice.'

"Also, in 6 C J., sec. 37, p. 580, the doctrine of such inherent power is thus stated: 'It is well settled that a court authorized to admit an attorney has inherent jurisdiction to suspend or disbar him for sufficient cause, and that such jurisdiction does not necessarily depend on any express constitutional provision or statutory enactment.'

"In Weeks on Attorneys at Law, sec. 30, pp. 140, 141, it is said: 'The power to strike from the rolls is inherent in the court itself. No statute or rule is necessary to authorize the punishment in proper cases. Statutes and rules may regulate the power, but they do not create it. It is necessary for the protection of the court, the proper administration of justice, the dignity and purity of the profession, and for the public good and the protection of clients.'

"The same doctrine is thus tersely stated in Thornton on Attorneys at Law, Vol. 2, sec. 758, p. 1167-9: 'From the very earliest times the right to punish attorneys by suspension or disbarment, as well as for contempt, has been exercised by the courts as an inherent power; indeed, it has been truthfully said that nothing is better settled than the fact of the existence of this power, and that the court may exercise it with as much propriety as if it were embedded in the constitution or declared by statute, in the absence of restrictive legislation.'

"The weight of authority in the main confirms the foregoing texts. Among supporting decisions in other jurisdictions are:—"

Judge Atwood's Findings.

"The doctrine of inherent power of courts to admit and disbar attorneys," Judge Atwood says, "is sometimes denied on the theory that, in the distribution of state governmental power, executive and judicial departments are invested by grant, whereas, by limitations placed on the legislative department the people reserve certain power to themselves, so that all governmental power not thus expressly granted or reserved is vested in the Legislature. From this it is argued that if the power to create and regulate a bar is not granted to the judicial department or reserved to the people by limitation on the legislative department, it is vested in the legislature, and that all judicial power being granted power, it is derivative and cannot be inherent.

"In Andrew's American Law (2d ed.), Vol. 1, p. 423, and in 12 C. J., sec. 167, p. 748, N. 8, secs. 236, 237, pp. 804, 805, notes 37, 48 and p 873, state constitutions are referred to as instruments of grant as to executive and judicial powers and of limitation as to legislative power. It would seem that such generalization must yield to the language of the particular constitution under consideration, and no such distinction appears in Missouri's constitutional delegation of legislative and judicial powers.

"The legislative power, subject to the limitations in the Constitution contained, is vested in a Senate and House of Representatives, to be styled 'the General Assembly of the State of Missouri.' The judicial power, as to matters of law and equity, except as in the Constitution otherwise provided, is vested in a Supreme Court, the St. Louis Court of Appeals, circuit courts, criminal courts, probate courts and municipal corporation courts. (Section 1, article 4, and section 1, article 6, Missouri Constitution.) Each power is thus by general grant 'confided to a separate magistracy,' as provided in article 3, and both are parts of the political power 'vested in and derived from the people' (section 1, article 2, Missouri Constitution), and distributed by the provisions of article 3.

"So in this State, if either department can be said to obtain its power by grant, the same can be said of the other department, and the powers of both are obviously derived from the people. Nevertheless, both departments are commonly spoken of as possessing inherent powers, and regardless of the soundness of these observations or the syllogism above stated, it is a fundamental principle of constitutional law that each department of Government, whether Federal or State, has, without any express grant, the inherent right to accomplish all objects naturally within the orbit of that department, not expressly limited by the fact of the existence of a similar power elsewhere or the express limitations in the Constitution.' (Andrew's American Law (second edition), volume 1, section 182, page 221; legal tender cases, 79 U. S. 457, 532, 556; and cases heretofore cited.)

Power to Admit or Disbar.

"It is not always easy to determine what objects are naturally within the range or orbit of a particular department of Government, but it will scarcely be denied that a primary object essentially within the orbit of the judicial department is that courts properly function in the administration of justice, for which purpose they were created, and in the light of judicial history they cannot long continue to do this without power to admit and disbar attorneys who from time immemorial have in a peculiar sense been regarded as their officers.

"Since the object is not naturally within the orbit of the legislative department, the power to accomplish it is in its exercise judicial and not legislative, although in the harmonious co-ordination of powers necessary to effectuate the aim and end of government it may be regulated by statutes to aid in the accomplishment of the object but not to frustrate or destroy it.

"Since this power as to judicial matters naturally belongs to the judicial department and is not expressly lodged elsewhere in the Constitution, it remains for us to determine whether it is excluded or restricted by any constitutional provision. Counsel for respondent say that it is excluded as to the Supreme Court by the provisions of sections 2 and 3 of Article VI, which allot 'appellate jurisdiction only' to that court, together with 'general superintending control over all in inferior courts' and 'power to issue writs or habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto, certiorari and other remedial writs and to hear and determine the same,' and such in effect were the minority views in the Selleck and Sizer and Gardner cases.

"The contention apparently grows out of the thought that disbarment is an adversary proceeding between parties which must fall within or without the allotted jurisdiction of cases. This is an erroneous conception. Disbarment is not an adversary proceeding in that sense. As said in Thornton on Attorneys at Law, volume 2, section 760, page 1171, n. 14, 'the inquiry is always in the nature of an investigation by the court into the conduct of one of its officers, and the exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction.'

"In Fairfield County Bar vs. Taylor, 60 Conn. 11, 15, it is said that such a proceeding is 'an investigation by the court into the conduct of one of its own officers, not the trial of an action or suit.' Also, In re Bowman, 7 Mo. App. 569, quoted with approval in State vs. Peck (Conn.) Ann. Cas. 1917 B. 227: 'The proceeding to disbar an attorney is neither a civil nor a criminal proceeding, but is a proceeding sui generis, the object of which is, not the punishment of the offender, but the protection of the court.' Also see (here follows another list of decisions). We find nothing in the foregoing sections or elsewhere in the fundamental law tending to exclude, limit or withhold such power from the courts.

"It may be that in the analysis of powers delegated under written constitutions it is not strictly accurate to speak of this right or power as inherent (15 C. J., sec. 30, p. 732), but metaphysical distinctions are not always helpful in the administration of justice. In a very practical sense, this power, whether deemed inherent or implied, naturally belongs to each department of government and to each 'separate magistracy' to which the power expressly delegated is confided. The term inherent is aptly descriptive of the identical power that was exercised by like agencies long before written constitutions were adopted, and inasmuch as the power still persists in full vigor in each of the three great branches of government its historical designation will hardly be abandoned, though for the purposes of this discussion the choice of adjectives is unimportant. The vital fact is that such power, independent of express grant, either constitutional or statutory, exists in the judicial branch of government, and, therefore, in courts which constitute the 'separate magistracy' to which the judicial power is expressly confided.

Jurisdiction in Richards Case.

Having thus disposed of the question of jurisdiction, Judge Atwood took up Richards' contention that the Court had no right to disbar him because he had been acquitted by a jury of the charge of kidnaping for ransom, that case having been based on the same allegations of fact as the disbarment proceeding. Richards also contended that the Bar Association's complaint charged him with a criminal offense involving moral turpitude, and that such charges were properly matter for indictment and trial, and not for disbarment proceedings. Of this, Judge Atwood says:

"The statutory reasons for suspension or disbarment of attorneys in this State are set forth in section 11707 R. S. 1929, which is as follows:

"'Any attorney or counselor at law may be removed or suspended from practice in the courts of this State for any of the following reasons: First, if he be convicted of any criminal offense involving moral turpitude; second, if he unlawfully retain his client's money or if he is guilty of any malpractice, fraud, deceit or misdemeanor whatsoever in his professional capacity; third, if he shall have been removed, suspended or disbarred from the practice of law in any other state or jurisdiction and shall fail to disclose such fact in his application for license to practice law in this State.'

"In performing the acts alleged in the complaint, respondent (Richards) is therein alleged to be guilty of 'a misdemeanor and malpractice in his professional capacity. The performance of the acts is alleged to have 'amounted to professional misconduct on the part of Paul Richards and was in violation of the statutes of this State, and was such conduct upon his part as to disqualify him from further acting as an attorney at law.' It thus appears that respondent is charged under the second classification of the reasons stated in the above statute for which an attorney may be removed or suspended, while respondent's disbarment is sought on the ground that the acts therein alleged amount to professional misconduct in violation of the statutes of this State, and on the further ground that such conduct on his part disqualified him from further acting as an attorney at law.

Casts Aside Acquittal Defense.

"Now respondent contends that certain of the acts alleged in effect charge him with the commission of a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude,' conviction of which is the first reason for disbarment named in the statute, and that having been acquitted on such a criminal charge based on the same acts, such acts may not be charged and proved as reasons for his disbarment. Assuming without deciding that the indictment was based on the acts referred to, it certainly does not follow that after acquittal thereon these same acts may not be charged and proved as reasons for disbarment if they in fact show that respondent is unfit to continue in the practice of law. The great weight of authority is that statutory grounds of disbarment are not exclusive. (A list of authorities follows.)

"Furthermore, we can think of no good reason why any misbehavior by respondent 'in his professional capacity,' even though it reach the gravity of a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude,' is not a proper matter for investigation and disbarment as 'a misdemeanor and malpractice in his professional capacity.'

"Long ago the St. Louis Court of Appeals very sensibly held that the words 'misdemeanor in his professional capacity,' in the Missouri statute as to attorneys-at-law, are not used in the technical sense of offenses punishable by fine and imprisonment in jail, but as the equivalent of professional misbehavior. Criminal conviction of the graver offense is sufficient reason for disbarment without other investigation or determination, because the retention as an officer of the Court of one so convicted would be inimical to the public confidence and esteem so essential to courts in the efficient administration of justice.

"On the other hand, though for one reason or another such criminal proceeding results in an acquittal, the acts charged may be a proper matter for investigation and disbarment under other provisions of the statue or independent of the reasons named in the statute.

"It is true that by a bare majority this court once held, in construing a statute then in force, that 'it was never contemplated that the court before which the disbarment proceedings were pending should ascertain the facts in a case where the charges reached the gravity of indictable offenses,' and that the record from the court having charge of the criminal proceedings was binding upon the court hearing the disbarment proceedings whether it showed acquittal or conviction. (State ex rel. Selleck vs. Reynolds, 252 Mo. 369, 383, 158 S. W. 671).

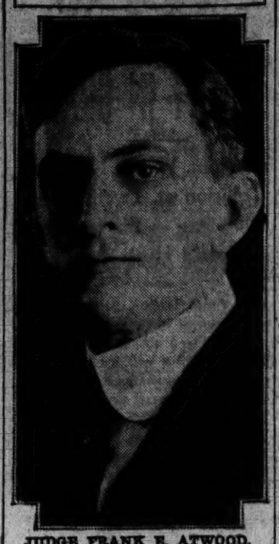

"The fallacy of this majority holding was clearly indicated in two dissenting opinions. As heretofore stated, disbarment is not a criminal proceeding. Its purpose is not to punish but to ascertain those whose conduct has demonstrated their unfitness to practice law and to deprive them of their previously acquired right to serve as officers of the court, and the inquiry is not limited to conduct in the presence of the court or to matters connected with a case in court. Any statutory enactment undertaking to make an acquittal in a criminal prosecution a bar to such an investigation would be, as heretofore, suggested, an unconstitutional encroachment of the legislative upon the judicial department of government, and such is the weight of well reasoned authority. (List of authorities.)

"A few years after the majority opinion in the Selleck case was handed down, the General Assembly removed the excuse for this judicial aberration by repealing section 956 R. S. 1909 and enacting a new section in lieu thereof (Laws 1919, pp. 151-3), now section 11712 R. S. 1929, the pertinent provisions of which are as follows:

"'If the charge allege a conviction for any criminal offense involving moral turpitude, the court shall, on production of the record of such conviction, remove the attorney so convicted or suspend such attorney from practice for a limited time, according to the nature of the offense, as the court may deem just, and without further trial. If the attorney be acquitted or discharged upon his trial, or if he be charged under the second, third or fourth clause of 11707, and appears at the time fixed by court and denies the charges preferred against him, or having been notified as required by section 11709 or 11710, fails to appear, the court shall forthwith hear the evidence offered in support of said charge and the evidance offered by the accused, and shall determine the matter without delay.'

"Counsel for respondent suggest that the above portion of section 11712 which refers to the acquittal or discharge of an attorney 'can be construed in only one logical, reasonable and equitable way—that is, that it refers to the acquittal or discharge of an attorney of some offense which does not involve moral turpitude.' The legislative intent is too plain to admit of any such construction. The acquittal or discharge must be 'upon his trial' and the only trial mentioned or referred to in the statute is one for a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude.' The last sentence above quoted obviously means as heretofore stated, that notwithstanding such acquittal or discharge, evidence as to the commission of acts upon which the criminal prosecution was based may be heard and determined in a proceeding to remove or suspend an attorney if appropriately charged either under or independent of the statute."

JEWISH QUESTION ENTERS NEW YORK MAYORALTY FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The question of anti-Semitism entered the three-cornered struggle for the mayoralty yesterday.

Joseph V. McKee, accused of criticising the ethics of Jewish school children in an article written in 1915, denies it, and struck back at his fusion opponent, Fiorello H. La Guardia.

"Mr. La Guardia," said McKee, "has deliberately, viciously and for self gain brought the religious question into this campaign by misinterpreting the intent and spirit of a single paragraph in an article written almost 20 years ago."

His denial that any attack on Jews "was made or intended" followed a demand by Samuel Untermyer, lawyer, that McKee, the Recovery party candidate for Mayor, explain.

Untermyer said that if published reports of the articles, written while McKee was a teacher, were correct, they constituted a "false, distorted and gross libel."

Nathan Straus Jr., Recovery party candidate for aldermanic president and himself a Jew, said there was no man in the country "more completely free from racial or religious intolerance" than McKee.

A registration of 2,322,382 voters indicated the wide interest in the campaign. This is only 16,422 fewer than for last year's presidential election, which set a record.

WIFE DIVORCES J. S. CARR, FORMER CASHIER OF BANK

Alleges He Deserted Her Two and Half Years After His Release From Prison.

Mrs. Lee B. Carr, proprietor of a dress shop in the Melbourne Hotel, was granted a divorce today from Joseph S. Carr, onetime cashier of the defunct Chippewa Bank, who wrecked that institution by embezzling $710,000 more than 10 years ago.

Mrs. Carr, alleging desertion, testified her husband left her Sept. 1, 1931, two and one-half years after he had been released from prison where he served almost five years on his plea of guilty to four embezzlement charges. They were married in Mexico, Mo., in 1912. Mrs. Carr said the last she heard of her husband he was in Cameron County, Texas. She did not ask alimony. There are no children.

DOLLAR UP SHARPLY IN LONDON

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The American dollar at one time gained 17 cents today but reacted to close at $4.51, only six cents better than Saturday. The chief factor was hasty covering by continental speculators on week-end developments, supplemented by local American buying with the proceeds of gold currency sales. The sentiment was helped by the belief the United States does not intend to bring about drastic inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The American dollar closed strong today at 18.06 francs ($5.53 cents to the franc) compared with the opening figure of 17.87 (5.59 cents to the franc.)

COFFMAN AND NOVACK BRIDGE CHAMPIONS

Sims System Used by Winners in St. Louis Tournament Play.

Playing consistently accurate bridge, Raymond Henry Coffman, 4615 Lindell boulevard, and Alvin S. Novack, 705 Alhambra Court, East St. Louis, won the St. Louis contract championship early yesterday in the final match at the Coronado Hotel, turning in the highest score of 26 pairs.

Novack and Coffman, employing the Sims system, ran up an imposing total of 263 match points for a substantial lead over the runner-up pair, William M. Everett, 4311 West Pine boulevard, and Walter B. Trask, 5556 Clemens avenue, who had a total of 242½.

Play in the final match began at 8:30 p. m. Saturday and continued into yesterday morning with a brief recess in which the contestants had coffee and sandwiches. Play was concluded at 3 a. m., but it was 4:30 before the auditors had figured out the score which gave the championship to the Coffman-Novack pair.

The victory of Coffman and Novack, who have been playing together for more than a year, gives them possession of the Hugo F. Urbauer trophy for the coming year. They will also receive medals from the United States Bridge Association.

The 20 highest pairs in the match also will compete for the St. Louis team-of-four championship to be played Thursday and Friday nights at the Coronado Hotel.

SAFE MATCH INVENTOR DIES

Frank F. Somers Revolutionized Industry in 1904.

By the Associated Press.

SAGINAW, Mich., Oct. 16.—Frank F. Somers, former match manufacturer who was credited with inventing the double-dip match with the safety head which revolutionized the industry in 1904, died at his home yesterday. He was 56 years old.

Sommers was secretary and treasurer of the Sommers Bros. Match Co., of Saginaw, until it was taken over by the Diamond Match Co.

Demand for Free Meals Larger.

The number of unemployed men served at Father Dempsey's free lunchroom, 1209 North Sixth street, has increased in recent weeks, with 24,457 meals served last week. A total of 600 baskets of food were distributed to families by the Daughters of Charity.

I. C. C. IS GRANTED REVIEW OF RAILROAD STOCK RULING

Its Order for Sale of Pennsylvania' System's Wabash Holdings Was Set Aside.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission was granted a review by the Supreme Court today of the decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals setting aside its order directing the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Co. to divest themselves of stock of the Wabash and of the Lehigh Valley railroads.

In May, 1929, the commission began proceedings to inquire into the acquisition of stock in the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley. It acted under the terms of the Clayton anti-trust act on the theory that the Pennsylvania Co., which acquired the stock, was serving as the agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that in effect the railroad had obtained control of 30 per cent of the Lehigh Valley and 49½ per cent of the Wabash stock. The Wabash at that time owned 19 per cent of the Lehigh Valley.

The complaint alleged that this stock ownership would substantially lessen competition between the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley and the Wabash railroads.

NAZI ASSAILANT OF AMERICAN STILL IN CONCENTRATION CAMP

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd received a written communication from the Foreign Office today that the assailant of Dr. Daniel Mulvihill was arrested Aug. 24 and placed in a German concentration camp, where he has remained since.

Dr. Mulvihill, whose home is at Danbury, Conn., and who is connected with the Long Island Medical College at Brooklyn, was struck on the head in Berlin Aug. 8 for failing to salute a National Socialist detachment.

In the same communication, the Foreign Office said two men who struck Roland Velz of Meriden, Conn., when he failed to salute the Nazi emblem, were found at Duesseldorf Saturday and taken to Berlin for investigation.

In regard to other cases, the Foreign Office said the German Government was doing everything possible to expedite a checkup.

Three Missouri Convicts Escape.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Three short-term convicts at the Missouri Penitentiary escaped yesterday from an orchard at the Missouri Training School at Boonville, where they were on detail. The three are: S. M. Cooper, Buchanan County: Lloyd Randolph, Jackson County, and Charles Hargrave, Vernon County.

PRESIDENT OPENS NATIONAL RELIEF CANVASS OF 1933

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Again stressing state and local responsibility in the unemployment relief program, President Roosevelt last night opened the four-week charity campaign of the 1933 Mobilization for Human Needs with an address by radio from the White House. He asserted persons who wanted the Feedral Government to assume the whole burden were "buck-passers."

The President appealed to "the individual American citizen to continue to do his or her part, even more unselfishly than in the past, and repeated that the Government would not let anyone starve this winter.

Text of Address.

"I have spoken on several occasions of the vital importance to our country that private charity in all that broad term covers, must be kept up at least to the levels, and I hope even beyond the levels, of former years.

"At this opening of the four weeks' 1933 mobilization for human needs, I want not only to reaffirm what I have said before, but to stress the fact that the fine teamwork in the recovery program cannot be successful if an important horse is lying back in the traces.

"It is true that I have declared that Government must not let any one starve this winter; but at the same time this policy is predicated on the assumption that the individual American citizen will continue to do his and her part, even more unselfishly than in the past.

"Let me stress that a great many people will still need the help of relief agencies this winter. It is true that because of a partial, but I believe a steadily growing, re-employment of the unemployed, many families and many individuals have been taken off the local relief rolls.

"But, on the other hand, the needs of those who are still on the rolls is proportionately greater than it was before, and, in addition to the work of direct relief, it is necessary for us to continue our support of the permanent hospital and welfare services that exist in every county and in most communities.

"A number—I am glad to say a small number—of people have written to me to express the thought that all relief work should be taken over by the Government, and have intimated that they would not feel any duty this year to subscribe to local relief or local charity.

"These people have a wholly wrong slant on the fundamental basis of our American civilization. They deny the civic responsibility of the individual and would seek to toss every problem into the lap of Government. They are 'buck passers.'

"On the other hand, the overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly that it is first the duty of the individual and the local community to do all that they can to maintain relief and welfare; that it is then the obligation of the state goverament to supplement local efforts, and that finally, if all of this put together is not sufficient, the Federal Government stands ready to help.

"This mobilization for human needs will keep the long established hospital and welfare services going. These services existed long before the depression; they will exist long after the depression is over.

"I ask every citizen to give his or her support to the community chests and to other organizations that raise funds for the regular welfare services—bodies which express the instincts of charity, of humanity and of neighborliness. They are an essential to the whole American scheme of life. Their meaning is expressed in the name—the mobilization for human needs.

"I am glad indeed that my old friends, Newton D. Baker, once more is heading the forces of mobilization and this time we are happy that it is a mobilization for peace.

BYRD IN BED WITH SEVERE ATTACK OF LARYNGITIS

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 16.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the explorer, was confined to his bed at a hotel here today sufferin- with an acute attack of laryngitis and general pharyngytis, it was announced by Dr. Guy Shirley, physician with the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

"If his condition has not improved by this afternoon," Dr. Shirey stated, "I expect to call in other physician for a consultation."

He expressed the opinion, however, that Admiral Byrd's illness, which last night prevented his personal appearance for farewell exercises at the navy yard, would be well cleared up by tonight.

"I went over his chest carefully early today," Dr. Shirey continued, "and found no trouble there. His throat, however, is in such a serious condition that no one is being allowed to see him today.

"Admiral Byrd is living now under such a tremendous mental tension as he goes about the job of arranging details for his second trip to the South Pol- and has been under such tension for so long a time that his resistance, naturally, has been greatly reduced."

TO PARDON VIRGINIA CONVICTS IN SLEEPING SICKNESS TEST

Gov. Pollard Soon Will Free Ten Who Let Mosquitoes Bite Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 16.—Gov. Pollard indicated today that he would soon pardon 10 penitentiary inmates who allowed themselves to be bitten by mosquitoes which had bitten persons suffering from encephalitis in St. Louis.

None of the 10, who have been confined to a radio-equipped screened room, has suffered any ill effects.

Health Commissioner Warren F. Draper said: "The morale of the 10 has been excellent and they are glad to have the opportunity to be of public service in the test. Several public health service men have subjected themselves to bites of the mosquitoes. Another week will elapse before something definite can be said as to the experiment here."

Many other penitentiary inmates, after observing the original volunteers, have offered to submit to tests in return for freedom.

Missouri Senator Says He Intends to Introduce Amendment to First Revenue Bill From House.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri announced Saturday night that it was his intention to introduce as an amendment to the next revenue bill a provision for the imposition of a super surtax on income derived from all foreign securities; the amendment would include national, municipal and corporate securities, issued abroad, Clark said.

He said that his amendment would apply only to income from foreign securities purchased hereafter in this country.

Clark's statement follows: "Of course, since revenue measures must originate in the House of Representatives, I cannot introduce this measure as an original bill in the Senate except to have it printed for information. However, it is my intention to prepare it and have it ready to offer as an amendment to the first revenue measure which comes over from the House.

"Plundered Out of Billions.

"The American people have been plundered out of billions and billions of dollars in the last 15 years by the sale in this country of worthless securities and securities of doubtful value. Such unpatriotic firms of international bankers as Dillon, Reed & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Morgan & Co., the Chase Securities Co. and the National City Co. have profited to the tune of scores of millions by foisting these issues upon American investors.

"One feature of these sales was the liberal rate of interest allowed upon these securities. Naturally, being under no particular obligation as to what was done with the proceeds of the money and not being bound by the statements of American underwriters, these foreigners were able to pay a much more attractive rate of interest than the American Government or American municipalities.

"Buncoing the American People."

"These rates were only less potent than the 'ballyhoo' of the underwriters in 'buncoing' the American people into buying the securities. Many of these securities were from countries which have now put themselves into the position of being international dead-beats by refusing to pay the United States the money borrowed from it and 'thumbing thtir noses' at all attempts to collect it.

"The measure which I propose to introduce is designed to put a brake upon such frauds upon the American investing public by the imposition of an additional tax of from 1 to 3 per cent upon income derived from these foreign securities. I shall also endeavor to discourage the efforts of the international bankers to mislead the public by imposing a super surtax running up to 90 per cent upon profits derived from underwriting and floating foreign securities."

Government Report Favors Increasing Water Supply by Use of Boards.

A report favoring increasing the available water supply in the Monongahela River in Pennsylvania and West Virginia by surmounting existing dams with flash boards, but opposing lock dimension changes at dams 10 to 15, inclusive, was announced in St. Louis today by the War Department divisional engineer's office.

Col. George R. Spalding, in charge of St. Louis office, said "the principal grounds upon which these conclusions are based are that the further benefits expected from lock modifications are not great enough to warrant the necessary expenditure therefor."

An appeal from the decision may be made to the Board of Engineers for Rivers anad Harbors, a permanent body at Washington.

HOLDUP VICTIM FALLS DEAD WHEN HE LOOKS AT SUSPECT

New York Cafe Cashier Suffers Heart Attack Half Hour After Robbery.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Henry Harmon, a restaurant cashier, was the victim of a holdup man yesterday. The man escaped, but half an hour later Harmon was called on by police to look at a suspect, William Duff.

Brought face to face with the prisoner, Harmon fell dead of a heart attack. Police said that if he had suffered the heart attack during the actual holdup the charge against Duff would have been first degree murder.

FEDERAL HOUSING PROGRAM BEGINS TO TAKE SHAPE

DWELLINGS WILL BE RENTED OR SOLD

Administration to Correlate Home Agency's Activities With Subsistence Farm Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — To speed development of President Roosevelt's plans for housing and feeding the nation's unfortunates, administration aids are proceeding as rapidly as possible toward creation of the contemplated Federal Housing Corporation.

In another phase of similar work, the Public Works Administration, which will supply the finances, has assigned experts to draw plans for the home-constructing agency and to correlate its activities with the projected subsistence farm program.

Incorporation papers have been prepared for the housing unit, which will be under the general direction of Secretary Ickes, Public Works Administrator.

Administration officials said today that, in general, the plan would be construction of individual homes and apartment buildings, none to be ostentations, but "clean and decent places," to take the place of existing slum dwellings.

Cost Not Yet Estimated.

No one would estimate how much might be spent. One official remarked that "at least eight billions has been suggested from here and there," while others pointed to expenditures of around $40,000,000 for slum clearance already authorized.

Buildings will be rented and sold on the partial payment plan, officials said, adding that whether apartment spaces would be sold probably would depend upon the persons in them and any sort of co-operative arrangement they might work out to underwrite repayment.

It was indicated that the apartments would be "walk-ups," with individual or row-houses along the same pattern.

Just what arrangements would be worked out to pay for the structures in which individual families lived was another matter to which officials were giving attention, realizing that some persons might be unable to make any down payment or a very small one at the most.

Coincident to the housing plans, officials are studying a correlation with subsistence farming, in the belief that it might be desired in some instances to move families to farms from areas being cleared for homes.

Subsistence Farm Plan.

These settlements, along with Federal housing developments, will be under governmental regulation to supervise the development and advancement of the persons as well as to guard the Federal investment.

The Public Works Administration was given $25,000,000 for the subsistence farming program, under which families are to be placed on small tracts of land to grow their own foodstuffs and become economically independent through allied educational and industrial development.

Approximately $8,000,000 is to be used in building 23 villages of such families, with about 200 families in each, in mining areas in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Western Kentucky.

The first of these was ordered located near Morgantown, W. Va. Each family there will have from two to four acres and a small house, to cost about $2000. It will become their property under a 20-year purchase plan.

Federal Judge Briggle to Hear Bankers' Petition at Springfield, Ill., Friday.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 16. — Millard F. Dunlap, 76 years old, and William G. Goebel, former officials of the defunct Ayers National Bank of Jacksonville, who were recently convicted of making false entries in the bank's books and of conspiracy, were denied a new trial by United States District Judge Charles Briggle Saturday.

Sentence was not pronounced.

Permission to file a petition for probation was granted. It will be heard Friday. Motion for arrested judgment was made, but also denied.

Dunlap and Goebel were convicted Oct. 7. The false entry and conspiracy charges centered on a $30,000 note signed by B. M. Flynn of Geneva and former State Treasurer Oscar Nelson. Interest payments on the loan had never been made although recorded on the bank's books.

Dunlap waits another trial with Andrew Russel, former State Auditor and State Treasurer, on Federal charges growing out of the bank crash last November. Other indictments also have been returned in Circuit Court at Jacksonville against the bank officials.

ACCUSED MINISTER FOUND DEAD

Body of Dr. E. L. Thompson in His Auto in Louisiana.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 16.—Dr. Eustis L. Thompson, Minister of Dallas, Tex., and Shreveport, awaiting trial on Federal charge of sending obscene matter through the mails, was found dead today in his automobile in a woods near Pleasant Hill, La.

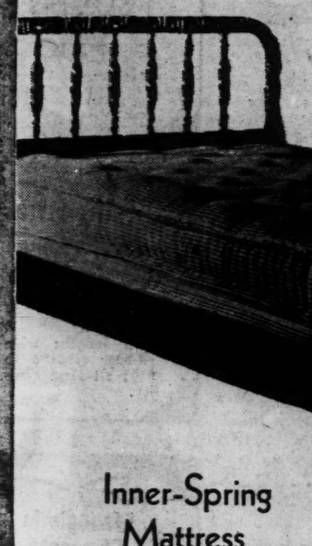

Relatives had reported his disappearance to police, expressing fears he had either met with violence or had become temporarily deranged. A message received here by a brother, W. W. Thompson, an attorney of Lake Charles, La., said the minister had evidently been dead for three or four days.

The Biltmore Cafe, 5606 Delmar boulevard, was robbed of $385 last night by three armed men, who held up Mrs. Emelia Sarros, wife of George Sarros, the proprietor, and Frank Ellsworth, the chef. The money was taken from the cash register.

Robert Smith, Negro, reported that while agents of a policy game were meeting at 2330 Division street, three Negroes entered, stole $130 from a desk drawer and escaped. Police arrested the 35 Negroes present on gambling charges.

Harry J. Swoboda, grocer, had just put his car in his garage at 3960 Fillmore street late Saturday night when two armed robbers took $170 and his keys.

A safe at the Seidlitz & Baeser Drug Co., 362 North Boyle avenue, was broken open by burglars who stole $180 in cash, $35 worth of stamps, bond coupons worth $57, two gallons of alcohol and narcotics valued at $50.

Tear gas set off when burglars hammered off the combination of a safe at the Haase Realty Co., 921 Chestnut street, drove the burglars away without loot.

Entering a vacant flat above the John F. Weber Grocery Co., 4300 Olive street, burglars bored holes into the floor until they were able to drop through to the balcony of the store. They stole $30 from one safe, but were unable to reach the money compartment in another.

Jewelry valued at $610 and $37.50 in cash were stolen from the home of Henry D. Steimke, 1102 Dover place, by burglars.

Noticing an intoxicated Negro wearing a bright new lumber jack coat at Twenty-third street and Delmar boulevard yesterday, two officers arrested him. He admitted he had broken into the dry goods stores of Alexander Rochman, 2310 Franklin avenue, and Morris Kurtz, 2306 Franklin, early in the day, stealing $2 and the coat from the first store and $11 from the other.

MISSOURI DUCK SEASON OPENS

No Large Flights of Waterfowl Reported So Far.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—With the open season on waterfowls in Missouri officially opening at noon today, no large flights of ducks and geese have been reported.

Wilbur C. Buford, State Game and Fish Commissioner, said an increasing number of migratory birds would be reported throughout the State as colder weather approached. General Federal regulations on daily bag limits are: Ducks, 12; geese, including brant, 4; rails and gallinules, 25; jacksnipe, 20; woodcock, 4; mourning doves, 18; band-tailed pigeons, 10. The season closes at sundown on Dec. 15.

Crushed to Death by Elevator.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—J. C. Figg was crushed to death yesterday, between an elevator cage and the third floor at a hotel. Joseph Lahondi and R. H. Stevens, World's Fair visitors from Detroit, were trapped in the elevator which had stalled. Figg opened the third floor door and was looking up the shaft to ascertain the trouble when the cage suddenly dropped, crushing him. Firemen worked two hours to extricate Figg's body.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE RETURNED IN DEATH OF JOHN M'TIGUE

He Was Unemployed and Had Been Under Treatment for Nervous Breakdown.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide while suffering from a temporary mental aberration was returned today in the case of John McTigue, who ended his life with a revolver Saturday night in a garage in back of his home, 538 West Hurck street.

McTigue, 38 years old, had been under treatment for a nervous breakdown, his brother-in-law, Patrick Cain, testified. He had been unemployed after working as a clerk in a gambling establishment at Venice. He was a brother of Peter McTigue, Cuckoo gangster, who was killed by rival gangsters three years ago near Valmeyer, Ill.

3 BOYS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

By the Associated Press.

BOWLING GREEN, O., Oct. 16.—Returning home from a football game, three high school students were killed in an automobile collision near here Saturday night. They were William Woodruff, 17 years old; Rudolph Scheihauer Jr., 15, and David Sears, 16.

The boys were returning to Bowling Green from Lima, O., when their car struck another driven by Albert Beck, 36, Detroit, Mich. Beck suffered a broken knee cap, skull and internal injuries. His son, Richard, 12, was cut on the leg.

U. S. DENIES WELLES AIDED CUBAN OFFICERS

State Department Asserts Ambassador Did Not Advise Them to Take Refuge in Hotel.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — The State Department yesterday asserted that Ambassador Sumner Welles at Havana had no connection with the assembling of Cuban army officers at the National Hotel there, from which they were subsequently dislodged after a pitched battle with soldiers.

The department's statement, understood to have been prompted by the circulation of rumors in Havana, said:

"The department has been informed that an effort is being made to involve the Embassy at Havana in the action taken by the Cuban army officers last month in taking refuge in the National Hotel, and in subsequent events.

"With regard to this matter, the department can state unequivocally that, far from instigating the assembling of the officers in the National Hotel, Ambassador Welles had no knowledge of their intention until the event took place. Moreover, Mr. Welles was equally unaware of any of their subsequent plans, never having spoken to any of them, either individually or collectively, or having attempted to communicate with them since they took refuge in the National Hotel."

S. B. Montgomery Dies at Quincy,

By the Associated Press.

QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 16.—S. B. Montgomery, 84 years old, banker and former president of the Illinois Bankers' Association, died at his home here last night. County Judge in Schuyler County before coming here, Montgomery quit his law practice to become an officer of the State Savings, Loan and Trust Co. Bank. Until the bank closed two years ago, he was at various times its president and chairman of the board.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters LBQ stamped on every tablet.

2000 TO GET JOBS ON MISSOURI RIVER

Completion of Work Between Kansas City and St. Louis to Take Six Months.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16.—F. W. Kassebaum Jr., regional inspector for the Public Works Administration, said that more than 200 projects utilizing Federal funds are under way in Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

More than 50 per cent of the road work planned has been started. Many other projects are being lined up rapidly.

The army engineers' office here was notified by Washington headquarters to receive bids immediately for completion of Missouri River work between Kansas City and St. Louis under a $3,600,000 appropriation. The work will give employment to 2000 men for from six to eight months.

Capt. Theodore Wyman Jr., district engineer, said engineer estimates have placed at approximately $1,800,000, just half of the appropriation, the cost of the eight projects involved. Bids are to be opened between Oct. 20 and 26. The work between Hermann and St. Louis is to be handled by the St. Louis district engineer officers.

The eight projects: Providence and Sandy Hook bends, centering about three miles upstream from Sandy Hook, 4710 feet of pile dikes and 1000 feet of revetment.

Boonville reach to Diana bend, centering at Boonville, 4210 feet of pile dikes.

Chamois bend to McGirk's Island reach, centering about six miles downstream from Chamois, 4895 feet of pile dikes and 2200 feet of revetment.

Camden bend to Baltimore bend, centering three miles upstream from Lexington, 7815 feet of pile dikes and 1255 feet of crib dikes.

Randolph bend to Jackson's bend, centering about 10 miles downstream from Kansas City, 5800 feet of pile dikes.

Rising Creek bend to Isbell reach, centering about six miles downstream from Osage City, 300 feet crib dikes and 6800 feet of pile dike.

The Missionary, a Passenger Train, Crashes Into Local Stopped on Track.

By the Associated Press.

MARCELINE, Mo., Oct. 16.—Two trainmen were injured when the Santa Fe Railroad's passenger train The Missionary, California to Chicago, crashed into the rear of a mixed local train seven miles west of here yesterday.

Peter Rowan, engineer of The Missionary, was taken to a Fort Madison (Ia.) hospital. J. F. Zircher, Kansas City, Kan., baggage man on the local train, also was seriously injured.

The local train had been stopped on the track by an eastbound freight train which had been unable to pull up a grade. The engine of the local was detached and used in an attempt to help the freight train climb the incline.

MAN WHO TRIED TO ENTER HOUSE BEATEN BY CAPTORS

Woman Attempts to Bar Him, Then Runs to Street and Calls for Help.

A 37-year-old Negro who attempted to force his way into the home of Miss Irene McLear, 1610 Elliot avenue, last night was captured and severaly beaten by three young men on whom Miss McLear called for aid.

Miss McLear said the Negro knocked at the front door at 10 o'clock and asked to enter. She attempted to slam the door, but when he put his foot inside, she opened the door, ran out and down the street calling for help.

The young men, Lloyd Leahy, 2821 Madison street, and Elmer Tobin and Kilbert Cassel, both of 2701A Howard street, said that the Negro fought with them when they stopped him for questioning. He was treated at City Hospital No. 2 for cuts and bruises and taken to the Dayton Street Police Station.

CHECK-UP ORDERED ON BROKERS' LOSSES

Bureau of Internal Revenue to Investigate Validity of Claims.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Bureau of Internal Revenue today announced plans for a checkup of brokerage accounts to determine the validity of claims for losses in the last few years.

Forms have been printed on which brokers will be required to "render correct returns showing the names of customers for whom such person has transacted any business, with such details as to profits, losses or other information as will enable the commissioner (of internal revenue) to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains of such customers has been paid."

"The commissioner feels that, due to the wide fluctuations of the market during the several years indicated above there were probably many transactions which were not properly reported in the income tax returns; and that because of the fact that certain individuals have taken advantage of the opportunity through sales that have a fictitious character as between husband and wife or between a taxpayer and an individual in close relationship to him, to distort taxable income through claims of losses that have no basis in fact, it is particularly appropriate this year to invoke the authority conferred upon him by the acts mentioned above (the revenue laws of 1928 and 1932).

"The undertaking is one of considerable magnitude and one which will necessitate much additional work on the part of the bureau forces. The bureau, however, feels that in no other manner can it conform to the requirements of the tax law which directs the commissioner to conduct examinations into the records of the taxpayers to determine whether or not tax schedules as filed are correct."

PROJECT FOR JERSEY COUNTY EROSION WORKERS ANNOUNCED

Nursery for Growing Trees to Be Established and Grafts From Trees to Be Used.

A new project for the Jersey County erosion camp has been announced for the fall and winter months by J. L. Allen, superintendent of the work. He states that a nursery for growing trees to be used in erosion work in this section of the State will be established and grafts from hardwood trees such as walnut and hickory will be made and developed.

Farmers of the community who have one or more black walnut locust trees on their land and are willing to do so, will furnish seed for the work. The Civilian Conservation Corps will gather the seed and store it until spring when it is contemplated that a temporary nursery will be established. The black locust will be planted in crowded areas, gully banks and on soil saving dams now being constructed so that by the time such dams have rotted away, the trees will be of such size as to hold erosion in check.

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches and pain of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia...the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

TWO BROTHERS, SISTER SLAIN IN FAMILY ROW

San Antonio Police Say Shooting Started in Quarrel Over Money.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 16.—Two brothers and a sister were killed at an apartment here yesterday in a shooting which police believe arose over financial matters. The dead: Miss Lulu White, 62 years old; Valentine White, 55, and Emmanuel J. White, 51, reputedly wealthy.

Before she died, Miss White told Chief of Police Kilday that she and her brother, Valentine, were at dinner when Emmanuel came into the room armed with two pistols and started shooting. She said Valentine leaped to his feet, staggered as if hit, then ran to a bedroom, apparently for a weapon.

Police found Miss White shot through the back and in one arm. Valentine was in the kitchen, beside him a revolver from which six shots had been fired. Emmanuel was found on a back porch with an automatic pistol and an empty revolver. The revolver had been fired six times.

On the dining room table was about $30 in cash together with some acount books. More than $5000 in bills of small denomination was found tucked away in various hiding places.

TWO HOUSES STENCH BOMBED

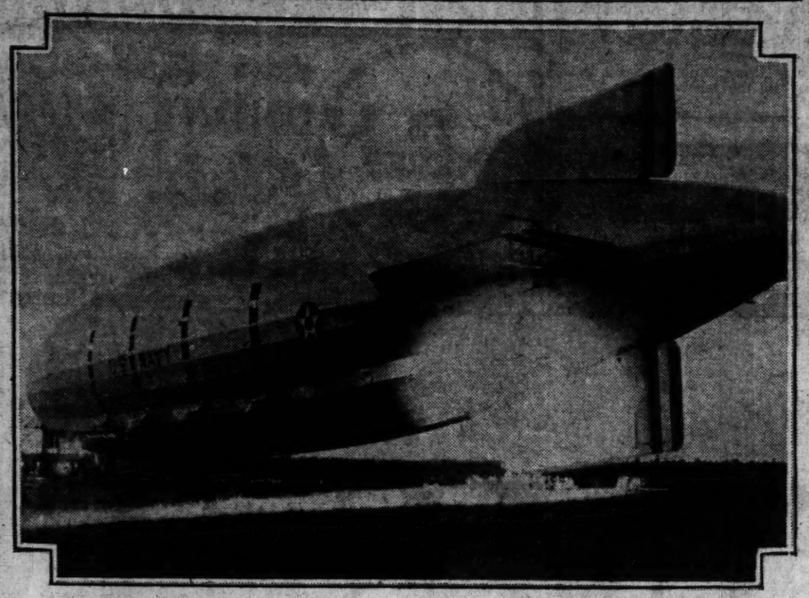

One Occupied by Garment Worker, Other by Striker.

Stench bombs were thrown at the homes of two persons involved in the garment workers' strike last night.

William Lane, listed in hospital records as 84 years old, and residing at 503 South Broadway, died of encephalitis today.

Since July 30, when the first death occurred in St. Louis County, 116 residents of the city, 84 of the county and four of the East Side have died of the disease, which health authorities report out of the epidemic stage.

Clinical aspects of encephalitis are to be discussed at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow at St. Louis Medical Society, 3839 Lindell boulevard, under auspices of the St. Louis clinics. Speakers will include Health Commissioner Bredeck, Dr. G. O. Broun, Dr. George Ives and Dr. J. F. McFadden, with discussion led by Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella.

PREACHES ON JESUS' MESSAGE TO INDUSTRY

Dr. Lampe Says Service Must Supplant Profit and Power as Basic Motive.

The Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe, pastor of West Presbyterian Church, preached last night on the topic, "Jesus Speaks to Industry." The sermon was the third in a series on "Jesus and the Present Crisis."

"Jesus faced in an acute form the very things that we face in an acute form," the minister said. "He saw that the difficulty was more than a local one. It was more than ridding his people of the oppression of Rome and of an oppressive religious leadership. At bottom, the question was, how to rid the heart of man of the desire and willingness to exploit his brother.

"Unless that deeper problem could be solved, the overthrow of Rome would simply destroy one form of its operation, and it would break forth in a different place. So Jesus set himself to attack the main problem, the inner motive, the fundamental philosophy of life. He announced a new order of society which he called 'the Kingdom of God,' and he summoned men to become a part of it. He announced that society must be built on a permanent foundation of love to all men.

Attacked Financial Motive.

"Jesus attacked the motive of financial dominance. It was not the possession of wealth that Jesus attacked, but the motive—the lust for its possession. If Jesus could speak directly to this age, he most surely would speak with great plainness with reference to letting the lust for money come to a controlling place in life. He would say that any industry controlled by such a motive is a menace to the Kingdom of God.

"The other point of Jesus' attack was the motive of social domination. The class warfare of our day is not so much a struggle to overthrow a tyranny as it is to change the group that is in control.

"I am sure that if Jesus were to speak to industry today, he would say that in so far as it had to support itself by suppression of any group, or by keeping oppressive dominion over any group, it was organized on the wrong basis, and was holding back the Kingdom of God.

"The thing that he saw to be essential was a revolution in the desires of men. Until men can lose their little selves in an overmastering passion for the wellbeing of all, they will not be able to find life at all.

When Answer Will Be Found.

"But I hear Mr. Practical Mansay, it simply cannot be done; people will not work unless there is the possibility of wealth and power; there is no way of organizing life on any other basis.

"The simple answer is that the way of doing it will be discovered when the people really believe it is the thing to do. In this world, we know that the way will be found to do whatever when believe is necessary.

"As a minister, I cannot tell you how to organize a business or an industry on the motive of unselfish and loving service. But I can tell you that, when men who know how to organize business become convinced that Jesus was right, that the thing needed is a revolution in the motives of men, and set themselves seriously to find the framework of such a society, they will not be long in finding it. It can be done when we are persuaded that it ought to be done.

"The disaster we are experiencing is due to the working of these motives, the lust for wealth and the lust for power. The cure can come by forcibly curbing and controlling greed for profit and power—the effort of the followers of Marx and Mussolini—or by the way of Jesus, the revolution of motives within man, and c anizing life, from inner choice, around the motive of loving service."

MACON MAKES COAST-TO-COAST TRIP IN 70 HOURS, 17 MINUTES

Navy Dirigible Enters Hangar at Sunnydale, Cal.; Commander Says It Met Every Test.

By the Associated Press.

SUNNYVALE, Cal., Oct. 16.—The giant United States navy dirigible Macon was in port here today, after a three-day cruise from Lakehurst, N. J.

The airship nosed into the mooring mast "cup" at 4:17 p. m. yesterday, 70 hours and 17 minutes after leaving Lakehurst. It was then anchored and wheeled into its hangar. Commander Alger H. Dresel said the Macon met every test on the long cruise and rode through storms and rain without strain.

SALINE COUNTY TO REDUCE WHEAT CROP 50,000 BUSHELS

2757 Acres Will Be Taken Out of Production; 312 Producers Sign Contracts.

By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 15.—There will be at least 50,000 fewer bushels of wheat produced in Saline County next season under the reduction contract of the benefit allotment plan of the Agriculture Administration Act, according to latest figures compiled by Henry W. Hamilton, county extension agent. There will be 2757 acres taken out of wheat production.

Thus far a total of 312 producers with 18,385 acres have signed the contract. The average yield of these producers for the harvest years, 1930 to 1932 inclusive, has been 18.2 bushels to the acre. The five-year average for the whole county during the years 1928-32 has been 749,641 bushels.

It is upon that figure that the Government has allotted a total benefit to the county of $121,100, contingent upon 100 per cent of the wheat acres being under contract.

"We already have more than 40 per cent of the wheat acreage of the county under the benefit allotment plan," Hamilton said. "I would not be surprised for the final figure to be around 60 per cent." All the larger wheat growers have applications in.

Saline County is the third wheat producing county in Missouri, St. Charles and Lafayette counties exceeding it in this grain.

FIRE ROUTS GIRL STUDENTS

$85,000 Damage to Dormitory at De Pauw University.

By the Associated Press.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Girl students at De Pauw University here were routed from their beds early yesterday by fire that nearly destroyed Mansfield Hall, oldest girls' dormitory on the university campus. The loss was placed at $85,000.

Robert Oxnam, son of the president of the university, G. Bromley Oxnam, was hurt when he was struck by falling debris while he was attempting to salvage some of the belongings of the girl students. Mansfield Hall was a three-story brick building. The third floor was destroyed and the other two floors were so badly damaged that executives said the walls would have to be torn down.

JAPANESE KIDNAP KOREAN

Seize Naturalized Chinese Citizen in Canton, Imprison Him.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, China, Oct. 16.—Seven men, including three Japanese, today kidnaped the naturalized Korean, Puo-Yui Jih, in Chinese territory in this city.

A motor car in which he was taken away later struck a bus. Police announced that the machine was registered as belonging to the Japanese Consul, but the Consul denied it. The kidnapers escaped after the crash and took their prisoner to Shamien, a Canton suburb, where he was put in the French jail. The Canton Mayor lodged a strong protest and demanded the release of the prisoner.

VARIETY STORE SALES GAINED IN SEPTEMBER

First Time in Three Years That Month Has Shown Increase Over Previous Year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — New Commerce Department figures on retail trade today showed that the nation spent more dollars in 5, 10 to a dollar stores in September than in August, and more than in September last year.

Some Government economists said the gains were not as large as hoped for, but the continuing upward trend of consumption was regarded as essentially helpful. Officials are watching the consumption figures closely at present to see if the nation's greatly increased production is being properly absorbed.

The figures showed gains in spending of about 7.5 per cent in September over August, and about five per cent in September this year over September last year.

These statistics covered only variety stores. The gain over August this year was smaller than in any of the previous three years, but this was partially accounted for by August's unseasonal gain of 3.4 per cent over July.

For the first time in this same period September showed an increase over September of the previous year. September, 1932, for example, was 11.4 under September, 1931; 1931 was 4.7 per cent under 1930, and 1930 was 8.4 per cent under 1929.

Government economists said increases were usual at this time of the year, but added they were particularly important at this time because of the unseasonal increases in production during the summer.

E. ST. LOUIS FIREMEN VOTE AGAINST GENERAL SALARY CUT

Decide Instead to Accept Plan Calling for Retirement of Five Men.

Members of the East St. Louis Fire Department voted yesterday in favor of retirement of five firemen rather than acceptance of a general 8 per cent salary reduction. They had been offered their choice of the two plans, in connection with the city's drastic economy program.

The retirement plan was chosen due to the fact that five members are already eligible for retirement, at pensions amounting to half their salaries, while if the salary reduction plan were adopted, pensions of all firemen would ultimately be affected.

The firemen, members of the American Federation of Labor, have not been paid for five and a half months. Their recommendations were to be submitted at a meeting of the City Council today.

FUNERAL OF SHOTGUN VICTIM

The funeral of Wayne Muskopf, 15-year-old deaf mute, who was killed Saturday when struck by a charge from a shotgun which had been placed on a stove at the home of his father, Peter Muskopf, near Mill stadt, Ill., will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

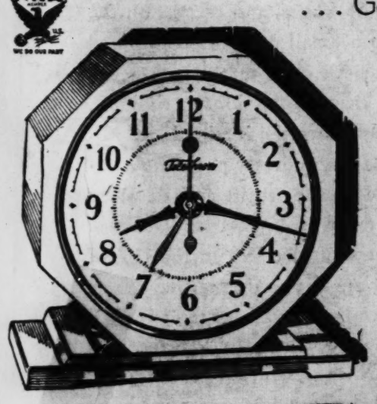

The boy, who lived at the home of William Winkler, 2204A South J[illegible]on avenue, during the week so he might attend Gallaudet School, usually spent the week-end at the home of his father, caring for his house. It is thought he placed the shotgun on the stove to clean the corner in which it stood and that it was discharged by the heat of the fire.

MINER'S HOUSE DYNAMITED AT GILCHRIST, ILL.; FAMILY OUT

Police Suspect Outbreak in Strife Between Rival Unions in Fulton County.

CANTON, Ill., Oct. 16.—The home of Clarence Maynard, president of a local of the United Mine Workers of America at Gilchrist, north of here, was dynamited late last night.

Gilchrist police said the investigation would be conducted on the theory that the dynamiting was an outbreak of strife between rival miners' factions in the Fulton County coal fields.

Maynard and members of his family were absent at the time of the explosion. The front part of the building was demolished and other portions were damaged.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

NEWSPAPER PRINTED ON LINEN; SILK EDGES

Story of Wedding of "Nick" and "Alice" Published in Utah in 1906.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—An Ogden (Utah) newspaper of Feb. 17, 1906, chronicling the wedding of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth, printed in its entirety on the finest linen and bound at the edges in silk, is temporarily in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress.

The library doesn't own the newspaper. It was brought to V. Volta Parma, Rare Book Room director, by a woman who, having received it from C. M. Jackson, the editor, wanted to know just how rare it was.

Parma said today that as far as he has been able to find out, this particular print is unique. Never to his knowledge was another complete newspaper printed on cloth. And only one such copy was made.

In other ways also, the account is rare. A personal friend of both the late Theodore Roosevelt and the late Nicholas Longworth, the editor, Jackson, took the liberty to chronicling the nuptials in a breezy Western way that was in marked contrast to the more conventional accounts in the Eastern papers.

In Breezy Western Style.

Up in the "left ear" box, instead of the weather report, was the word "Nick," an din the opposite box was the word "Alice."

Over the twin two-column front page cuts was the four-column head, "Alice and Nick Are Now One," and below was the cut line, "Two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one."

The well-written story did not stop with the dazzling immediate facts, but also furnished "background," such as:

"It is asserted that Miss Roosevelt said 'no' to his wooing at least a dozen times. She told him at a theater one night, in the presence of a box party, that she hated baldheaded men. He grinned good-naturedly and remarked that his future wife would be unable to pull his locks.

"It is said that he finally gained her consent to his suit while they were visiting the Imperial Palace at Pekin. As they entered the portal of the Emperor's home he asked her for the thirteenth time, 'Will you be my wife?' and she replied, 'I'll give you an answer before we leave this building.'"

"Began to Get a Bit Tiresome."

But it was in the editorial column that Jackson gave his breeziest summary of the occasion that he was determined to make a history that would last. Along with felicitations, he said:

"We are glad that it is all over, because it began to get a bit tiresome."

Newspaper readers, he said, had had Alice and Nick for breakfast and for the evening meal. Alice's "gown didn't fit on the right shoulder," her "dress didn't arrive on time," her "open-work stockings were a size too large." Nick's "white vest had a button off," he "had a sore throat and we had that for three days, he "got up and ate a square meal and they poured that into us."

"Personally, had we been Alice and Nick," said Jackson, "we would have taken a green street car, and would have ridden down the avenue up past the capitol and over in the vicinity of the Navy Yard and hunted up a Justice of the Peace."

Of the bride, the paper said: "No American girl ever received half the world-wide homage and adulation that has been showered upon Alice Roosevelt." And yet, he added, her "head has not been turned."

TWO MORE MEN ARRESTED IN JONESBORO CHURCH KILLING

Charged as Accessories in Slaying of Janitor by Preacher; Latter Bound Over to Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

JONESBORO, Ark., Oct. 16.—Two followers of the Rev. Dale S. Crowley in his turbulent fight to retain the pastorate of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle were arrested on accessory to murder charges Saturday, after the minister had been ordered held to the grand jury on a first degree murder charge for the slaying of J. W. MacMurdo, aged janitor of the church.

L. H. Kayre, a building contractor whom Crowley credited with saving his life during the shooting at the tabernacle last Tuesday night, and Tom Carter, former Deputy Sheriff and watchman at the church when Crowley was in control, were taken into custody on warrants issued by A. U. Tadlock, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney. Tadlock said the warrants were based on evidence that Carter struck MacMurdo over the head with a "blackjack" and Kayre hit him with a walking cane both before and after he was shot by Crowley.

TIME TO FIGHT

THE time has come when the intelligence of the country must speak its mind on the question of currency inflation, and speak it forcibly. It can no longer, it seems to this newspaper, stand by and permit the impression to gain ground in Washington that the Pittmans, the Thomases, the Bankheads and others of their kind are representative of the responsible and thinking mass of opinion in the nation.

There can be no question that those who understand monetary matters and who are familiar with the history of previous experiments in currency inflation are irreconcilably opposed to subjecting the country to the grave dangers inherent in these fatuous proposals. Unlike the inflationists, however, this great body of thoughtful citizens lacks, at the present time, the leadership and the organization that are essential if it hopes successfully to combat the uninformed but highly articulate propaganda of those who would resort to the printing press.

Any counter-movement launched against the inflationists should be non-partisan politically and should have leadership in which people could place confidence. Its objectives should be two: first, to educate the public in the dangers and fallacies that underlie demands for paper money inflation; second, to organize informed opinions so that the latter would make itself effectively felt in Washington.

Those who do not already realize it should be made to understand that there is no more vicious illusion in the world than the illusion that a shortage of money can be remedied by placing an official stamp on paper and declaring that such paper shall have a stated value. During every paper-money inflation of the past, whether one takes the case of the French assignats, the German marks or our own greenbacks, the result has always been the same: the faster the paper was printed, the greater and the more poignant the cry of a "shortage of currency." The reason for this is, of course, that such paper depreciates in value much faster than the printing press can produce new supplies. This is the essential fallacy of paper-money schemes. It is this fallacy which makes paper-money inflation, as an eminent German authority, Dr. Peter Reinhold, has put it, "the most terrible thing that can happen to any civilized state."

But it is the record of inflation of the currency that its evils do not end with an accentuation of the problem that it is expected to remedy. In the process it works an inequitable and a cruel redistribution of a country's wealth. As one historian has trenchantly written, "It leads to the absorption of the means of the workingman and the man of small fortune; it impoverishes men living on fixed incomes, salaries or wages, and creates on the ruins of this large group a small class of debauched speculators, the most injurious class that a nation can harbor—more injurious than professional criminals, whom the law can reach and throttle; it stimulates production at first, and leaves every industry prostrate afterward; it breaks down the idea of thrift and develops social and political immorality."

We want no experiments of that sort in the United States. But there is grave danger that we may have them forced upon us if those who are aware of their hidden dangers do not make their opinions felt. Friends of sound money cannot afford to permit an issue fraught with such grave economic and social consequences to go by default.

BILL FOR FEDERAL AID TO MISSOURI CITIES

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, in a letter to Gov. Park, today submitted a proposed draft for a bill to make debt-limit Missouri municipalities eligible for loans and grants from the Federal Public Works Administration.

The draft, prepared by Cannon in a form approved by counsel of the Public Works Administration, was drawn up for submission to the special session of the Missouri General Assembly which convenes tomorrow.

The proposed bill would enable a municipality which has borrowed up to its constitutional limit to qualify for a public works loan, if a majority of those voting at a special municipal election supported a bond issue.

Provision is made for municipalities having 75,000 population or less, "to borrow money and issue therefor negotiable bonds payable solely from the revenues to be derived from the operation," of the project or extension for which the bond issue is floated.

Excludes Three Largest Cities.

The limitation on population excludes St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph from the terms of the proposal.

The Cannon draft allows the financing and construction of all or any public utilities in one bill. Under its terms, self-liquidating projects may be grouped with others from which no revenue will be obtained and the whole cost paid for from the receipts of the former.

The suggested legislation provides for bonds paying a maximum of six per cent issued for a period not to exceed 30 years. Provision is made that the bonds shall "be payable serially in annual installments beginning not later than three years and extending not more than 30 years" from the date of issue. A contract for the acquisition of a project may provide for payment in bonds.

In providing that the proposal shall take effect immediately upon the affixing of the Governor's signature, the draft declares that, "an emergency within the meaning of the Constitution is hereby declared to exist."

Extremely Broad Scope.

The scope of the projects for which a municipality may float bonds is extremely broad. The wording of the draft is as follows: "The term 'project' shall mean any waterworks system, water supply system, sewerage system, sewage disposal plant, or any combination thereof; gas system, electric system, hospital, bridge, tunnel, viaduct, subway, street railway system, canal, terminal, auditorium, community building, gymnasium, golf course, swimming pool, stadium, market, warehouse, airport, ice plant, slaughter house, garbage disposal system, or rubbish disposal system, and shall include any and all appertenances or facilities necessary or incidental thereto." Extensions and improvements of existing projects are also authorized.

Under the terms of the act passed by the last session of Congress creating the Federal Public Works Administration, Missouri municipalities are eligible for a grant of 30 per cent of the cost of all labor and materials for a project and for a loan of the remaining 70 per cent at a rate of interest not to exceed four per cent.

THREE FACING COURTMARTIAL ESCAPE AT MITCHELL FIELD

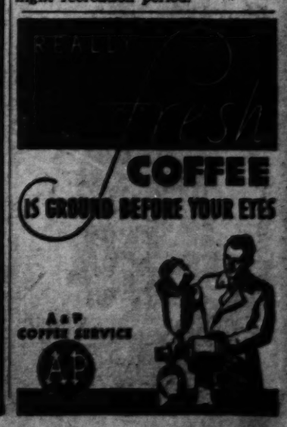

Men Flee Under Fire Across Prison Yard, Get Away in Waiting Automobile.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Three men awaiting court-martial in the Mitchell Field military prison escaped last night under fire from guards who saw the three dash across the prison yard.

The men clambered over a seven-foot wire fence and got away in a waiting automobile. Military officials gave their names as George Fatteko, 19 years old, of Newark, N. J.; George Scheirbaum, 21, of Louisville, Ky., and Benjamin Gar, 22, address unknown. Fatteko and Scheirbaum were charged with grand larceny. The third man was being held on a military charge, the nature of which was withheld.

Prison authorities said they were investigating how the men managed to leave unnoticed the assembly room where the prisoners had been summoned for their Sunday night recreation period.

GOV. PARK ASKS COMMUNITIES TO AID WORKS PLAN

CITES CONDITIONS IN INSTITUTIONS

Proposes $15,000,000 Bond Issue to Replace Fire-Trap Buildings and to End Overcrowding.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Gov. Park made an appeal for support of his legislative proposals unemployment relief, and public works, to be submitted to a special session of the Legislature which convenes here tomorrow, in an address this afternoon before about 250 representatives of municipalities an dcounties, gathered here for a State-wide conference on public works.

Briefly reviewing the urgent necessity for provision of State funds to supplement Federal funds in relief work, the necessity for rehabilitation of the State eleemosynary and penal institutions, and the desirability of enlarging the powers of municipalities to build public works, particularly public utilities, the Governor said the program could be passed with public support.

"With this group of men behind me, and the Legislature," he said, "they cannot fail to meet your demands."

Recalling the proposals in his special session call, to broaden the powers of municipalities to borrow money for construction of public utilities and other self-liquidating public works, the Governor said he merely was asking the Legislature to give the people the right, if they wished, to have public utilities constructed.

Utilities and the Public.

He said the people should have the same right to construct utilities as privately owned companies. "This is not in criticism of the utilities," he said. "Under the laws and their franchises the utilities have the right to perform certain functions. The people should have the same right, no more, no less."

He said the State would have to raise at least $4,000,000 a year for its share of unemployment relief work or allotments of Federal relief funds to Missouri would be cut off after Nov. 1. He recalled the Federal Government had provided $6,000,000 for relief work in Missouri since August, 1932, while the State government had provided only $250,000.

"Last month there were 50,000 families on the relief rolls in Missouri," he said. "Every man that can be employed, through public works, will take a family off the relief rolls. Missourians will not suffer from want during this coming winter, if I can prevail on the Legislature to prevent it."

"Shame to State's Name."

He said some of the State eleemosynary institutions were fire traps and badly crowded, and that "it is a shame to the good name of Missouri that some of these institutions are in their present condition." He said he would recommend a $15,000,000 bond issue for rehabilitation of the State eleemosynary and penal institutions, and that application would be made to the Federal Government for a 30 per cent grant of the cost of labor and materials, under the Federal public works plan.

The conference was called by the Governor at the request of Col. Hugh Miller of St. Louis, State engineer of the Federal public works administration. Col. Miller today said municipalities were not taking advantage of the opportunity to obtain Federal grants of 30 per cent of the cost of materials and labor for such projects, as rapidly as had been anticipated. He said that so far only 53 applications had been received, for Missouri projects with an estimated total cost of $21,500,000. He said a proper share for Missouri would be at least $100,000,000.

ARGENTINA GIVES WARNING

To Divert Trade Away From U. S. if Reciprocity Is'nt Granted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16.—Argentine trade will be given to countries other than the United States unless America grants Argentina a reciprocal trade agreement, the Minister of Agriculture said in a speech yesterday. He asserted:

"At a time when Argentine produce is barred from the United States by a tariff wall, American manufacturers are leading in the Argentine market. This cannot continue. The Argentine will soon be forced to limit trading to countries willing to give us reciprocal treatment."

Text of Roosevelt's Statement On Assistance to Closed Banks

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.

FOLLOWING is the statement by President Roosevelt on the plan to advance money to closed banks.

There will be established in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation a special division to make loans to closed banks. The head of this division will be C. B. Merriam, a member of the Board of Directors of the corporation.

In order that this division may work in close co-operation with the Treasury Department, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Deposit Insurance Corporation, it will be administered by a Deposit Liquidation Board consisting of the following:

1. C. B. Merriam, the head of the Deposit Liquidation Board.
2. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.
3. Dean G. Acheson, Undersecretary of the Treaury.
4. Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget.
5. J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency.
6. Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation. t

Purpose of Plan.

The purpose of the Deposit Liquidation Division will be to stimulate and encourage liquidating agents of banks closed after Jan. 1, 1933, to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in order that funds may be made available to depositors as quickly as possible. The general intention is to make loans on the assets of closed banks for the benefit of depositors up to a maximum of 50 per cent of their deposits, inclusive of distributions heretofore made.

This does not, of course, mean that in a bank whose remaining assets are worth less, that the depositors will get 50 per cent. They will get in such a case only their share in remaining assets. It is not intended that such distribution will be uniform but that they will be limited to the orderly liquidation value of assets on which loans can be made, reserving only what will appear sufficient to pay taxes, expenses and interest during the liquidation period. In some cases further distributions will not be possible because assets remaining in the banks will not warrant any further dividends than those heretofore made. Distributions in any case will be possible only to the amounts of the loanable value of the assets which have not already been pledged or otherwise disposed of.

In cases where the condition of the closed bank will justify it, proper consideration will be given to a larger distribution than 50 per cent. More than one distribution will be made as and if assets improve in value.

Distribution of Assets.

The object of establishing this deposit liquidation division and trying to stimulate the distribution of frozen bank assets is: First, to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay; and second, to bring about more orderly liquidation of the assets of closed banks. This will prevent dumping of assets at sacrifice prices.

Special advisory and appraisal committees will be organized throughout the country to speed the appraisal of closed bank assets where such appraisals have not already been made by Government agencies. These committees organized for the appraisal and recommendation of these loans will be recruited from representative local bankers, business men, and farmers.

It is estimated that the maximum available loanable value of the assets of banks closed during the year 1933 will not exceed $1,000,000,000 (one billion dollars), and it is hoped that the distribution will approximate that amount. The exact amount that can be distributed will be governed by the appraisal of the actual assets of each closed bank. Until that appraisal is made the amount involved cannot be more accurately stated.

Funds for the liquidation of deposits will be supplied by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. These funds may be supplemented later by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

I am particularly anxious that this matter be handled with dispatch and to that end solicit the co-operation of all who may have official or other authority in connection with any closed bank. The United States Government has authority over closed National banks and can speed up distribution in those banks if those directly interested will co-operate, but the Government is without authority over closed State banks. If delays occur in the case of State banks, they will be due to reasons beyond the control of the national Government.

AUSTRIAN STUDENTS RIOT; CHEER HITLER

Nazis Celebrate German Chancellor's Decision to Quit the League.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—Austrian students held a riotous demonstration today in sympathy with Chancellor Hitler of Germany and his National Socialist party.

The unfurling of a huge swastika banner at the Institute of Technology was the signal for a city-wide and country-wide demonstration at the universities. Smoke bombs were exploded while the students shouted "Heil Hitler" and sang Nazi songs.

Police lorries were rushed to the university, the Technology Institute and the Anatomical Institute. The use of clubs proving ineffective, the officers resorted to sabers before quiet was restored.

The outburst of the students was particularly significant in view of the attitude encountered in official quarters and political circles, where many, although pointing out Austria is more or less bound to the friendly policy of the League of Nations, nevertheless could not suppress a private feeling of exultation at Germany's decision to quit the League.

After all, it was pointed out in these quarters, Germany undeniably has bespoken the emotions of a large section of the population of all the defeated nations, including Austria.

Rumors persisted that Hungary also would quit the League of Nations. Newspapers featured an interview quoting Stephan Friedrich, former Hungarian Premier, that there was justification for such a move, and that, while he did not wish to criticise the Government's foreign policy, he personally would approve a withdrawal.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETS IN SECRET ON DANZIG

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—The nomination of a High Commissioner of the former German city of Danzig, proclaimed the free city of Danzig after the World War, was causing such a tempest that a secret session of the League Council was convoked for this afternoon.

Poland refused Saturday to accept Great Britain's candidate, Sean Lester, Ireland's permanent delegate to the league at Geneva, and until recently an active member of the Council Committee handling the Leticia and Chaco disputes.

It was learned that the discussion was so heated that Sir John Simon of Great Britain sent a note to President Amador that he (Simon) would resign as an official reporter on the Danzig questions unless Lester were elected.

It was reported that Poland was hostile to Lester because he was a candidate of a State affiliated with the British empire, preferring a representative of a small state.

The commissioner is responsible to the League and acts as an arbiter between Danzig's German population and Poland, which has access to the sea through Danzig.

$1,000,000,000 IN CLOSED BANKS TO BE RELEASED

Roosevelt Announces Advances Will Be Made to Depositors Through Liquidation Board.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President Roosevelt announced last night that approximately $1,000,000,000 would be advanced as quickly as possible to depositors in closed banks through a deposit liquidation board.

Funds will be furnished by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in which a special division will be established, headed by C. B. Merriam, a corporation director, to make the advances.

So that this division may work in close co-operation with the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Deposit Liquidation Board will oversee its work.

Merriam also will head the liquidation board. Other members are to be Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation; Dean G. Acheson, Under-Secretary of the Treasury; Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget; J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation.

President Explains Object.

A formal statement by the President said the "object of establishing this deposit liquidation division and trying to stimulate the distribution of frozen bank assets is: First, to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay, and, second, to bring about more orderly liquidation of the assets of closed banks; this will prevent dumping of assets at sacrifice prices."

Under the plan, the special division will make advances on the assets of closed banks up to a maximum of 50 per cent of their deposits, including distributions heretofore made.

"This does not, of course, mean that in a bank whose remaining assets are worth less, the depositors will get 50 per cent," the President said. "They will get in such case only their share in the remaining assets." He added:

"Distributions in any case will be possible only to the amounts of the loanable value of the assets which have not already been pledged or otherwise disposed of.

May Be More Later.

"In cases where the condition of the closed bank will justify it, proper consideration will be given to a larger distribution than 50 per cent. More than one distribution will be made if assets improve in value."

Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Corporation, told newspapermen the President's statement should "disabuse" the public mind on the amount of money that could be freed from closed banks.

"Reports have mentioned the figure at four billion dollars or five billion dollars," he said.

Special advisory and appraisal committees will be organized to speed the appraisal of closed bank assets where they have not already been made by Government agencies. These committees also will recommend loans and will be recruited from representative local bankers, business men and farmers.

Assurance was given today by Jones after a meeting of the board today that Government agencies are "ready to proceed with all possible dispatch" and that "given the co-operation of depositors and state banking authorities, there appears to be no reason why there should be any reason for undue delay."

Jones said committees would be formed in each Federal Reserve district to co-operate.

Five years was set by him as the "probable period for orderly liquidation" of all the banks' assets.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, received foreign newspaper correspondents today and discussed Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

In a half-hour speech to the correspondents, the Foreign Minister charged the British Foreign Office with misrepresenting Germany's attitude to Washington and renewed Germany's pledges to assist in any project for ridding the world of the arms burdens provided equality for Germany constitutes the basis of such discussions. He said:

"The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns, and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given is:

"Shall the division of nations into victors and canquished be eternalized or is, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights of the community of nations?

"The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international co-operation.

"All statesmen for years have theoretically proclaimed this as a self-evident truth, but they could not bring themselves to drawing the necessary and practicad consequences from it.

Answer Given at Geneva.

"Last Saturday it became clear at Geneva that the German people are denied equality in one of the questions supremely affecting its very existence, namely, national security.

"Thereby the Powers destroyed the foundation on which the honest and truthful co-operation of nations alone is thinkable.

"They thereby deprived Germany of the possibility to participate within the framework of the Geneva institution in discussions of actual international problems.

"With an evident will to discriminate against Germany on this principle they violated the fundamental idea underlying the League of Nations and themselves gave evidence that they attach no importance to honest and real co-operation with Germany.

"The German people would defame themselves and act dishonestly if, despite this condition of things, it attempted to keep up the appearance of such co-operation."

Cites Pledge of Equality.

The Foreign Minister recalled how Germany in the summer of 1932 withdrew from the conference and how the five-Power declaration of Dec. 11, 1932, expressly guaranteed equality.

"When we re-entered the conference," concluded the speaker, "we learned with disappointment that the foundations of the conference discussions no longer existed.

"There was but one answer to make, namely, to leave the conference.

Public opinion broad seems surprised at our reply. That is understandable, since the recent negotiations were conducted confidentially, but the participating statesmen were in no wise surprised.

"With satisfaction, I observe that during these last negotiations, the representatives of the United States and Italy left no effort untried to mediate.

"All the efforts, however, failed, on account of the efforts of the other Powers to erect a united front against Germany, to which Germany could do nothing but yield. This united front failed to develop."

Gives Views on Disarmament.

The Foreign Minister then developed his ideas of disarmament, which he said was two-fold: A reduction of the armament level and an equalization between the disarmed and the highly armed states. He especially contrasted the French with the German disarmament, saying:

"We tried during the negotiations of last week to awaken an understanding for our position on the opposite side. Herein we failed. It is now claimed we made an understanding impossible by new and unpermissible demands far exceeding the earlier demands. Such a claim contravenes the facts."

Von Neurath for the first time disclosed his instructions of Oct. 6 to the London Embassy in answering the question of Sir John Simon, the British Foreign Secretary, concerning Germany's position.

"I emphasize," said the Foreign Minister, "that the foundation of our position in regard to disarmament is our demand for equality, as guaranteed Dec. 11.

"We stood by the English plan and a five years' duration convention but declined to accept the idea of a trial period, but insisted our equality must begin immediately.

"I stated we were ready immediately to transform the Reichswehr into an army with short enlistments."

How this army was to be armed, Von Neurath said, depended upon what concrete disarmament measures the highly armed states agreed to.

"We are ready," added the speaker, "to support every prohibition of weapons, provided this prohibition is applicable to all states."

In his instructions, the Minister pressed for an answer as to what category of weapons would be forbidden and destroyed, how the weapons still permissible were to be defined, and in what quantity they were to be permitted to the highly armed nations.

Von Neurath energetically denied he ever had taken a position other than this. Washington, he declared, was wrongly informed by London, so that the impression arose that Germany had made new demands.

"The real condition of the affairs could easily have been cleared up at Geneva so that the American Government could quickly convince itself of the incorrectness of its information," the Minister said.

Sir John Simon's new plan, approved by the United States and France, he said, was unacceptable because "the control practically would be limited to Germany."

"The other Powers," continued the explanation, "would at any time

Times Says Ways of a 'Swashbuckler and Hothead' Have Been Introduced in World Diplomacy

War Talk Depreciated by Post and by Telegraph—News-Chronicle Defends Point of View.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Among the points made in London newspaper editorials regarding Germany's action in withdrawing from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference are that peace in Europe is in no wise necessarily threatened, and that peoples and governments must keep cool heads and work all the more earnestly for peace.

The Times attacked Hitler for introducing into foreign affairs "the ways of a swashbuckler and a hothead which answered him well in internal politics in Germany," and referred to his declarations Saturday as "a normal culmination of Hitlerism."

The paper deprecated war talk and urged the Government to publish as soon as possible "the scheme Germany rejected on the eve of its conclusion."

The London Post, which from the inception of the League of Nations opposed and ridiculed it and admired Americas refusal to join, said: "There is less occasion for panic than for relief that so much humbug has been swept away. Germany's sharp action may even work for good by helping to put an end to so much pedantic nonsense."

The Telegraph said: "No grounds exist for the fear that peace is endangered, although the League suffered a disastrous shock. The prospect of disarmament today is no

The PRIVATE INVESTOR vs THE TRUSTEE

While beneficiaries of trust funds have not come through the depression unscathed, trustees have made a far better record in investing their trust funds than individuals have made in investing their own funds. Just how much better is disclosed by income tax statistics of the United States Government.

Comparing 1931 incomes (the last year for which detailed statistics are available) with the average of the five prosperous years 1925 to 1929 inclusive, reveals the following:—

The income derived from investments of all individuals making tax returns declined proportionately 2¼ times as much as the decline in income derived from trust funds.

Here is uncontrovertible proof on a nation-wide scale that beneficiaries of trust funds constitute a favored class and have fared far better than other people in the matter of investments.

Does Union Electric Have Lowest Rates?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENT advertisements of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. state that it has the lowest electric rates in the country. David Lilienthal, director of the power development of the Tennessee Valley Authority, has made comparisons in electric rates, which were carried in the Sept. 30 issue of the Literary Digest. These comparisons are for small, medium and reasonably large household users. The comparisons follow and the figures speak for themselves:

Cost of 50 kwh (small user)

Tennessee Valley Authority	1.50
Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	1.55
Louisville	2.00
Union Electric in St. Louis	2.05
Union Electric in Flat River	2.85

Tennessee Valley Authority	6.50
Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	5.05
Union Electric in St. Louis	8.80
Louisville	11.30
Baltimore	13.13

Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	7.05
Baltimore	18.13
Union Electric in St. Louis	11.80
Union Electric in Flat River	19.35

The local rate for Flat River is included for comparison purposes.

Hudibras and the Brain Trust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Quoth Hudibras: "Alas, what is't t' us
Whether 'twere said by Trismegistus,
If it be nonsense, false, or mystic,
Or not intelligible, or sophistick?"

WE should all devoutly pray that the good Lord give our Brain Trust common sense. It has given us birth control of pigs to increase the price of pork. Its next move will be making all roosters capons to increase the price of chickens.

Restoration cannot follow destruction. That is axiomatic. It is self-evident that a subtraction of a sum equal to an addition results in zero. Hope, the medicine of the miserable, will not cure our disease. The proper remedy is an adherence to the Constitution and common sense. That which conflicts with common sense is absurd.

Objects to School Taxes.

MUCH has been said regarding the plight of Missouri public schools and the discussion will continue until school taxes are regulated. As it stands, 50 per cent of the people are paying the whole, while the other 50 per cent are riding along on wings of song. To illustrate, the writer not so very long ago borrowed $500 to pay taxes. More than $200 went to school taxes and I have not one child in school. At the same time, I know of a man with a good job, an automobile, and five children in school, who paid only $6.91. Would this man be hurt any if he paid $5 each for his children?

I also think it a good time for the schools to stop spending millions of dollars on expensive school buildings and football fields and return to the good old days. If there are 80,000 unemployed school teachers in the country, who will force the issue along the lines of my ideas, they will be rewarded by returning to their places of occupation, with plenty of money to buy all the pork necessary, without making it necessary to dump thousands of baby pigs into the Father of Waters.

What Christ Condemned.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALLOW me to express my appreciation of your editorial, "The Fighting Church." It is an expression of the fact that the Christian church today is getting more and more away from narrow-mindedness and bigotry, and, in a liberal spirit of co-operation, is tending to bend its efforts toward combating the unjust relationships that exist between man and man. After all, bigotry, hatred, intolerance, social discrimination and injustice were the sins which Jesus Christ condemned with the most vehemence.

That Wheat-Dumping Proposal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANENT the prefatory plan of the farm administrators to export some 35,000,000 bushels of wheat to be sold for less than the domestic price, with the difference between the domestic price paid and the foreign price received to be paid by the U. S. Government:

The Government has always intransigently resisted the subsidized dumping of commodities on its shores for less than the prevailing price in the country of origin, and now it proposes to stoop to that disgraceful practice itself. Such practice is analogous to charging one's much impoverished brother twice as much for bread as one is charging an utter stranger.

Maybe the Government can indulge in such a questionable practice without jeopardizing its ethical standing in the markets of the world, but certainly a leading nation should avoid becoming a paragon of inconsistency. JUNIUS JR.

LABOR AND THE NEW SOCIETY.

The New Deal has promised the moribund American labor movement a new lease on life. The A. F. of L. is still far from organizing the 40,000,000 workers in the United States, but it can now claim that it has increased its membership from a little over 2,000,000 to nearly 4,000,000 in the last six months.

Labor did not realize this gain by virtue of its own strength. Its new position of advantage is a handsome gift which has been presented to it by the Federal Government. By writing into the Recovery Act the right of labor to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing, the administration tipped the balance in labor's favor. It gave to labor an opportunity such as it had never had before in history; such as it is not likely to enjoy again for years to come. And now labor is in danger of throwing that opportunity away.

At its Washington convention, the A. F. of L. has insisted, by overwhelming majority, on the preservation of the antiquated craft form of union organization. It has decreed, for instance, that teamsters who work for breweries must join the teamsters' union rather than that of the United Brewery Workers; that firemen, oilers and engineers employed by breweries must likewise join the unions of their respective crafts. It has similarly decided that teamsters who work for clothing manufacturers must affiliate themselves with brewery and other teamsters instead of joining in the union of their fellow clothing employes. At the same time, other craft unions have hotly protested the inclusion in the new "Federal" unions, which the federation has been organizing on an industrial or factory basis, of workers who, they contend, rightly belong to them. The decision on every crucial point has been in favor of the craft as opposed to the industrial structure.

Craft structure grew out of an era of handicraft production and petty trade. It is an anachronism in an industrial system which is dominated by mechanized mass production. The incapacity of the craft union to afford representation to the workers in the present industrial set-up has been proved by its utter failure to unionize such basic industries as rubber, automobiles, oil and steel. Employers are organized on an industrial basis. Employes, if they are effectively to pit their economic strength against that of the employers, must adopt a similar form of organization.

Craft organization dissipates labor's strength in petty jurisdictional disputes. Only the other day, construction on the new building of the Department of Labor in Washington was suspended and hundreds of men were thrown out of work while the carpenters and the metal workers quarreled over their respective rights to install the covers over the building's radiators. Business men who have dealt with their workers individually in the past naturally hesitate to let themselves in for this sort of thing. While they may be willing to recognize and deal with an independent union, with national affiliations, which can speak for and take responsibility for the whole group of their workers, they may, with good reason, resist the introduction into their plants of scores of craft bodies which threaten to waste both time and money in quarreling among themselves.

Large employers of labor cannot well conclude agreements with unions which represent only a fraction of their labor force, without any relation to the terms on which the remaining majority of the force is to be employed. No more can the Government effectively plan for the future development of industry as a whole if its calculations are to be upset by the perpetual struggle of contending labor groups for individual advantage.

The difficulty is that the officers of the existing craft unions have a vested interest in the preservation of the present form of organization. Upon it depend their positions and their incomes. The present members of these bodies likewise have a property interest in attempting to maintain the relative advantage of their particular crafts over the rest of American working men. The truth is that these people have no interest in the well-being of labor as a whole. They are looking out only for themselves. And they are perfectly willing to let the devil take the hindmost.

This is an attitude which constitutes the gravest threat to the future of organized labor in the United States. Labor cannot safely rely on the Government to support its organization in the future in the way in which it is supporting it today. If it does not seize upon its present opportunity to unionize the mass production industries, it may lose it forever. The Federation is proving itself to be a feeble instrument for the accomplishment of this task. The millions of men and women who are working in America's major industries may have to build their representative organizations outside the Federation's hampering walls if they are to realize the large promises which the recovery program now holds out to them.

The A. F. of L. can co-operate with the administration in building a new society. Or it can drop back to a position of relative insignificance in the American labor movement. If it adheres to the policies which it has embraced at Washington, we cannot doubt that this will be its fate.

We haven't arrived at the end of the recovery road, President Roosevelt said in his address to the National Conference of Catholic Charities. "The longer, harder part lies still ahead." Somewhat different from the official communiques so frequently issued in the early days of the depression, that "prosperity is just around the corner."

A VICTIM'S APPEAL.

Police efficiency evidently is at a low ebb in Managua, capital of Nicaragua, if one may judge by an open letter to the thieves and robbers of the city, recently published in the newspaper La Noticia. The writer, Vicente Murillo Gonzalez, says he is an impoverished citizen and, like others of his group, has lately been robbed of all his possessions except the clothes he was wearing. So he appeals to the local thieves to let the poor alone. "If a spark of honor remains in their consciousness," he implores, "they should not molest those already stricken with poverty and hardship." He ends on a note of polite threat: "If these ruthless rascals continue to prey upon the poor as well as upon those who have more to lose, they will soon oblige the indigent classes to take up robbery for a livelihood, too; which, of course, will ruin those previously in the business."

It may be that this victim's appeal will result in the thieves' union immediately adopting a Robin Hood code, to shut off the threatened flood of competition. It is to be hoped, however (and that may have been the subtle intent of his letter), that it will rouse the police to put the entire industry out of business. What Managua seems to be witnessing is what will happen in any country if lawlessness gets out of hand, when no citizen, however powerful or however humble, may consider himself safe from criminal depredations. In this country, if the kidnaping racket had gone unchecked, we might have seen it no longer confined to wealthy victims, but spreading to abduction of ordinary citizens, whose families can raise $50 or $100 ransom, as is the practice in China today. Fortunately, our Federal authorities have needed no Citizen Gonzalez to stir them into action.

THE INDUSTRY NRA FORGOT.

State Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Lee says that while the minimum yearly wage for common labor under the national recovery codes is only $750, more than 15,000 trained teachers now employed in the public schools of Missouri are receiving less than this amount, and that 4000 during the present school year will draw no more than half that amount.

A similar condition obtains in other states. In Illinois, the principal complaint of public school teachers is non-payment of salaries already earned. In the one town of Benton, the schools owe their teachers $145,000 in back pay. Many unpaid teachers are destitute. There is no market for promises to pay in the form of school warrants. Holders of this paper have sold it at discounts ranging from 30 to 80 per cent. One instance is cited of a man who turned over a warrant for $350 to pay a $12 dentist bill.

This wretched condition in a governmental service is a direct negation of all that national recovery legislation stands for. Instead of more pay and more employment to enhance buying power, there is less pay and less employment. In Missouri, there are 1000 fewer teachers employed today than in the school year of 1930-31.

An Illinois school man hit the nail on the head when he asked why the Government should not lend money on teachers' orders when it could pour millions into the railroads, whose inability to meet their obligations has become proverbial.

Government aid to schools is not only logical but pitifully obvious. It is so obvious that we cannot but wonder why it was not requested months ago. The Recovery Administration has been liberal and responsive to appeals in furtherance of the NRA principle of more jobs and more purchasing power. It seems inconceivable that it would turn a stony ear to the public schools and their workers if the facts were adequately set forth.

FIGHTING CRIME IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.

Organized crime henceforth will meet organized resistance when it carries its depredations into Southern Illinois. Machinery to that end was created in a meeting recently at Carbondale, when more than 50 law enforcement officers from a score of towns assembled to plan their battlefront. Paved roads and automobiles make a swift getaway possible for the modern criminal, so lawlessness no longer is a matter of merely local concern. The assembled officers agreed to speed up their notifications to neighboring towns when crimes occur, to use the telephone extensively, to give closer attention to descriptions of criminals and their motor cars. Precious moments, vital to the capture of fleeing criminals, no longer will be lost when every man has been rehearsed in his emergency duties. Other groups or communities would find it wise to band together in similar fashion against criminal invasion. It is to be hoped that the new unity of pursuit will put down the criminal plague in our neighboring Egypt.

BACK TO BALTIMORE.

Henry L. Mencken is to retire from the editorship of the American Mercury at the end of the year and will, it is announced, resume his old trade of writing books as he saunters down through the mellowing twilight. His departure from the magazine field will be widely regretted, but it is, after all, a logical abdication. Before Mencken goes, prohibition will have gone, and that is a consummation he has most devoutly hoped for and toiled for through, goodness knows, how many lusty, gusty columns.

Of all the pens that belabored prohibition, none, perhaps, played so continuous a rataplan upon its vulnerability as Mencken's, none cracked it oftener "on the button," no other assailant has had such a gay, grand time of it as he did, no other critic, we feel sure, immersed its defenders in such depths of anguish, or in such a ghastly, sputtering rage.

Next to prohibition, Mr. Mencken's pet aversion, we should say, is democracy. The fellow is a royalist at heart. And nothing else, we feel sure, would so gladden his romantic soul as to witness the interment of the Constitution and the coronation of the first American Emperor. Will he live to see that purple day? Norman Thomas keeps on telling us that Fascism is just around the corner, and Fascism is the temporary residence of the man of destiny who will presently move his belongings over to the imperial palace.

Well, the Mercury, as trained and gaffed and tossed into the periodical cockpit by Mencken, has been a winged creature, the stylist of the tourney, a game and strutting bird. But it compelled its editor to go to New York often, and for Mencken to be away from Baltimore is like Ovid among the Goths. So, our professional, engaging and most imitated iconoclast is going home, back to the familiar haunts, simple ways and homely comforts of his native city which his bourgeois being craves. Happy days.

THE ORCHESTRA CARRIES ON.

The Symphony Orchestra is not only going to carry on, but the Executive Committee has courageously decided to give the city the finest season in the orchestra's more than 50 years. The superlative is warranted, first, by the announcement of the soloists that have been engaged, distinguished artists all of them, and, second, by the fact that, under the leadership of Conductor Golschmann, the orchestra has risen to its greatest heights.

This decision of the Executive Committee is precisely the kind of decision the time requires. It is strictly en rapport with the spirit of our national administration. The outstanding quality of this Roosevelt reign is courage, and the bold policy of the orchestra's management in offering us a larger variety of more tempting fare will, we are certain, be vindicated.

The country is talking about St. Louis in terms of new respect. While other cities, some of them showier and, if it may be said, somewhat noisier, have staggered into insolvency during the depression, St. Louis has come through it with its credit unimpaired. So stands St. Louis, economically. Culturally, no winter of discontent is on the calendar; instead, a program of superior excellence and delight.

The Symphony Orchestra is entitled to congratulations, and the Executive Committee to a sincere, rollicking "Atta-boy!"

The Philippine Independence Paradox

After years of agitation for freedom, Philippine Legislature is about to defeat Hare-Hawes-Cutting law, which grants it; liberty still is desired on idealistic grounds, but new act is assailed as "economically indefensible"; end of free trade with U. S. means ruin of insular business and great decline in Government revenues.

AN impassioned orator springs to the rostrum. "The lying imperialistas now assert that you do not want your freedom . . . the freedom for which you and your fathers laid down their lives in a successful revolution before America ever set foot on the Philippines. Is it true? Have you forsaken the ideals of your country? Do you no longer wish to be free?"

Back in the corner of his office, a tall, alert, handsome man says quite casually: "Of course, it is obvious that the acceptance of the Hare-Hawes-Cutting independence law means the entire liquidation of the sugar industry of the Philippine Islands within 10 years. And that means collapse of Government revenue, no more money for schools and health service, possible disorder . . ."

He is Rafael Alunan, former Secretary of Agriculture, and former Secretary of Finance, who knows whence the Government's income is derived.

In the Philippine Senate, Manuel Quezon takes the floor. Small, dynamic, impulsive, idol of the masses, he now controls the most powerful legislative steam-roller ever developed in Philippine politics.

"Of what use is a promise of independence," he demands, "if, before the 10 years of its interim have elapsed, we shall have been strangled out of existence? Why offer us independence under terms so onerous that it cannot possibly be sustained, even if we, by some means, survive until its entirely problematical consummation?"

The paradox of Philippine independence: a well-organized Legislature, bending every effort, even to the extent of deposing its former leaders, to defeat a law granting Philippine independence, after 20 years of incessant clamor for such a law. (Since this article was written, the Philippine House has definitely rejected the law, and the Senate, which has cast a preliminary vote to that effect, is expected to follow suit.—Editor's note.)

Mere thought of a budget large enough to provide for national defense, foreign diplomatic, consular and trade services, internal order and a reasonable degree of public progress is an economist's nightmare. No program has been evolved whereunder domestic taxation can replace the American free market as a source of revenue.

As a consequence, the Philippine independence question becomes a vast debate of feeling against fact, instinct against economics, race pride against the foreboding showing of national annihilation. It is little wonder that the Filipino leaders, themselves, are confused, puzzled, distressed, obliged frequently to contradict themselves. Two years ago, Manuel Roxas stumped the Philippines, declaring that the islands were "writhing in a hell of slavery," and that nothing but immediate independence would release them. Sergio Osmena was telling Secretary Hurley that his people had had enough of concessions of further autonomy and periods of preparation, and that nothing but immediate independence would answer their demands. Meanwhile, Quezon, on the other hand, proposed a transitional period of 10 years on the ground that immediate independence would prove unsalutary.

Today, Roxas and Osmena have been ousted from their legislative positions as Speaker of the House and Vice-President of the Senate, respectively, for their insistence upon the acceptance of a law which provides a 10-year interim. Roxas again stumped the southern islands, this time declaring that immediate independence meant nothing but chaos and disaster, and led the fight in the House, unsuccessfully, against the traditional resolution demanding immediate independence, on the ground that it embarrassed the possibility of accepting the Hawes law. No less striking is the change of Quezon's position. He has rallied strong support to the banner of immediate independence in a powerful legislative campaign against the Hawes proposal.

The plain fact, of course, is that independence, as an ideal, is always desirable, but that any bill which sets forth the concrete machinery by which it is to be achieved will bring home, at once, the disadvantages, dangers and positive disaster which await such a course of action. The present Hare-Hawes-Cutting law is being defended upon emotional grounds. It "at least" grants independence. No attempt is made to defend it upon economic grounds, for it is economically indefensible.

The Philippine Islands derive 65 per cent of the insular revenue from trade with the United States in four export products—sugar, coconuts, hemp and tobacco. On the other hand, all the humanizing services of Government, schools, sanitation, public works, pensions, research and communications, are dependent upon appropriations from the insular Government.

Under such economic conditions, any independence measure, with its consequent modification of the economic structure of the islands, means a curtailment of these services and an immediate reflection in the intimate life of the whole people.

Nor has the menace of external conquest been entirely forgotten. The Philippines, once independent, will occupy a strategic position in the Pacific. They will offer a fertile field for conquest and an admirable base for operations. The Japanese have asserted that they do not want the Philippines, simply wouldn't have them, in fact. In the light of their recent expansion, with its definite and obvious economic causes, no one is likely to take that disclaimer seriously. If the Japanese do not want the Philippines, it can only be because the War Office has lost its mind.

It is such a situation that Manuel Quezon, commanding a powerful majority in the Philippine Legislature, is obliged to face. Quezon, author of the famous statement that he would rather live under a government "run like hell by Filipinos than run like heaven by Americans," is an ardent patriot. He wishes well for his people. He has always been in the forefront of the independence campaign. But he is faced now with an independence law which promises nothing but internal chaos and external conquest. He foresees poverty, weakness, disorder and eventual annihilation.

There are many persons who believe he is merely clearing the ground for some new and more permanent relationship between the Philippine Islands and the United States.

Alertness at Washington

From the New Republic.

ONE excellent trait of the administration is its readiness to move rapidly in the general direction it favors, the moment any delay or obstruction arises. There is every sign, for instance, that since the outcry about the tardiness of public works, Secretary Ickes and his organization have been putting on the last possible ounce of steam, including double shifts in the office (shortage of staff has apparently been a severe handicap). Likewise, he has been putting pressure on cities and states which are prospective borrowers, but are reluctant to spend more, or find difficulty in getting started.

The administration also shows signs of being keenly aware of the necessity of stepping up capital expenditures in general, and is trying to bring about large purchases of rails and other railroad equipment by forcing reduction of prices on the one hand and financing the railroads to buy on the other.

No sooner did the outcry of farmers' representatives for inflation become threatening than the President matched it with the warnings about dwindling relief funds, and authorized the use of $75,000,000 or more to buy food and clothing for the destitute. This, of course, is not enough, but administration circles are reported to be quite conscious of the need for much larger direct relief.

We have in Washington, not a soggy and insensitive mass of dough, as in some previous administrations, but a nervous, alert and hard-working group who are doing their level best to effectuate a program. If they fail—as they themselves admit freely that they may—it will be due not to stupidity or lack of good intention on their part, but to an impossibility of doing what they want to do in the social and economic system with which they have to deal.

WHAT ST. LOUIS GOT.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

SOME time ago the Evening Sun printed an article describing the efforts of the City of St. Louis to cope with the problem of its blighted areas. St. Louis, like most large cities, is afflicted with certain decayed residence districts which have outlived their usefulness. These districts, most of them in the heart of the city, are expensive because they eat up tremendous sums for such services as paving, sewage disposal, police protection and so on; yet they have so depreciated in value that they do not yield sufficient taxes to pay for the services. That expense is a burden on all other tax-yielding property. Still more important, these rotten districts are a burden in that they are community sore spots in which disease, misery and crime flourish.

But St. Louis, under the leadership of a man named J. A. Wolf, decided that something should be done about these districts. A plan was worked out for the partial rehabilitation of these districts by means of a limited dividend housing corporation. The Public Works Administration has granted the corporation a loan of $500,000, which will allow it to proceed with its work.

What interests us is the fact that, when it comes to such blighted areas, Baltimore is way out at the head of the column. But, unlike St. Louis, Baltimore has done little about it. The municipal government has blandly disregarded the existence of the problem. And—so far—there has not been a private corporation to undertake rehabilitation.

The Public Works Administration has shown that it is sympathetic to such efforts. When will Baltimore wake up?

OMAN'S CLAIM ON STRICKLAND ESTATE UPHELD

timony That Marriage Ceremony Was Held When First Wife Was Still Alive in Asylum.

Mrs. Mary Theis Strickland's m for a widow's share of the 000 estate of Albin Strickland, ired grocer, who died four years , was upheld in a decision by cuit Judge Hamilton today. Evidence in the case was heard eral months ago and taken der advisement. The decision llows an earlier ruling by Pro- te Judge Holtcamp. Under it s. Strickland, who said she was rried to Strickland in 1915 at a ime when he had another wife, of which fact she was not aware, is entitled to one-half of the property, less whatever fee she has agreed to pay to her counsel, Peter T. Barbe, H. Randolph Mudd and Jerome Simon, the latter now an Associate City Counselor.

It was alleged the claimant had gone through a civil marriage ceremony with the grocer, only to learn that his former wife, who had been ill for several years in a State hospital, did not die until 1918. After that time the claimant, it was said, continued to live with him under a common-law arrangement, and it was on this basis her suit was filed. Since 1921 common-law marriages have not been recognized under the law of this State, but the law forbidding such a contract is not retroactive.

The claim was resisted by relatives of Strickland, among them Mrs. Samuel Ludwig, a niece, who was principal beneficiary under his will. The defense asserted that the petitioner was the grocer's housekeeper at his home, 4527 Clayton avenue, where she continued to live after his death.

In two previous wills, not filed for probate, Strickland, it was testified, had bequeathed the petitioner $10,000 in one and $5000 in the other, in addition to the Clayton avenue property, but he referred to himself as a widower. In the will admitted to probate she was not mentioned.

Neighbors who took the stand for her said they regarded her as Strickland's wife and he had so introduced her. They told of seeing her with a wedding ring which she said was from him, and he did not deny it.

For the defense it was testified Strickland had said she was his housekeeper and he was not married to her. On the occasion of his last illness, when she called to see him in a hospital, it was stated, he said to her: "We were never married and you know it. Get out of my room and get off of my premises."

Strickland was 76 when he died four years ago. The plaintiff is much younger.

fficial Says Rates Can't Be Reduced Because Several Improvements Are Needed.

Expenses of the Water Division for the first six months of the fiscal year, ending last week, were $78,869, or 13.7 per cent, less than in the corresponding period of the last fiscal year, Director of Public Utilities Wall announced today. The expenditures in the six-month term just ended were $949,968, compared with $1,126,838 in the corresponding time last year. This is the largest decrease in expenses of any city department.

It is not possible to reduce water rates, Wall said, as surplus funds of the division are needed for a new water line from the Stacy Park reservoir to the city and other extensions of the system. The division is supported entirely by water revenue. Figures on the revenue for the first half of the fiscal year have not been compiled.

All branches of the Department of Public Utilities reduced expenses by more than $300,000 in the first half of the current fiscal year, compared with the corresponding period last year, Wall said. This includes the Water Division and a saving of about $105,000 in street lighting. The department eliminated 152 jobs this spring, including about 100 in the Water Division.

Two young robbers were sentenced to 10-year concurrent terms by Circuit Judge Landwehr today when they pleaded guilty to two charges of robbery with a deadly weapon under the Henry law. The prisoners, William Freeman, 20 years old, 2811 North Twenty-second street, and Harry Gibson, 22, 3858½ Benton street, will serve the sentences at Algoa Farm.

Receiving the International Peace Association, a majority of whose delegates are Americans, Henderson said: "My message is that the struggle for disarmament must go on and that the covenant of the League of Nations shall not be treated as a scrap of paper. We will not break faith with the dead who fell that there should be no more war.

"Nail your flag to the mast of the League. "Make the will to peace stronger than the will to war. Every delay or defeat must call forth fresh reserves of stubborn and relentless energy. The flower of one generation was slain in the great war and it is our duty to give the world peace in our time."

Germany's Withdrawal.

Apparently alluding to Germany, he continued: "We must not hesitate to incur risks and make whatever sacrifice may be necessary to insure the final triumph of the reign of law over international anarchy that breeds war."

Henderson said the withdrawal of Germany from the League necessitated asking what all were trying to do at Geneva and his answer was that all were endeavoring to organize a peace. "That enterprise is not confined to members of the league," he said. "We have welcomed as partners the United States and the Soviet Union and both have made great contributions to the cause of consolidating world peace—the United States through its nine-Power treaty and other agreements concluded at Washington through the Paris pact, the London Naval Agreement and numerous conciliation arbitration treaties."

After paying a tribute to Russia's impulse for peace Henderson, making what was considered another allusion to Germany said: "However just its cause or good its intention, no Government can be trusted to remain loyal to the cause of peace if it flouts the collective peace system to which the world is pledged. The Government which rejects that system is inevitably encouraging its citizens to regard war as legitimate and inevitable."

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan of Washington, representing the American Council on Disarmament, read to the assemblage cables selected from 50 received in the course of the night from numerous mass meetings in the United States urging the continuation of disarmament efforts.

MacDonald Asks for Results.

A message from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain was read to the assemblage urging the "vital necessity" for the conference to arrive at a successful and speedy conclusion.

Of all the great Powers represented at the disarmament meetings only Italy was ready to propose adjournment.

The others—Great Britain, France and the United States—called for a still more determined effort after today's session to reconcile differences and draft a permanent program for peace.

Whatever may be accomplished in the recess, the delegates planned to advise Germany first that her contentions of insincerity were unfounded.

France Supports American Opposition to Ending Arms Session.
By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Vigorous French support for the stand of Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large, against an adjournment of the disarmament conference, was announced today at the Foreign Office.

The completion of a disarmament convention along the lines already drawn, despite the German withdrawal from the conference and the League of Nations, was viewed officially as the best way out of a "serious situation."

Roosevelt's Plea to Press for Disarmament Read at Geneva.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President Roosevelt's belief that statesmen "should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles" blocking the path to disarmament was expressed in a statement made public today at the State Department. The message was communicated yesterday to a mass meeting promoted by peace societies, and delivered through Norman H. Davis, representing this Government at the disarmament conference.

The State Department said the message had been written in Washington on Oct. 13, which was before Germany's sudden announcement of withdrawal from the arms conference and the League of Nations.

The text of the letter addressed by Davis to Lord Cecil of Great Britain follows:

"The Secretary of State, on behalf of the President, wishes me to convey to you his sympathetic interest in the mass meeting, which is to take place on Sunday, and to express his belief that this imposing demonstration of the aspirations of millions who are looking to the conference to take a decisive step toward reducing armaments will constitute a solemn reminder to the representatives of the nations of the world that they must not allow the conference to faid.

"Fortified with the knowledge that world opinion is backing them in their difficult task, they should redouble their efforts to overcome the obstacles which are still blocking their path and bring about the constructive achievement which mankind confidently awaits."

WOMAN KILLED, BODY CUT UP AND THROWN IN SEA

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 16. — Thomas M. Jones, 48 years old, ex-convict sought in connection with the murder of Mrs. Laura Ellen Straw, 60, wealthy widow, police said today, had quarreled frequently with his benefactress recently.

Mrs. Straw's dismembered body was found in San Diego bay early yesterday. The torso was in one bag and the legs in another.

Jones had lived at Mrs. Straw's house for about a year and recently had a quarrel with her because she would not mortgage her property and take him on a trip to New York City, police said they learned. Police have fingerprints and a complete description of Jones.

Jones is reported to have been committed to the State Penitentiary at Columbus, O., in 1925 for possession of a still. He was recommitted to that institution for possession of liquor in 1927 under the name of Tully McQuate, police said. In the early part of 1931 Jones was arrested here on a vagrancy charge, but later released.

Police think robbery was the motive for the killing.

The woman's legs had been hacked from her torso, then chopped into four pieces. Her head had been mashed in.

In her home police found a smeared hatchet, hammer and carpenter's saw, all of which bore signs of having been used by the slayer. A blood-stained mattress and pillow also were discovered.

A shore boat crew from the U. S. S. Trenton discovered the bag containing the body near San Diego's main piers. A few hours later four sailors from the U. S. S. Langley saw a sack bobbing on the bay near where the body was found. It contained the legs, some of the woman's clothing, newspapers and towels. Identification was established through a string of beads the woman wore.

Mrs. Straw had four husbands. The first was a man named Alvis. Next she married Herman Helms in Tacoma, Wash., in 1911, and in 1916 she became the bride of Alonzo Straw. Straw died in 1923, leaving her considerable property. Several years ago she married Frank Jewett. She and Jewett were divorced.

Among Mrs. Straw's survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Bessie Willows, Keokuk, Ia., and Mrs. Lillie Curran, Lyons, Ia., and a son, Sidney Alvis, Newton, Utah.

THREE MORE ACTRESSES SAY READ MADE LOVE TO THEM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—Alfred C. Read made love to three actresses besides Claire Windsor while posing as a single man, according to eight affidavits filed in Superior Court today. The affidavits were filed by Miss Windsor's attorneys in an effort to have set aside the $75,000 judgment awarded to Read's wife, Mrs. Marian Read, at the close of her suit against Miss Windsor, charging alienation of Read's affections.

Chief among these were the statements of Dorothy Granger, Julie Carter and Aljean Hemming, who declared that Read represented himself as a single man, made love to them, and when finally pressed concerning his marital status, told them, just as Miss Windsor said he did her, that he was "married but getting a divorce."

BANKERS' CODE IN EFFECT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' Association, said yesterday that the bankers' code "contains within itself the possibilities of the major part of the reform of the present banking system desired by the public, the Government and the bankers alike."

The code went into effect today.

"In so far as the bankers' code aids in the definite elimination of loose or uneconomic practices from banking," Shepherd said, "it will confer permanent and fundamental benefits on the nation's banking structure and rebound to the welfare of depositors aside from all questions of its function as an emergency measure."

HELD AS SLAYER OF MAN WHO RAN OVER HIS DOG

By the Associated Press.

NEVADA, Mo., Oct. 16. — John (Casey) Jones was arrested yesterday charged with shooting and killing Arthur Knapp, 23 years old, who ran over Jones' dog with his automobile and broke one of the dog's legs. Jones denied the charge but police said Miss Geneva Irwin, 21, daughter of a farmer 12 miles south of Nevada, had identified Jones as the slayer. According to police Miss Irwin said she and Knapp had driven past Jones' house in Knapp's motor car and that the car ran over a dog. The girl said Knapp did not stop. About two hours later, she said, when she and Knapp were leaving the car in front of a store in the business district, Jones called to them from behind.

"Aren't you the fellow that ran over my dog?" Miss Irwin quoted Jones as saying. "Yes, sir," Knapp replied.

Miss Irwin said Jones drew a revolver and fired one shot. A bullet struck Knapp in the chest.

Jones was arrested by Policemen W. E. Butner and Holland Crawford, who said he was running down an alley from the scene of the shooting.

Two Other Persons Seriously Hurt in New York City; Driver Arrested.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—An automobile ran into a traffic "island" last night when its driver swerved to avoid collision with another machine. Ralph Jacobs, 60 years old, and Alexander Canter, 60, were killed, and Jacobs' wife, Bertha, and Morris L. Goldstein were seriously injured.

All four were seated on a bench on the "island"—a fenced-in spot in the street—when the car, driven by William Devereux, a Peekskill (N. Y.) radio technician, crashed through the fence. Devereux was arrested on a charge of "suspicion of homicide."

BABY BORN ABOARD TRAIN

A fast Missouri Pacific passenger train was stopped for 45 minutes yesterday at Adrian, Mo., where a passenger, Mrs. Susie Johnson, gave birth to a daughter.

Mrs. Johnson, whose home is in Joplin, was on her way to Kirkwood to visit relatives. Dr. H. C. McConnell, physician who was summoned to attend her, said mother and child were doing well when the run to St. Louis was resumed.

Khaki Shirt Leader Surrenders.
By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Art J. Smith, "commander-in-chief" of the khaki shirts of America, who disappeared on the eve of a scheduled "march on Washington," gave himself up to police today after they had sought him five days on a warrant charging fraudulent conversion. Wearing the flashy uniform of his "army," Smith entered the District Attorney's office with the announcement that charges against him were "all a lot of hot air," and made arrangements for his release on bail.

WOMAN DRIVING TRUCK FATALLY HURT IN CRASH

Miss Anna Webbe, 24 years old, was killed and her sister, Miss Eva Webbe, 26, was hurt when a truck driven by Anna collided with another machine and upset at Twelfth street and Chouteau avenue yesterday afternoon. Both resided at 1330A Hickory street.

Rolla Hoehn, an engineer of Gillespie, Ill., told police he had stopped his automobile at Chouteau avenue for an automatic traffic signal at 5:30 o'clock. The light changed in his favor, Hoehn said, and he started up. The truck, belonging to Vincent Webbe, a brother of the young women, hit the side of Hoehn's car and overturned. The women were pinned beneath the wreck, being extricated by Hoehn and witnesses.

Anna Webbe died at City Hospital several hours later of a skull fracture. Eva Webbe is at the hospital suffering from fractured ribs and internal hurts. Anna Webbe was housekeeper for her father, Joseph, and several brothers and sisters. Eva is a bookkeeper.

Hoehn was accompanied by his wife, three children and two friends, all of whom escaped injury.

Body of Man Killed by Auto Is Identified.

Theodore Gallagher, 1019 North Eighteenth street, the driver, reported that Southard started across the street, then turned back and stepped in front of the machine.

Detective Sergeant Hurt When His Auto Hits Parked Car.

Detective Sergeant Kenneth McGuire suffered scalp wounds and the loss of two teeth when he was forced to swerve to avoid a collision with another machine and crashed into a parked car in front of 5164 Enright avenue early yesterday.

Probationary Patrolmen Clyde Woolsey and Adam Horas were cut and bruised in a collision between their car and another at Arkansas avenue and Chippewa street while they were on their way to report for duty early yesterday. The second machine, driven by Verlin Cotner, 4204A Manchester avenue, jumped the curb and stopped against a porch.

Virginia Jacoby, 6 years old, suffered a skull injury when she ran into the street near her home and was hit by an automobile yesterday morning.

The National Labor Board of NRA will intervene in the clothing workers' strike in St. Louis, according to word received from Washington today from Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board.

Senator Wagner's telegram, to employers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, read as follows:

"The National Labor Board has assumed jurisdiction over strikes in the men's clothing industry in St. Louis, and will hear the parties to the dispute in Washington Friday of this week at 10:30 a. m. Please send representatives."

Hyman Schneid, organizer in charge of the strike of 1600 clothing workers in the city, said the union probably would be represented by its international president, Sidney Hillman, who is in Washington. The strike is in its eighth week.

COOK BEATS RETIRED BOXER

Former City Champion Kabakoff Goes to Hospital.

Harry Kabakoff, retired boxer, came out second best in an argument with a restaurant cook yesterday afternoon, and was taken to City Hospital for treatment for scalp wounds.

Kabakoff was in a restaurant at 3524 Franklinn avenue when the cook, Frank Bowen, tried to eject a customer. Kabakoff took the customer's part, and Bowen promptly seized a heavy water tumbler and hit the former city lightweight champion on the head. At the hospital Kabakoff said he is 34 years old and lives at 1113 North Sixteenth street.

GIRL SLAIN AT TOURIST CAMP; THREE ARE HELD

By the Associated Press.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Three persons were held for investigation after Miss Mary Elizabeth Robb, 20 years old, of Stewartsville, Ind., was shot to death at a tourist camp near Evansville early yesterday. Those held are Cyril Staab, 22; Edward Gumble Jr., 23, and Beulah Bender, 18, all of Evansville.

Miss Bender told police the shooting occurred after Staab and Miss Robb left the automobile in which all four had been riding. She said Staab later took a handkerchief, wiped off the pistol from which the shot was fired, and threw the weapon into a cornfield. Staab told police the girl shot herself.

Miss Robb died in a hospital an hour after the shooting without making a statement.

DRIVERS FOR FIVE LAUNDRIES STRIKE FOR UNION RECOGNITION

Ninety Men Involved in Walkout—Twelve Firms Sign Up.

Drivers employed by five laundries went on strike today in an effort to obtain recognition of the newly organized laundry, Linen & Towel Chauffeurs' Local No. 386.

The strike, involving about 90 men, affects the following laundries: J. Arthur Anderson, Excelsior-Leader, Justin T. Flint, Walker and Grand.

Daniel Murphy, local representative of the Teamsters' International Union, with which the new local is affiliated, said the owners of the five laundries have refused to negotiate with the union, which was organized during the recent membership drive conducted by the American Federation of Labor. Twelve laundries have made agreements with the union, Murphy said, while others have given a hearing to union leaders.

The management of two of the laundries involved said there were no plans for operating trucks. At the headquarters of the Laundry Board of Trade it was said no statement would be made at present.

TEMPORARY PICKREL ALIMONY

Pending the outcome of her husband's divorce suit, Mrs. Ray E. Pickrel, wife of the president of the Pickrel Walnut Co., was allowed $55 a week temporary alimony today by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton. Mrs. Pickrel also will receive $12.50 a week for the support of their minor daughter, Helen, and $500 on account was authorized for her lawyer's fees.

The divorce case, which Mrs. Pickrel is contesting, will be resumed Thursday, when the husband will have an opportunity to offer testimony in answer to her testimony of last Wednesday.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16. — Judge Frank E. Atwood's opinion, accepted by the six other members of the Missouri Supreme Court, in the Paul A. Richards disbarment case, is of unusual interest and importance to the legal profession, in its determination of hitherto doubtful and disputed law points.

Preparation of the opinion represented a large part of a summer's work on the part of Judge Atwood, who, since the case was argued May 24, had covered a wide range of legal decisions. Besides more than 100 decisions, by the courts of 29 states and in Federal jurisdictions, Judge Atwood presented the opinions of various recognized textbook authorities.

Chief of the legal points raised by the Richards defense was the contention that the Supreme Court lacked original jurisdiction in disbarment proceedings—that it must wait for the lower courts to send such cases to it. The Richards proceeding, instituted by the grievance committees of the St. Louis and Missouri Bar Associations, was brought first in the Supreme Court, with a view to expedition, since it was believed that Richards would appeal if disbarred by a lower court.

In support of its contention, the defense cited sections II and III, article 4, of the Constitution of Missouri; 15 C. J., p. 732, section 30; 2 R. C. L., p. 1086, section 179; in re Sizer and Gardner, 300 Mo. 369, 254 S. W. 82; and State ex. rel. Hopkins vs. Daues et al., 6 S. W. (2d) 893, 319 Mo. 733.

Cites Selleck's Case.

Judge Atwood, after stating the defense's contention, refers to the Selleck disbarment case, in which the St. Louis Bar Association, through its Grievance Committee, filed charges in the St. Louis Court of Appeals for disbarment of Ellroy V. Selleck.

"The Court of Appeals," Judge Atwood says, "appointed two members of that bar to hear the charges and report thereon. Their report presented a finding of guilty on two of the charges in the petition for disbarment. The Commissioners' report was approved by the Court, and Selleck was disbarred. In the certiorari proceeding, as well as in the disbarment proceeding, jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals was attacked on the grounds that the Supreme Court was the only court having power to license attorneys to practice law in this State, that the question of the Court's inherent authority to control the conduct of attorneys practicing at its bar did not arise because the acts complained of were not committed in reference to or in connection with any matter pending in that court, and that the jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals is limited by constitutional provisions making its character, duties and functions strictly appellate, with certain marked and defined exceptions among which is the power to issue, hear and determine writs of habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto, certiorari and other original remedial writs.

"Constitutional questions connected with these grounds were properly lodged and pressed in the Supreme Court. While conceding that the case in hand "did not fall within these granted powers" and that the Legislature could not add to the powers named in the Constitution, this Court in banc held in the face of these objections that the St. Louis Court of Appeals possessed inherent power to disbar attorneys licensed to practice law in this State, all of the Judges concurring in this holding except Brown, J., who expressed opposing views in a separate opinion."

Sizer and Gardner Case.

Judge Atwood then refers to the Sizer and Gardner case, filed as an original proceeding in the Supreme Court, to disbar attorneys for alleged malpractice not connected with any case or proceeding in the Supreme Court. Some of the same points urged by the Richards defense were raised in support of Sizer and Gardner, but "by a vote of five to two this Court in banc disregarded the contention and entertained jurisdiction."

The Richards defense counsel, Judge Atwood says, cited the Sizer and Gardner and Selleck cases, calling attention to the fact that the decisions were not without dissent, "and invoking the plea said to have been made by Edmund Randolph in the trial of Aaron Burr, that no Judge will oppose reconsideration of a subject merely because he has given an opinion on it, which thought is with fine discrimination expressed by Judge Lamm in State ex rel. vs. Gordon, 133 S. W. 44, 231 Mo. 547." Judge Atwood continues:

"In 2 R. C. L., sec. 179, pp. 1086, 1087, it is said: 'In the absence of constitutional or statutory restrictions, a court of superior or general jurisdiction has authority to suspend an attorney from practice as such, or to disbar or strike from the rolls an attorney of such court upon proper grounds, because attorneys are officers of the court in which they are admitted to practice.'

"Also, in 6 C J., sec. 37, p. 580, the doctrine of such inherent power is thus stated: 'It is well settled that a court authorized to admit an attorney has inherent jurisdiction to suspend or disbar him for sufficient cause, and that such jurisdiction does not necessarily depend on any express constitutional provision or statutory enactment.'

"In Weeks on Attorneys at Law, sec. 80, pp. 140, 141, it is said: 'The power to strike from the rolls is inherent in the court itself. No statute or rule is necessary to authorize the punishment in proper cases. Statutes and rules may regulate the power, but they do not create it. It is necessary for the protection of the court, the proper administration of justice, the dignity and purity of the profession, and for the public good and the protection of clients.'

"The same doctrine is thus tersely stated in Thornton on Attorneys at Law, Vol. 2, sec. 758, p. 1167-9: 'From the very earliest times the right to punish attorneys by suspension or disbarment, as well as for contempt, has been exercised by the courts as an inherent power; indeed, it has been truthfully said that nothing is better settled than the fact of the existence of this power, and that the court may exercise it with as much propriety as if it were embedded in the constitution or declared by statute, in the absence of restrictive legislation.'

Judge Atwood's Findings.

"The doctrine of inherent power of courts to admit and disbar attorneys," Judge Atwood says, "is sometimes denied on the theory that, in the distribution of state governmental power, executive and judicial departments are invested by grant, whereas, by limitations placed on the legislative department the people reserve certain power to themselves, so that all governmental power not thus expressly granted or reserved is vested in the Legislature. From this it is argued that if the power to create and regulate a bar is not granted to the judicial department or reserved to the people by limitation on the legislative department, it is vested in the legislature, and that all judicial power being granted power, it is derivative and cannot be inherent.

"In Andrew's American Law (2d ed.), Vol. 1, p. 423, and in 12 C. J., sec. 167, p. 748, N. 8, secs. 236, 237, pp. 804, 805, notes 37, 48 and p 873, state constitutions are referred to as instruments of grant as to executive and judicial powers and of limitation as to legislative power. It would seem that such generalization must yield to the language of the particular constitution under consideration, and no such distinction appears in Missouri's constitutional delegation of legislative and judicial powers.

"The legislative power, subject to the limitations in the Constitution contained, is vested in a Senate and House of Representatives, to be styled 'the General Assembly of the State of Missouri.' The judicial power, as to matters of law and equity, except as in the Constitution otherwise provided, is vested in a Supreme Court, the St. Louis Court of Appeals, circuit courts, criminal courts, probate courts and municipal corporation courts. (Section 1, article 4, and section 1, article 6, Missouri Constitution.) Each power is thus by general grant 'confided to a separate magistracy,' as provided in article 3, and both are parts of the political power 'vested in and derived from the people' (section 1, article 2, Missouri Constitution), and distributed by the provisions of article 3.

"So in this State, if either department can be said to obtain its power by grant, the same can be said of the other department, and the powers of both are obviously derived from the people. Nevertheless, both departments are commonly spoken of as possessing inherent powers, and regardless of the soundness of these observations or the syllogism above stated, it is a fundamental principle of constitutional law that each department of Government, whether Federal or State, 'has, without any express grant, the inherent right to accomplish all objects naturally within the orbit of that department, not expressly limited by the fact of the existence of a similar power elsewhere or the express limitations in the Constitution.' (Andrew's American Law (second edition), volume 1, section 182, page 221; legal tender cases, 79 U. S. 457, 532, 556; and cases heretofore cited.)

Power to Admit or Disbar.

"It is not always easy to determine what objects are naturally within the range or orbit of a particular department of Government, but it will scarcely be denied that a primary object essentially within the orbit of the judicial department is that courts properly function in the administration of justice, for which purpose they were created, and in the light of judicial history they cannot long continue to do this without power to admit and disbar attorneys who from time immemorial have in a peculiar sense been regarded as their officers.

"Since the object is not naturally within the orbit of the legislative department, the power to accomplish it is in its exercise judicial and not legislative, although in the harmonious co-ordination of powers necessary to effectuate the aim and end of government it may be regulated by statutes to aid in the accomplishment of the object but not to frustrate or destroy it.

"Since this power as to judicial matters naturally belongs to the judicial department and is not expressly lodged elsewhere in the Constitution, it remains for us to determine whether it is excluded or restricted by any constitutional provision. Counsel for respondent say that it is excluded as to the Supreme Court by the provisions of sections 2 and 3 of Article VI, which allot 'appellate jurisdiction only' to that court, together with 'general superintending control over all in inferior courts' and 'power to issue writs or habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto, certiorari and other remedial writs and to hear and determine the same,' and such in effect were the minority views in the Selleck and Sizer and Gardner cases.

"The contention apparently grows out of the thought that disbarment is an adversary proceeding between parties which must fall within or without the allotted jurisdiction of cases. This is an erroneous conception. Disbarment is not an adversary proceeding in that sense. As said in Thornton on Attorneys at Law, volume 2, section 760, page 1171, n. 14, 'the inquiry is always in the nature of an investigation by the court into the conduct of one of its officers, and the exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction.'

"In Fairfield County Bar vs. Taylor, 60 Conn. 11, 15, it is said that such a proceeding is 'an investigation by the court into the conduct of one of its own officers, not the trial of an action or suit.' Also, In re Bowman, 7 Mo. App. 569, quoted with approval in State vs. Peck (Conn.) Ann. Cas. 1917 B. 227: 'The proceeding to disbar an attorney is neither a civil nor a criminal proceeding, but is a proceeding sui generis, the object of which is, not the punishment of the offender, but the protection of the court.' Also see (here follows another list of decisions). We find nothing in the foregoing sections or elsewhere in the fundamental law tending to exclude, limit or withhold such power from the courts.

"It may be that in the analysis of powers delegated under written constitutions it is not strictly accurate to speak of this right or power as inherent (15 C. J., sec. 30, p. 732), but metaphysical distinctions are not always helpful in the administration of justice. In a very practical sense, this power, whether deemed inherent or implied, naturally belongs to each department of government and to each 'separate magistracy' to which the power expressly delegated is confided. The term inherent is aptly descriptive of the identical power that was exercised by like agencies long before written constitutions were adopted, and inasmuch as the power still persists in full vigor in each of the three great branches of government its historical designation will hardly be abandoned, though for the purposes of this discussion the choice of adjectives is unimportant. The vital fact is that such power, independent of express grant, either constitutional or statutory, exists in the judicial branch of government, and, therefore, in courts which constitute the 'separate magistracy' to which the judicial power is expressly confided.

Jurisdiction in Richards Case.

Having thus disposed of the question of jurisdiction, Judge Atwood took up Richards' contention that the Court had no right to disbar him because he had been acquitted by a jury of the charge of kidnaping for ransom, that case having been based on the same allegations of fact as the disbarment proceeding. Richards also contended that the Bar Association's complaint charged him with a criminal offense involving moral turpitude, and that such charges were properly matter for indictment and trial, and not for disbarment proceedings. Of this, Judge Atwood says:

"The statutory reasons for suspension or disbarment of attorneys in this State are set forth in section 11707 R. S. 1929, which is as follows:

"'Any attorney or counselor at law may be removed or suspended from practice in the courts of this State for any of the following reasons: First, if he be convicted of any criminal offense involving moral turpitude; second, if he unlawfully retain his client's money or if he is guilty of any malpractice, fraud, deceit or misdemeanor whatsoever in his professional capacity; third, if he shall have been removed, suspended or disbarred from the practice of law in any other state or jurisdiction and shall fail to disclose such fact in his application for license to practice law in this State.'

"In performing the acts alleged in the complaint, respondent (Richards) is therein alleged to be guilty of 'a misdemeanor and malpractice in his professional capacity.' The performance of the acts is alleged to have 'amounted to professional misconduct on the part of Paul Richards and was in violation of the statutes of this State, and was such conduct upon his part as to disqualify him from further acting as an attorney at law.' It thus appears that respondent is charged under the second classification of the reasons stated in the above statute for which an attorney may be removed or suspended, while respondent's disbarment is sought on the ground that the acts therein alleged amount to professional misconduct in violation of the statutes of this State, and on the further ground that such conduct on his part disqualified him from further acting as an attorney at law.

Casts Aside Acquittal Defense.

"Now respondent contends that certain of the acts alleged in effect charge him with the commission of a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude,' conviction of which is the first reason for disbarment named in the statute, and that having been acquitted on such a criminal charge based on the same acts, such acts may not be charged and proved as reasons for his disbarment. Assuming without deciding that the indictment was based on the acts referred to, it certainly does not follow that after acquittal thereon these same acts may not be charged and proved as reasons for disbarment if they in fact show that respondent is unfit to continue in the practice of law. The great weight of authority is that statutory grounds of disbarment are not exclusive. (A list of authorities follows.)

"Furthermore, we can think of no good reason why any misbehavior by respondent 'in his professional capacity,' even though it reach the gravity of a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude,' is not a proper matter for investigation and disbarment as 'a misdemeanor and malpractice in his professional capacity.'

"Long ago the St. Louis Court of Appeals very sensibly held that the words 'misdemeanor in his professional capacity,' in the Missouri statute as to attorneys-at-law, are not used in the technical sense of offenses punishable by fine and imprisonment in jail, but as the equivalent of professional misbehavior. Criminal conviction of the graver offense is sufficient reason for disbarment without other investigation or determination, because the retention as an officer of the Court of one so convicted would be inimical to the public confidence and esteem so essential to courts in the efficient administration of justice.

"On the other hand, though for one reason or another such criminal proceeding results in an acquittal, the acts charged may be a proper matter for investigation and disbarment under other provisions of the statue or independent of the reasons named in the statute.

"It is true that by a bare majority this court once held, in construing a statute then in force, that 'it was never contemplated that the court before which the disbarment proceedings were pending should ascertain the facts in a case where the charges reached the gravity of indictable offenses,' and that the record from the court having charge of the criminal proceedings was binding upon the court hearing the disbarment proceedings whether it showed acquittal or conviction. (State ex rel. Selleck vs. Reynolds, 252 Mo. 369, 333, 158 S. W. 671).

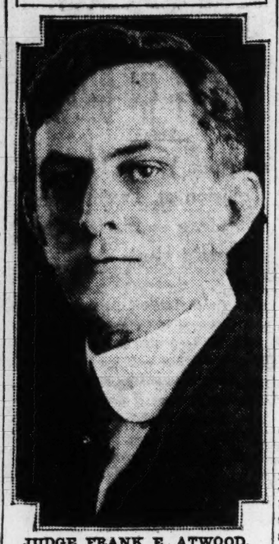

"The fallacy of this majority holding was clearly indicated in two dissenting opinions. As heretofore stated, disbarment is not a criminal proceeding. Its purpose is not to punish but to ascertain those whose conduct has demonstrated their unfitness to practice law and to deprive them of their previously acquired right to serve as officers of the court, and the inquiry is not limited to conduct in the presence of the court or to matters connected with a case in court. Any statutory enactment undertaking to make an acquittal in a criminal prosecution a bar to such an investigation would be, as heretofore, suggested, an unconstitutional encroachment of the legislative upon the judicial department of government, and such is the weight of well reasoned authority. (List of authorities.)

"A few years after the majority opinion in the Selleck case was handed down, the General Assembly removed the excuse for this judicial aberration by repealing section 956 R. S. 1909 and enacting a new section in lieu thereof (Laws 1919, pp. 151-3), now section 11712 R. S. 1929, the pertinent provisions of which are as follows:

"'If the charge allege a conviction for any criminal offense involving moral turpitude, the court shall, on production of the record of such conviction, remove the attorney so convicted or suspend such attorney from practice for a limited time, according to the nature of the offense, as the court may deem just, and without further trial. If the attorney be acquitted or discharged upon his trial, or if he be charged under the second, third or fourth clause of 11707, and appears at the time fixed by court and denies the charges preferred against him, or having been notified as required by section 11709 or 11710, fails to appear, the court shall forthwith hear the evidence offered in support of said charge and the evidence offered by the accused, and shall determine the matter without delay.'

"Counsel for respondent suggest that the above portion of section 11712 which refers to the acquittal or discharge of an attorney 'can be construed in only one logical, reasonable and equitable way—that is, that it refers to the acquittal or discharge of an attorney of some offense which does not involve moral turpitude.' The legislative intent is too plain to admit of any such construction. The acquittal or discharge must be 'upon his trial' and the only trial mentioned or referred to in the statute is one for a 'criminal offense involving moral turpitude.' The last sentence above quoted obviously means as heretofore stated, that notwithstanding such acquittal or discharge, evidence as to the commission of acts upon which the criminal prosecution was based may be heard and determined in a proceeding to remove or suspend an attorney if appropriately charged either under or independent of the statute."

JEWISH QUESTION ENTERS NEW YORK MAYORALTY FIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The question of anti-Semitism entered the three-cornered struggle for the mayoralty yesterday.

Joseph V. McKee, accused of criticising the ethics of Jewish school children in an article written in 1915, denies it, and struck back at his fusion opponent, Fiorello H. La Guardia.

"Mr. La Guardia," said McKee, "has deliberately, viciously and for self gain brought the religious question into this campaign by misinterpreting the intent and spirit of a single paragraph in an article written almost 20 years ago."

His denial that any attack on Jews "was made or intended" followed a demand by Samuel Untermyer, lawyer, that McKee, the Recovery party candidate for Mayor, explain.

Untermyer said that if published reports of the articles, written while McKee was a teacher, were correct, they constituted a "false, distorted and gross libel."

Nathan Straus Jr., Recovery party candidate for aldermanic president and himself a Jew, said there was no man in the country "more completely free from racial or religious intolerance" than McKee.

A registration of 2,322,382 voters indicated the wide interest in the campaign. This is only 16,422 fewer than for last year's presidential election, which set a record.

Mrs. Lee B. Carr, proprietor of a dress shop in the Melbourne Hotel, was granted a divorce today from Joseph S. Carr, onetime cashier of the defunct Chippewa Bank, who wrecked that institution by embezzling $710,000 more than 10 years ago.

Mrs. Carr, alleging desertion, testified her husband left her Sept. 1, 1931, two and one-half years after he had been released from prison where he served almost five years on his plea of guilty to four embezzlement charges. They were married in Mexico, Mo., in 1912. Mrs. Carr said the last she heard of her husband he was in Cameron County, Texas. She did not ask alimony. There are no children.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The American dollar at one time gained 17 cents today but reacted to close at $4.51, only six cents better than Saturday. The chief factor was hasty covering by continental speculators on week-end developments, supplemented by local American buying with the proceeds of gold currency sales. The sentiment was helped by the belief the United States does not intend to bring about drastic inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The American dollar closed strong today at 18.06 francs ($5.53 cents to the franc) compared with the opening figure of 17.87 (5.59 cents to the franc.)

COFFMAN AND NOVACK BRIDGE CHAMPIONS

Playing consistently accurate bridge, Raymond Henry Coffman, 4615 Lindell boulevard, and Alvin S. Novack, 705 Alhambra Court, East St. Louis, won the St. Louis contract championship early yesterday in the final match at the Coronado Hotel, turning in the highest score of 26 pairs.

Novack and Coffman, employing the Sims system, ran up an imposing total of 263 match points for a substantial lead over the runner-up pair, William M. Everett, 4311 West Pine boulevard, and Walter B. Trask, 5556 Clemens avenue, who had a total of 242½.

Play in the final match began at 8:30 p. m. Saturday and continued into yesterday morning with a brief recess in which the contestants had coffee and sandwiches. Play was concluded at 3 a. m., but it was 4:30 before the auditors had figured out the score which gave the championship to the Coffman-Novack pair.

The victory of Coffman and Novack, who have been playing together for more than a year, gives them possession of the Hugo F. Urbauer trophy for the coming year. They will also receive medals from the United States Bridge Association.

The 20 highest pairs in the match also will compete for the St. Louis team-of-four championship to be played Thursday and Friday nights at the Coronado Hotel.

I. C. C. IS GRANTED REVIEW OF RAILROAD STOCK RULING

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission was granted a review by the Supreme Court today of the decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals setting aside its order directing the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Co. to divest themselves of stock of the Wabash and of the Lehigh Valley railroads.

In May, 1929, the commission began proceedings to inquire into the acquisition of stock in the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley. It acted under the terms of the Clayton anti-trust act on the theory that the Pennsylvania Co., which acquired the stock, was serving as the agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that in effect the railroad had obtained control of 30 per cent of the Lehigh Valley and 49½ per cent of the Wabash stock. The Wabash at that time owned 19 per cent of the Lehigh Valley.

NAZI ASSAILANT OF AMERICAN STILL IN CONCENTRATION CAMP

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd received a written communication from the Foreign Office today that the assailant of Dr. Daniel Mulvihill was arrested Aug. 24 and placed in a German concentration camp, where he has remained since.

Dr. Mulvihill, whose home is at Danbury, Conn., and who is connected with the Long Island Medical College at Brooklyn, was struck on the head in Berlin Aug. 8 for failing to salute a National Socialist detachment.

In the same communication, the Foreign Office said two men who struck Roland Velz of Meriden, Conn., when he failed to salute the Nazi emblem, were found at Duesseldorf Saturday and taken to Berlin for investigation.

In regard to other cases, the Foreign Office said the German Government was doing everything possible to expedite a checkup.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Again stressing state and local responsibility in the unemployment relief program, President Roosevelt last night opened the four-week charity campaign of the 1933 Mobilization for Human Needs with an address by radio from the White House. He asserted persons who wanted the Feedral Government to assume the whole burden were "buck-passers."

The President appealed to "the individual American citizen to continue to do his or her part, even more unselfishly than in the past, and repeated that the Government would not let anyone starve this winter.

Text of Address.

"I have spoken on several occasions of the vital importance to our country that private charity in all that broad term covers, must be kept up at least to the levels, and I hope even beyond the levels, of former years.

"At this opening of the four weeks' 1933 mobilization for human needs, I want not only to reaffirm what I have said before, but to stress the fact that the fine teamwork in the recovery program cannot be successful if an important horse is lying back in the traces.

"It is true that I have declared that Government must not let any one starve this winter; but at the same time this policy is predicated on the assumption that the individual American citizen will continue to do his and her part, even more unselfishly than in the past.

"Let me stress that a great many people will still need the help of relief agencies this winter. It is true that because of a partial,, but I believe a steadily growing, re-employment of the unemployed, many families and many individuals have been taken off the local relief rolls.

"But, on the other hand, the needs of those who are still on the rolls is proportionately greater than it was before, and, in addition to the work of direct relief, it is necessary for us to continue our support of the permanent hospital and welfare services that exist in every county and in most communities.

"A number—I am glad to say a small number—of people have written to me to express the thought that all relief work should be taken over by the Government, and have intimated that they would not feel any duty this year to subscribe to local relief or local charity.

"These people have a wholly wrong slant on the fundamental basis of our American civilization. They deny the civic responsibility of the individual and would seek to toss every problem into the lap of Government. They are 'buck passers.'

"On the other hand, the overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly that it is first the duty of the individual and the local community to do all that they can to maintain relief and welfare; that it is then the obligation of the state government to supplement local efforts, and that finally, if all of this put together is not sufficient, the Federal Government stands ready to help.

"This mobilization for human needs will keep the long established hospital and welfare services going. These services existed long before the depression; they will exist long after the depression is over.

"I ask every citizen to give his or her support to the community chests and to other organizations that raise funds for the regular welfare services—bodies which express the instincts of charity, of humanity and of neighborliness. They are an essential to the whole American scheme of life. Their meaning is expressed in the name—the mobilization for human needs.

"I am glad indeed that my old friends, Newton D. Baker, one more is heading the forces of mobilization and this time we are happy that it is a mobilization of peace.

Movie Actress Undergoes Emergency Operation for Appendicitis.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 16.—Jean Harlow, platinum blonde, movie actress, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis yesterday, was reported resting easily and showing signs of quick recovery.

The attack of appendicitis upset Miss Harlow's plans for a honeymoon trip to Honolulu with Harold G. Rosson, movie cameraman, whom she married a few weeks ago in Yuma, Ariz.

BYRD IN BED WITH SEVERE ATTACK OF LARYNGITIS

By the Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 16.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the explorer, was confined to his bed at a hotel here today suffering with an acute attack of laryngitis and general pharyngytis, it was announced by Dr. Guy Shirley, physician with the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

"If his condition has not improved by this afternoon," Dr. Shirey stated, "I expect to call in other physician for a consultation."

He expressed the opinion, however, that Admiral Byrd's illness, which last night prevented his personal appearance for farewell exercises at the navy yard, would be well cleared up by tonight.

"I went over his chest carefully early today," Dr. Shirey continued, "and found no trouble there. His throat, however, is in such a serious condition that no one is being allowed to see him today.

"Admiral Byrd is living now under such a tremendous mental tension as he goes about the job of arranging details for his second trip to the South Pole and has been under such tension for so long a time that his resistance, naturally, has been greatly reduced."

Gov. Pollard Soon Will Free Ten Who Let Mosquitoes Bite Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 16.—Gov. Pollard indicated today that he would soon pardon 10 penitentiary inmates who allowed themselves to be bitten by mosquitoes which had bitten persons suffering from encephalitis in St. Louis.

None of the 10, who have been confined to a radio-equipped screened room, has suffered any ill effects.

Health Commissioner Warren F. Draper said: "The morale of the 10 has been excellent and they are glad to have the opportunity to be of public service in the test. Several public health service men have subjected themselves to bites of the mosquitoes. Another week will elapse before something definite can be said as to the experiment here."

Many other penitentiary inmates, after observing the original volunteers, have offered to submit to tests in return for freedom.

Apartment Entered While She Was Attending His Funeral, Gangster's Widow Reports.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Burglars broke into the apartment of Mrs. Georgette Winkler, widow of Gus Winkler, while she was in St. Louis attending his funeral, police were informed last night. They said a loss of 10 sable furs, valued at $3000, was reported.

Winkler, gangster, was murdered last week. He maintained an expensive apartment on the Lake Shore drive.

Missouri Senator Says He Intends to Introduce Amendment to First Revenue Bill From House.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri announced Saturday night that it was his intention to introduce as an amendment to the next revenue bill a provision for the imposition of a super surtax on income derived from all foreign securities; the amendment would include national, municipal and corporate securities, issued abroad, Clark said.

He said that his amendment would apply only to income from foreign securities purchased hereafter in this country.

Clark's statement follows: "Of course, since revenue measures must originate in the House of Representatives, I cannot introduce this measure as an original bill in the Senate except to have it printed for information. However, it is my intention to prepare it and have it ready to offer as an amendment to the first revenue measure which comes over from the House.

"Plundered Out of Billions.

"The American people have been plundered out of billions and billions of dollars in the last 15 years by the sale in this country of worthless securities and securities of doubtful value. Such unpatriotic firms of international bankers as Dillon, Reed & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Morgan & Co., the Chase Securities Co. and the National City Co. have profited to the tune of scores of millions by foisting these issues upon American investors.

"One feature of these sales was the liberal rate of interest allowed upon these securities. Naturally, being under no particular obligation as to what was done with the proceeds of the money and not being bound by the statements of American underwriters, these foreigners were able to pay a much more attractive rate of interest than the American Government or American municipalities.

"Buncoing the American People."

"These rates were only less potent than the 'ballyhoo' of the underwriters in 'buncoing' the American people into buying the securities. Many of these securities were from countries which have now put themselves into the position of being international dead-beats by refusing to pay the United States the money borrowed from it and 'thumbing thtir noses' at all attempts to collect it.

"The measure which I propose to introduce is designed to put a brake upon such frauds upon the American investing public by the imposition of an additional tax of from 1 to 3 per cent upon income derived from these foreign securities. I shall also endeavor to discourage the efforts of the international bankers to mislead the public by imposing a super surtax running up to 90 per cent upon profits derived from underwriting and floating foreign securities."

A report favoring increasing the available water supply in the Monongahela River in Pennsylvania and West Virginia by surmounting existing dams with flash boards, but opposing lock dimension changes at dams 10 to 15, inclusive, was announced in St. Louis today by the War Department divisional engineer's office.

Col. George R. Spalding, in charge of St. Louis office, said "the principal grounds upon which these conclusions are based are that the further benefits expected from lock modifications are not great enough to warrant the necessary expenditure therefor."

An appeal from the decision may be made to the Board of Engineers for Rivers anad Harbors, a permanent body at Washington.

HOLDUP VICTIM FALLS DEAD WHEN HE LOOKS AT SUSPECT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Henry Harmon, a restaurant cashier, was the victim of a holdup man yesterday. The man escaped, but half an hour later Harmon was called on by police to look at a suspect, William Duff.

Brought face to face with the prisoner, Harmon fell dead of a heart attack. Police said that if he had suffered the heart attack during the actual holdup the charge against Duff would have been first degree murder.

FEDERAL HOUSING PROGRAM BEGINS TO TAKE SHAPE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — To speed development of President Roosevelt's plans for housing and feeding the nation's unfortunates, administration aids are proceeding as rapidly as possible toward creation of the contemplated Federal Housing Corporation.

In another phase of similar work, the Public Works Administration, which will supply the finances, has assigned experts to draw plans for the home-constructing agency and to correlate its activities with the projected subsistence farm program.

Incorporation papers have been prepared for the housing unit, which will be under the general direction of Secretary Ickes, Public Works Administrator.

Administration officials said today that, in general, the plan would be construction of individual homes and apartment buildings, none to be ostentations, but "clean and decent places," to take the place of existing slum dwellings.

Cost Not Yet Estimated.

No one would estimate how much might be spent. One official remarked that "at least eight billions has been suggested from here and there," while others pointed to expenditures of around $40,000,000 for slum clearance already authorized.

Buildings will be rented and sold on the partial payment plan, officials said, adding that whether apartment spaces would be sold probably would depend upon the persons in them and any sort of co-operative arrangement they might work out to underwrite repayment.

It was indicated that the apartments would be "walk-ups," with individual or row-houses along the same pattern.

Just what arrangements would be worked out to pay for the structures in which individual families lived was another matter to which officials were giving attention, realizing that some persons might be unable to make any down payment or a very small one at the most.

Coincident to the housing plans, officials are studying a correlation with subsistence farming, in the belief that it might be desired in some instances to move families to fa..ms from areas being cleared for homes.

Subsistence Farm Plan.

These settlements, along with Federal housing developments, will be under governmental regulation to supervise the development and advancement of the persons as well as to guard the Federal investment.

The Public Works Administration was given $25,000,000 for the subsistence farming program, under which families are to be placed on small tracts of land to grow their own foodstuffs and become economically independent through allied educational and industrial development.

Approximately $8,000,000 is to be used in building 23 villages of such families, with about 200 families in each, in mining areas in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Western Kentucky.

The first of these was ordered located near Morgantown, W. Va. Each family there will have from two to four acres and a small house, to cost about $2000. It will become their property under a 20-year purchase plan.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 16. — Millard F. Dunlap, 76 years old, and William G. Goebel, former officials of the defunct Ayers National Bank of Jacksonville, who were recently convicted of making false entries in the bank's books and of conspiracy, were denied a new trial by United States District Judge Charles Briggle Saturday.

Sentence was not pronounced.

Permission to file a petition for probation was granted. It will be heard Friday. Motion for arrested judgment was made, but also denied.

Dunlap and Goebel were convicted Oct. 7. The false entry and conspiracy charges centered on a $30,000 note signed by B. M. Flynn of Geneva and former State Treasurer Oscar Nelson. Interest payments on the loan had never been made although recorded on the bank's books.

Dunlap waits another trial with Andrew Russel, former State Auditor and State Treasurer, on Federal charges growing out of the bank crash last November. Other indictments also have been returned in Circuit Court at Jacksonville against the bank officials.

ACCUSED MINISTER FOUND DEAD

Body of Dr. E. L. Thompson in His Auto in Louisiana.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 16.—Dr. Eustis L. Thompson, Minister of Dallas, Tex., and Shreveport, awaiting trial on Federal charge of sending obscene matter through the mails, was found dead today in his automobile in a woods near Pleasant Hill, La.

Relatives had reported his disappearance to police, expressing fears he had either met with violence or had become temporarily deranged. A message received here by a brother, W. W. Thompson, an attorney of Lake Charles, La., said the minister had evidently been dead for three or four days.

The Biltmore Cafe, 5606 Delmar boulevard, was robbed of $385 last night by three armed men, who held up Mrs. Emelia Sarros, wife of George Sarros, the proprietor, and Frank Ellsworth, the chef. The money was taken from the cash register.

Robert Smith, Negro, reported that while agents of a policy game were meeting at 2330 Division street, three Negroes entered, stole $130 from a desk drawer and escaped. Police arrested the 85 Negroes present on gambling charges.

Harry J. Swoboda, grocer, had just put his car in his garage at 3960 Fillmore street late Saturday night when two armed robbers took $170 and his keys.

Tear gas set off when burglars hammered off the combination of a safe at the Haase Realty Co., 921 Chestnut street, drove the burglars away without loot.

Entering a vacant flat above the John F. Weber Grocery Co., 4200 Olive street, burglars bored holes into the floor until they were able to drop through to the balcony of the store. They stole $30 from one safe, but were unable to reach the money compartment in another.

Jewelry valued at $610 and $37.50 in cash were stolen from the home of Henry D. Steimke, 1102 Dover place, by burglars.

Noticing an intoxicated Negro wearing a bright new lumber jack coat at Twenty-third street and Delmar boulevard yesterday, two officers arrested him. He admitted he had broken into the dry goods stores of Alexander Rochman, 2310 Franklin avenue, and Morris Kurtz, 2306 Franklin, early in the day, stealing $2 and the coat from the first store and $11 from the other.

MISSOURI DUCK SEASON OPENS

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—With the open season on waterfowls in Missouri officially opening at noon today, no large flights of ducks and geese have been reported.

Wilbur C. Buford, State Game and Fish Commissioner, said an increasing number of migratory birds would be reported throughout the State as colder weather approached. General Federal regulations on daily bag limits are: Ducks, 12; geese, including brant, 4; rails and gallinules, 25; jacksnipe, 20; woodcock, 4; mourning doves, 18; band-tailed pigeons, 10. The season closes at sundown on Dec. 15.

Crushed to Death by Elevator.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—J. C. Figg was crushed to death yesterday, between an elevator cage and the third floor at a hotel. Joseph Lahondi and R. H. Stevens, World's Fair visitors from Detroit, were trapped in the elevator which had stalled. Figg opened the third floor door and was looking up the shaft to ascertain the trouble when the cage suddenly dropped, crushing him. Firemen worked two hours to extricate Figg's body.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE RETURNED IN DEATH OF JOHN M'TIGUE

He Was Unemployed and Had Been Under Treatment for Nervous Breakdown.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide while suffering from a temporary mental aberration was returned today in the case of John McTigue, who ended his life with a revolver Saturday night in a garage in back of his home, 538 West Hurck street.

McTigue, 38 years old, had been under treatment for a nervous breakdown, his brother-in-law, Patrick Cain, testified. He had been unemployed after working as a clerk in a gambling establishment at Venice. He was a brother of Peter McTigue, Cuckoo gangster, who was killed by rival gangsters three years ago near Valmeyer, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

BOWLING GREEN, O., Oct. 16.—Returning home from a football game, three high school students were killed in an automobile collision near here Saturday night. They were William Woodruff, 17 years old; Rudolph Scheihauer Jr., 15, and David Sears, 16.

The boys were returning to Bowling Green from Lima, O., when their car struck another driven by Albert Beck, 36, Detroit, Mich. Beck suffered a broken knee cap, skull and internal injuries. His son, Richard, 12, was cut on the leg.

U. S. DENIES WELLES AIDED CUBAN OFFICERS

State Department Asserts Ambassador Did Not Advise Them to Take Refuge in Hotel.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — The State Department yesterday asserted that Ambassador Sumner Welles at Havana had no connection with the assembling of Cuban army officers at the National Hotel there, from which they were subsequently dislodged after a pitched battle with soldiers.

The department's statement, understood to have been prompted by the circulation of rumors in Havana, said:

"The department has been informed that an effort is being made to involve the Embassy at Havana in the action taken by the Cuban army officers last month in taking refuge in the National Hotel, and in subsequent events.

"With regard to this matter, the department can state unequivocally that, far from instigating the assembling of the officers in the National Hotel, Ambassador Welles had no knowledge of their intention until the event took place. Moreover, Mr. Welles was equally unaware of any of their subsequent plans, never having spoken to any of them, either individually or collectively, or having attempted to communicate with them since they took refuge in the National Hotel."

S. B. Montgomery Dies at Quincy.

By the Associated Press.

QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 16.—S. B. Montgomery, 84 years old, banker and former president of the Illinois Bankers' Association, died at his home here last night. County Judge in Schuyler County before coming here, Montgomery quit his law practice to become an officer of the State Savings, Loan and Trust Co. Bank. Until the bank closed two years ago, he was at various times its president and chairman of the board.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

2000 TO GET JOBS ON MISSOURI RIVER

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16.—F. W. Kassebaum Jr., regional inspector for the Public Works Administration, said that more than 200 projects utilizing Federal funds are under way in Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

More than 50 per cent of the road work planned has been started. Many other projects are being lined up rapidly.

The army engineers' office here was notified by Washington headquarters to receive bids immediately for completion of Missouri River work between Kansas City and St. Louis under a $3,600,000 appropriation. The work will give employment to 2000 men for from six to eight months.

Capt. Theodore Wyman Jr., district engineer, said engineer estimates have placed at approximately $1,800,000, just half of the appropriation, the cost of the eight projects involved. Bids are to be opened between Oct. 20 and 26. The work between Hermann and St. Louis is to be handled by the St. Louis district engineer officers.

The eight projects: Providence and Sandy Hook bends, centering about three miles upstream from Sandy Hook, 4710 feet of pile dikes and 1000 feet of revetment.

Chamois bend to McGirk's Island reach, centering about six miles downstream from Chamois, 4895 feet of pile dikes and 2200 feet of revetment.

Randolph bend to Jackson's bend, centering about 10 miles downstream from Kansas City, 5800 feet of pile dikes.

By the Associated Press.

MARCELINE, Mo., Oct. 16.—Two trainmen were injured when the Santa Fe Railroad's passenger train The Missionary, California to Chicago, crashed into the rear of a mixed local train seven miles west of here yesterday.

Peter Rowan, engineer of The Missionary, was taken to a Fort Madison (Ia.) hospital. J. F. Zircher, Kansas City, Kan., baggage man on the local train, also was seriously injured.

The local train had been stopped on the track by an eastbound freight train which had been unable to pull up a grade. The engine of the local was detached and used in an attempt to help the freight train climb the incline.

MAN WHO TRIED TO ENTER HOUSE BEATEN BY CAPTORS

Woman Attempts to Bar Him, Then Runs to Street and Calls for Help.

A 37-year-old Negro who attempted to force his way into the home of Miss Irene McLear, 1610 Elliot avenue, last night was captured and severaly beaten by three young men on whom Miss McLear called for aid.

Miss McLear said the Negro knocked at the front door at 10 o'clock and asked to enter. She attempted to slam the door, but when he put his foot inside, she opened the door, ran out and down the street calling for help.

The young men, Lloyd Leahy, 2821 Madison street, and Elmer Tobin and Kilbert Cassel, both of 2701A Howard street, said that the Negro fought with them when they stopped him for questioning. He was treated at City Hospital No. 2 for cuts and bruises and taken to the Dayton Street Police Station.

Artist's Model, Banker's Son Wed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Anne O'Brien, whom Broadway expected to be married to Graham McNamee, the radio announcer, before Thanksgiving, has eloped with Frank Keifer, son of a Pennsylvania banker. The ceremony was performed six weeks ago at Milton, Pa., by a Justice of the Peace. Anne O'Brien is one of the favorite models of Howard Chandler Christy and it was in the artist's studio that Keifer met her.

CHECK-UP ORDERED ON BROKERS' LOSSES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The Bureau of Internal Revenue today announced plans for a checkup of brokerage accounts to determine the validity of claims for losses in the last few years.

Forms have been printed on which brokers will be required to "render correct returns showing the names of customers for whom such person has transacted any business, with such details as to profits, losses or other information as will enable the commissioner (of internal revenue) to determine whether all income tax due on profits or gains of such customers has been paid."

"The commissioner feels that, due to the wide fluctuations of the market during the several years indicated above there were probably many transactions which were not properly reported in the income tax returns; and that because of the fact that certain individuals have taken advantage of the opportunity through sales that have a fictitious character as between husband and wife or between a taxpayer and an individual in close relationship to him, to distort taxable income through claims of losses that have no basis in fact, it is particularly appropriate this year to invoke the authority conferred upon him by the acts mentioned above (the revenue laws of 1928 and 1932).

"The undertaking is one of considerable magnitude and one which will necessitate much additional work on the part of the bureau forces. The bureau, however, feels that in no other manner can it conform to the requirements of the tax law which directs the commissioner to conduct examinations into the records of the taxpayers to determine whether or not tax schedules as filed are correct."

PROJECT FOR JERSEY COUNTY EROSION WORKERS ANNOUNCED

A new project for the Jersey County erosion camp has been announced for the fall and winter months by J. L. Allen, superintendent of the work. He states that a nursery for growing trees to be used in erosion work in this section of the State will be established and grafts from hardwood trees such as walnut and hickory will be made and developed.

Farmers of the community who have one or more black walnut locust trees on their land and are willing to do so, will furnish seed for the work. The Civilian Conservation Corps will gather the seed and store it until spring when it is contemplated that a temporary nursery will be established. The black locust will be planted in crowded areas, gully banks and on soil saving dams now being constructed so that by the time such dams have rotted away, the trees will be of such size as to hold erosion in check.

Playing With Shotgun, Wounds Girl

By the Associated Press.

BRUSWICK, Me., Oct. 16.—Hazel Pinkham, 20 years old, of Harpswell, is in a hospital here seriously wounded by a shotgun blast fired by Lindoll Wallace, 18. Her young brother had put a shell in the gun after shooting at a bird while the three were walking in the woods. Wallace pointed the weapon in fun at the girl and pulled the trigger.

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches and pain of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia...the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate. What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

TWO BROTHERS, SISTER SLAIN IN FAMILY ROW

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 16.—Two brothers and a sister were killed at an apartment here yesterday in a shooting which police believe arose over financial matters. The dead: Miss Lulu White, 62 years old; Valentine White, 55, and Emmanuel J. White, 51, reputedly wealthy.

Before she died, Miss White told Chief of Police Kilday that she and her brother, Valentine, were at dinner when Emmanuel came into the room armed with two pistols and started shooting. She said Valentine leaped to his feet, staggered as if hit, then ran to a bedroom, apparently for a weapon.

Police found Miss White shot through the back and in one arm. Valentine was in the kitchen, beside him a revolver from which six shots had been fired. Emmanuel was found on a back porch with an automatic pistol and an empty revolver. The revolver had been fired six times.

On the dining room table was about $30 in cash together with some acount books. More than $5000 in bills of small denomination was found tucked away in various hiding places.

TWO HOUSES STENCH BOMBED

William Lane, listed in hospital records as 84 years old, and residing at 503 South Broadway, died of encephalitis today.

Since July 30, when the first death occurred in St. Louis County, 116 residents of the city, 84 of the county and four of the East Side have died of the disease, which health authorities report out of the epidemic stage.

Clinical aspects of encephalitis are to be discussed at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow at St. Louis Medical Society, 3839 Lindell boulevard, under auspices of the St. Louis clinics. Speakers will include Health Commissioner Bredeck, Dr. G. O. Broun, Dr. George Ives and Dr. J. F. McFadden, with discussion led by Dr. Ralph A. Kinsella.

PREACHES ON JESUS' MESSAGE TO INDUSTRY

Dr. Lampe Says Service Must Supplant Profit and Power as Basic Motive.

The Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe, pastor of West Presbyterian Church, preached last night on the topic, "Jesus Speaks to Industry." The sermon was the third in a series on "Jesus and the Present Crisis."

"Jesus faced in an acute form the very things that we face in an acute form," the minister said. "He saw that the difficulty was more than a local one. It was more than ridding his people of the oppression of Rome and of an oppressive religious leadership. At bottom, the question was, how to rid the heart of man of the desire and willingness to exploit his brother.

"Unless that deeper problem could be solved, the overthrow of Rome would simply destroy one form of its operation, and it would break forth in a different place. So Jesus set himself to attack the main problem, the inner motive, the fundamental philosophy of life. He announced a new order of society which he called 'the Kingdom of God,' and he summoned men to become a part of it. He announced that society must be built on a permanent foundation of love to all men.

Attacked Financial Motive.

"Jesus attacked the motive of financial dominance. It was not the possession of wealth that Jesus attacked, but the motive—the lust for its possession. If Jesus could speak directly to this age, he most surely would speak with great plainness with reference to letting the lust for money come to a controlling place in life. He would say that any industry controlled by such a motive is a menace to the Kingdom of God.

"The other point of Jesus' attack was the motive of social domination. The class warfare of our day is not so much a struggle to overthrow a tyranny as it is to change the group that is in control.

"I am sure that if Jesus were to speak to industry today, he would say that in so far as it had to support itself by suppression of any group, or by keeping oppressive dominion over any group, it was organized on the wrong basis, and was holding back the Kingdom of God.

"The thing that he saw to be essential was a revolution in the desires of men. Until men can lose their little selves in an overmastering passion for the wellbeing of all, they will not be able to find life at all.

When Answer Will Be Found.

"But I hear Mr. Practical Man say, it simply cannot be done; people will not work unless there is the possibility of wealth and power; there is no way of organizing life on any other basis.

"The simple answer is that the way of doing it will be discovered when the people really believe it is the thing to do. In this world, we know that the way will be found to do whatever when believe is necessary.

"As a minister, I cannot tell you how to organize a business or an industry on the motive of unselfish and loving service. But I can tell you that, when men who know how to organize business become convinced that Jesus was right, that the thing needed is a revolution in the motives of men, and set themselves seriously to find the framework of such a society, they will not be long in finding it. It can be done when we are persuaded that it ought to be done.

"The disaster we are experiencing is due to the working of these motives, the lust for wealth and the lust for power. The cure can come by forcibly curbing and controlling greed for profit and power—the effort of the followers of Marx and Mussolini—or by the way of Jesus, the revolution of motives within man, and c anizing life, from inner choice, around the motive of loving service."

MACON MAKES COAST-TO-COAST TRIP IN 70 HOURS, 17 MINUTES

Navy Dirigible Enters Hangar at Sunnydale, Cal.; Commander Says It Met Every Test.

By the Associated Press.

SUNNYVALE, Cal., Oct. 16.—The giant United States navy dirigible Macon was in port here today, after a three-day cruise from Lakehurst, N. J.

The airship nosed into the mooring mast "cup" at 4:17 p. m. yesterday, 70 hours and 17 minutes after leaving Lakehurst. It was then anchored and wheeled into its hangar. Commander Alger H. Dresel said the Macon met every test on the long cruise and rode through storms and rain without strain.

SALINE COUNTY TO REDUCE WHEAT CROP 50,000 BUSHELS

By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 15.—There will be at least 50,000 fewer bushels of wheat produced in Saline County next season under the reduction contract of the benefit allotment plan of the Agriculture Administration Act, according to latest figures compiled by Henry W. Hamilton, county extension agent. There will be 2757 acres taken out of wheat production.

Thus far a total of 312 producers with 18,385 acres have signed the contract. The average yield of these producers for the harvest years, 1930 to 1932 inclusive, has been 18.2 bushels to the acre. The five-year average for the whole county during the years 1928-32 has been 749,641 bushels.

It is upon that figure that the Government has allotted a total benefit to the county of $121,100, contingent upon 100 per cent of the wheat acres being under contract.

"We already have more than 40 per cent of the wheat acreage of the county under the benefit allotment plan," Hamilton said. "I would not be surprised for the final figure to be around 60 per cent." All the larger wheat growers have applications in.

FIRE ROUTS GIRL STUDENTS

By the Associated Press.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Girl students at De Pauw University here were routed from their beds early yesterday by fire that nearly destroyed Mansfield Hall, oldest girls' dormitory on the university campus. The loss was placed at $85,000.

Robert Oxnam, son of the president of the university, G. Bromley Oxnam, was hurt when he was struck by falling debris while he was attempting to salvage some of the belongings of the girl students. Mansfield Hall was a three-story brick building. The third floor was destroyed and the other two floors were so badly damaged that executives said the walls would have to be torn down.

JAPANESE KIDNAP KOREAN

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, China, Oct. 16.—Seven men, including three Japanese, today kidnaped the naturalized Korean, Puo-Yui Jih, in Chinese territory in this city.

A motor car in which he was taken away later struck a bus. Police announced that the machine was registered as belonging to the Japanese Consul, but the Consul denied it. The kidnapers escaped after the crash and took their prisoner to Shamien, a Canton suburb, where he was put in the French jail. The Canton Mayor lodged a strong protest and demanded the release of the prisoner.

Recommended for Postmaster.

Congressman E. M. Schaefer of Belleville has announced he has forwarded the name of William Eades to the Postmaster-General for the appointment as postmaster at Renault, Monroe County, Ill. Eades will succeed Duncan S. Fults, who has resigned.

VARIETY STORE SALES GAINED IN SEPTEMBER

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — New Commerce Department figures on retail trade today showed that the nation spent more dollars in 5, 10 to a dollar stores in September than in August, and more than in September last year.

Some Government economists said the gains were not as large as hoped for, but the continuing upward trend of consumption was regarded as essentially helpful. Officials are watching the consumption figures closely at present to see if the nation's greatly increased production is being properly absorbed.

The figures showed gains in spending of about 7.5 per cent in September over August, and about five per cent in September this year over September last year.

These statistics covered only variety stores. The gain over August this year was smaller than in any of the previous three years, but this was partially accounted for by August's unseasonal gain of 3.4 per cent over July.

For the first time in this same period September showed an increase over September of the previous year. September, 1932, for example, was 11.4 under September, 1931; 1931 was 4.7 per cent under 1930, and 1930 was 8.4 per cent under 1929.

Government economists said increases were usual at this time of the year, but added they were particularly important at this time because of the unseasonal increases in production during the summer.

E. ST. LOUIS FIREMEN VOTE AGAINST GENERAL SALARY CUT

Decide Instead to Accept Plan Calling for Retirement of Five Men.

Members of the East St. Louis Fire Department voted yesterday in favor of retirement of five firemen rather than acceptance of a general 8 per cent salary reduction. They had been offered their choice of the two plans, in connection with the city's drastic economy program.

The retirement plan was chosen due to the fact that five members are already eligible for retirement, at pensions amounting to half their salaries, while if the salary reduction plan were adopted, pensions of all firemen would ultimately be affected.

The firemen, members of the American Federation of Labor, have not been paid for five and a half months. Their recommendations were to be submitted at a meeting of the City Council today.

FUNERAL OF SHOTGUN VICTIM

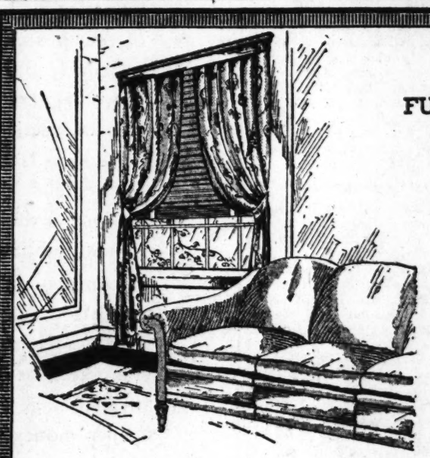

The funeral of Wayne Muskopf, 15-year-old deaf mute, who was killed Saturday when struck by a charge from a shotgun which had been placed on a stove at the home of his father, Peter Muskopf, near Mill stadt, Ill., will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The boy, who lived at the home of William Winkler, 2204A South J[illegible]on avenue, during the week so he might attend Gallaudet School, usually spent the week-end at the home of his father, caring for his house. It is thought he placed the shotgun on the stove to clean the corner in which it stood and that it was discharged by the heat of the fire.

In every home, replacements of rugs, furniture or draperies is now necessary. During the past few years, while thoughts have been on other things, Time has been at work on your furnishings, gradually wearing them out.
Why not make a survey of your home needs? List the articles you need to replace. Perhaps you can't get all of them now but do get something new. You owe it to your family and your home to do this.
Come to Kennard's where 77 years of experience and judgment are at your service without cost or obligation. Furthermore, our stock is a large and varied one—varied in the designs and styles and periods gathered for your choice; varied in the weaves and colorings, woods and finishes; varied in price. But in value, in distinction, in beauty and good taste there is no variance at all.
You will find a visit here definitely productive as regards the greater livability and comfort of your home.

Police Suspect Outbreak in Strife Between Rival Unions in Fulton County.

CANTON, Ill., Oct. 16.—The home of Clarence Maynard, president of a local of the United Mine Workers of America at Gilchrist, north of here, was dynamited late last night.

Gilchrist police said the investigation would be conducted on the theory that the dynamiting was an outbreak of strife between rival miners' factions in the Fulton County coal fields.

Maynard and members of his family were absent at the time of the explosion. The front part of the building was demolished and other portions were damaged.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

NEWSPAPER PRINTED ON LINEN; SILK EDGES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—An Ogden (Utah) newspaper of Feb. 17, 1906, chronicling the wedding of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth, printed in its entirety on the finest linen and bound at the edges in silk, is temporarily in the Rare Book Room of the Library of Congress.

The library doesn't own the newspaper. It was brought to V. Volta Parma, Rare Book Room director, by a woman who, having received it from C. M. Jackson, the editor, wanted to know just how rare it was.

Parma said today that as far as he has been able to find out, this particular print is unique. Never to his knowledge was another complete newspaper printed on cloth. And only one such copy was made.

In other ways also, the account is rare. A personal friend of both the late Theodore Roosevelt and the late Nicholas Longworth, the editor, Jackson, took the liberty to chronicling the nuptials in a breezy Western way that was in marked contrast to the more conventional accounts in the Eastern papers.

In Breezy Western Style.

Up in the "left ear" box, instead of the weather report, was the word "Nick," an din the opposite box was the word "Alice."

Over the twin two-column front page cuts was the four-column head, "Alice and Nick Are Now One," and below was the cut line, "Two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one."

The well-written story did not stop with the dazzling immediate facts, but also furnished "background," such as:

"It is asserted that Miss Roosevelt said 'no' to his wooing at least a dozen times. She told him at a theater one night, in the presence of a box party, that she hated bald-headed men. He grinned good-naturedly and remarked that his future wife would be unable to pull his locks.

"It is said that he finally gained her consent to his suit while they were visiting the Imperial Palace at Pekin. As they entered the portal of the Emperor's home he asked her for the thirteenth time, 'Will you be my wife?' and she replied, 'I'll give you an answer before we leave this building.'"

"Began to Get a Bit Tiresome."

But it was in the editorial column that Jackson gave his breeziest summary of the occasion that he was determined to make a history that would last. Along with felicitations, he said:

"We are glad that it is all over, because it began to get a bit tiresome."

Newspaper readers, he said, had had Alice and Nick for breakfast and for the evening meal. Alice's "gown didn't fit on the right shoulder," her "dress didn't arrive on time," her "open-work stockings were a size too large." Nick's "white vest had a button off," he "had a sore throat and we had that for three days, he "got up and ate a square meal and they poured that into us."

"Personally, had we been Alice and Nick," said Jackson, "we would have taken a green street car, and would have ridden down the avenue up past the capitol and over in the vicinity of the Navy Yard and hunted up a Justice of the Peace."

Of the bride, the paper said: "No American girl ever received half the world-wide homage and adulation that has been showered upon Alice Roosevelt." And yet, he added, her "head has not been turned."

TWO MORE MEN ARRESTED IN JONESBORO CHURCH KILLING

By the Associated Press.

JONESBORO, Ark., Oct. 16.—Two followers of the Rev. Dale S. Crowley in his turbulent fight to retain the pastorate of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle were arrested on accessory to murder charges Saturday, after the minister had been ordered held to the grand jury on a first degree murder charge for the slaying of J. W. MacMurdo, aged janitor of the church.

L. H. Kayre, a building contractor whom Crowley credited with saving his life during the shooting at the tabernacle last Tuesday night, and Tom Carter, former Deputy Sheriff and watchman at the church when Crowley was in control, were taken into custody on warrants issued by A. U. Tadlock, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney. Tadlock said the warrants were based on evidence that Carter struck MacMurdo over the head with a "blackjack" and Kayre hit him with a walking cane both before and after he was shot by Crowley.

TIME TO FIGHT

THE time has come when the intelligence of the country must speak its mind on the question of currency inflation, and speak it forcibly. It can no longer, it seems to this newspaper, stand by and permit the impression to gain ground in Washington that the Pittmans, the Thomases, the Bankheads and others of their kind are representative of the responsible and thinking mass of opinion in the nation.

There can be no question that those who understand monetary matters and who are familiar with the history of previous experiments in currency inflation are irreconcilably opposed to subjecting the country to the grave dangers inherent in these fatuous proposals. Unlike the inflationists, however, this great body of thoughtful citizens lacks, at the present time, the leadership and the organization that are essential if it hopes successfully to combat the uninformed but highly articulate propaganda of those who would resort to the printing press.

Any counter-movement launched against the inflationists should be non-partisan politically and should have leadership in which people could place confidence. Its objectives should be two: first, to educate the public in the dangers and fallacies that underlie demands for paper money inflation; second, to organize informed opinions so that the latter would make itself effectively felt in Washington.

Those who do not already realize it should be made to understand that there is no more vicious illusion in the world than the illusion that a shortage of money can be remedied by placing an official stamp on paper and declaring that such paper shall have a stated value. During every paper-money inflation of the past, whether one takes the case of the French assignats, the German marks or our own greenbacks, the result has always been the same: the faster the paper was printed, the greater and the more poignant the cry of a "shortage of currency." The reason for this is, of course, that such paper depreciates in value much faster than the printing press can produce new supplies. This is the essential fallacy of paper-money schemes. It is this fallacy which makes paper-money inflation, as an eminent German authority, Dr. Peter Reinhold, has put it, "the most terrible thing that can happen to any civilized state."

But it is the record of inflation of the currency that its evils do not end with an accentuation of the problem that it is expected to remedy. In the process it works an inequitable and a cruel redistribution of a country's wealth. As one historian has trenchantly written, "It leads to the absorption of the means of the workingman and the man of small fortune; it impoverishes men living on fixed incomes, salaries or wages, and creates on the ruins of this large group a small class of debauched speculators, the most injurious class that a nation can harbor—more injurious than professional criminals, whom the law can reach and throttle; it stimulates production at first, and leaves every industry prostrate afterward; it breaks down the idea of thrift and develops social and political immorality."

We want no experiments of that sort in the United States. But there is grave danger that we may have them forced upon us if those who are aware of their hidden dangers do not make their opinions felt. Friends of sound money cannot afford to permit an issue fraught with such grave economic and social consequences to go by default.

BILL FOR FEDERAL AID TO MISSOURI CITIES

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, in a letter to Gov. Park, today submitted a proposed draft for a bill to make debt-limit Missouri municipalities eligible for loans and grants from the Federal Public Works Administration.

The draft, prepared by Cannon in a form approved by counsel of the Public Works Administration, was drawn up for submission to the special session of the Missouri General Assembly which convenes tomorrow.

The proposed bill would enable a municipality which has borrowed up to its constitutional limit to qualify for a public works loan, if a majority of those voting at a special municipal election supported a bond issue.

Provision is made for municipalities having 75,000 population or less, "to borrow money and issue therefor negotiable bonds payable solely from the revenues to be derived from the operation," of the project or extension for which the bond issue is floated.

Excludes Three Largest Cities.

The limitation on population excludes St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph from the terms of the proposal.

The Cannon draft allows the financing and construction of all or any public utilities in one bill. Under its terms, self-liquidating projects may be grouped with others from which no revenue will be obtained and the whole cost paid for from the receipts of the former.

The suggested legislation provides for bonds paying a maximum of six per cent issued for a period not to exceed 30 years. Provision is made that the bonds shall "be payable serially in annual installments beginning not later than three years and extending not more than 30 years" from the date of issue. A contract for the acquisition of a project may provide for payment in bonds.

In providing that the proposal shall take effect immediately upon the affixing of the Governor's signature, the draft declares that, "an emergency within the meaning of the Constitution is hereby declared to exist."

Extremely Broad Scope.

The scope of the projects for which a municipality may float bonds is extremely broad. The wording of the draft is as follows: "The term 'project' shall mean any waterworks system, water supply system, sewerage system, sewage disposal plant, or any combination thereof; gas system, electric system, hospital, bridge, tunnel, viaduct, subway, street railway system, canal, terminal, auditorium, community building, gymnasium, golf course, swimming pool, stadium, market, warehouse, airport, ice plant, slaughter house, garbage disposal system, or rubbish disposal system, and shall include any and all appertenances or facilities necessary or incidental thereto." Extensions and improvements of existing projects are also authorized.

Under the terms of the act passed by the last session of Congress creating the Federal Public Works Administration, Missouri municipalities are eligible for a grant of 30 per cent of the cost of all labor and materials for a project and for a loan of the remaining 70 per cent at a rate of interest not to exceed four per cent.

THREE FACING COURTMARTIAL ESCAPE AT MITCHELL FIELD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Three men awaiting court-martial in the Mitchell Field military prison escaped last night under fire from guards who saw the three dash across the prison yard.

The men clambered over a seven-foot wire fence and got away in a waiting automobile. Military officials gave their names as George Fattcko, 19 years old, of Newark, N. J.; George Scheirbaum, 21, of Louisville, Ky., and Benjamin Gar, 22, address unknown. Fattcko and Scheirbaum were charged with grand larceny. The third man was being held on a military charge, the nature of which was withheld.

Prison authorities said they were investigating how the men managed to leave unnoticed the assembly room where the prisoners had been summoned for their Sunday night recreation period.

GOV. PARK ASKS COMMUNITIES TO AID WORKS PLAN

Proposes $15,000,000 Bond Issue to Replace Fire-Trap Buildings and to End Overcrowding.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Gov. Park made an appeal for support of his legislative proposals unemployment relief, and public works, to be submitted to a special session of the Legislature which convenes here tomorrow, in an address this afternoon before about 250 representatives of municipalities an dcounties, gathered here for a State-wide conference on public works.

Briefly reviewing the urgent necessity for provision of State funds to supplement Federal funds in relief work, the necessity for rehabilitation of the State eleemosynary and penal institutions, and the desirability of enlarging the powers of municipalities to build public works, particularly public utilities, the Governor said the program could be passed with public support.

"With this group of men behind me, and the Legislature," he said, "they cannot fail to meet your demands."

Recalling the proposals in his special session call, to broaden the powers of municipalities to borrow money for construction of public utilities and other self-liquidating public works, the Governor said he merely was asking the Legislature to give the people the right, if they wished, to have public utilities constructed.

Utilities and the Public.

He said the people should have the same right to construct utilities as privately owned companies. "This is not in criticism of the utilities," he said. "Under the laws and their franchises the utilities have the right to perform certain functions. The people should have the same right, no more, no less."

He said the State would have to raise at least $4,000,000 a year for its share of unemployment relief work or allotments of Federal relief funds to Missouri would be cut off after Nov. 1. He recalled the Federal Government had provided $6,000,000 for relief work in Missouri since August, 1932, while the State government had provided only $250,000.

"Last month there were 50,000 families on the relief rolls in Missouri," he said. "Every man that can be employed, through public works, will take a family off the relief rolls. Missourians will not suffer from want during this coming winter, if I can prevail on the Legislature to prevent it."

"Shame to State's Name."

He said some of the State eleemosynary institutions were fire traps and badly crowded, and that "it is a shame to the good name of Missouri that some of these institutions are in their present condition." He said he would recommend a $15,000,000 bond issue for rehabilitation of the State eleemosynary and penal institutions, and that application would be made to the Federal Government for a 30 per cent grant of the cost of labor and materials, under the Federal public works plan.

The conference was called by the Governor at the request of Col. Hugh Miller of St. Louis, State engineer of the Federal public works administration. Col. Miller today said municipalities were not taking advantage of the opportunity to obtain Federal grants of 30 per cent of the cost of materials and labor for such projects, as rapidly as had been anticipated. He said that so far only 53 applications had been received, for Missouri projects with an estimated total cost of $21,500,000. He said a proper share for Missouri would be at least $100,000,000.

Text of Roosevelt's Statement On Assistance to Closed Banks

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.

FOLLOWING is the statement by President Roosevelt on the plan to advance money to closed banks.

There will be established in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation a special division to make loans to closed banks. The head of this division will be C. B. Merriam, a member of the Board of Directors of the corporation.

In order that this division may work in close co-operation with the Treasury Department, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Deposit Insurance Corporation, it will be administered by a Deposit Liquidation Board consisting of the following:

1. C. B. Merriam, the head of the Deposit Liquidation Board.
2. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.
3. Dean G. Acheson, Undersecretary of the Treaury.
4. Lewis W. Dougles, Director of the Budget.
5. J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency.

Purpose of Plan.

The purpose of the Deposit Liquidation Division will be to stimulate and encourage liquidating agents of banks closed after Jan. 1, 1933, to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in order that funds may be made available to depositors as quickly as possible. The general intention is to make loans on the assets of closed banks for the benefit of depositors up to a maximum of 50 per cent of their deposits, inclusive of distributions heretofore made.

This does not, of course, mean that in a bank whose remaining assets are worth less, that the depositors will get 50 per cent. They will get in such a case only their share in remaining assets. It is not intended that such distribution will be uniform but that they will be limited to the orderly liquidation value of assets on which loans can be made, reserving only what will appear sufficient to pay taxes, expenses and interest during the liquidation period. In some cases further distributions will not be possible because assets remaining in the banks will not warrant any further dividends than those heretofore made. Distributions in any case will be possible only to the amounts of the loanable value of the assets which have not already been pledged or otherwise disposed of.

In cases where the condition of the closed bank will justify it, proper consideration will be given to a larger distribution than 50 per cent. More than one distribution will be made as and if assets improve in value.

Distribution of Assets.

The object of establishing this deposit liquidation division and trying to stimulate the distribution of frozen bank assets is: First, to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay; and second, to bring about more orderly liquidation of the assets of closed banks. This will prevent dumping of assets at sacrifice prices.

Special advisory and appraisal committees will be organized throughout the country to speed the appraisal of closed bank assets where such appraisals have not already been made by Government agencies. These committees organized for the appraisal and recommendation of these loans will be recruited from representative local bankers, business men, and farmers.

It is estimated that the maximum available loanable value of the assets of banks closed during the year 1933 will not exceed $1,000,000,000 (one billion dollars), and it is hoped that the distribution will approximate that amount. The exact amount that can be distributed will be governed by the appraisal of the actual assets of each closed bank. Until that appraisal is made the amount involved cannot be more accutely stated.

Funds for the liquidation of deposits will be supplied by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. These funds may be supplemented later by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

I am particularly anxious that this matter be handled with dispatch and to that end solicit the co-operation of all who may have official or other authority in connection with any closed bank. The United States Government has authority over closed National banks and can speed up distribution in those banks if those directly interested will co-operate, but the Government is without authority over closed State banks. If delays occur in the case of State banks, they will be due to reasons beyond the control of the national Government.

AUSTRIAN STUDENTS RIOT; CHEER HITLER

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—Austrian students held a riotous demonstration today in sympathy with Chancellor Hitler of Germany and his National Socialist party.

The unfurling of a huge swastika banner at the Institute of Technology was the signal for a city-wide and country-wide demonstration at the universities. Smoke bombs were exploded while the students shouted "Heil Hitler" and sang Nazi songs.

Police lorries were rushed to the university, the Technology Institute and the Anatomical Institute. The use of clubs proving ineffective, the officers resorted to sabers before quiet was restored.

The outburst of the students was particularly significant in view of the attitude encountered in official quarters and political circles, where many, although pointing out Austria is more or less bound to the friendly policy of the League of Nations, nevertheless could not suppress a private feeling of exultation at Germany's decision to quit the League.

After all, it was pointed out in these quarters, Germany undeniably has bespoken the emotions of a large section of the population of all the defeated nations, including Austria.

Rumors persisted that Hungary also would quit the League of Nations. Newspapers featured an interview quoting Stephan Friedrich, former Hungarian Premier, that there was justification for such a move, and that, while he did not wish to criticise the Government's foreign policy, he personally would approve a withdrawal.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—The nomination of a High Commissioner of the former German city of Danzig, proclaimed the free city of Danzig after the World War, was causing such a tempest that a secret session of the League Council was convoked for this afternoon.

Poland refused Saturday to accept Great Britain's candidate, Sean Lester, Ireland's permanent delegate to the league at Geneva, and until recently an active member of the Council Committee handling the Leticia and Chaco disputes.

It was learned that the discussion was so heated that Sir John Simon of Great Britain sent a note to President Amador that he (Simon) would resign as an official reporter on the Danzig questions unless Lester were elected.

It was reported that Poland was hostile to Lester because he was a candidate of a State affiliated with the British empire, preferring a representative of a small state.

The commissioner is responsible to the League and acts as an arbiter between Danzig's German population and Poland, which has access to the sea through Danzig.

$1,000,000,000 IN CLOSED BANKS TO BE RELEASED

Roosevelt Announces Advances Will Be Made to Depositors Through Liquidation Board.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President Roosevelt announced last night that approximately $1,000,000,000 would be advanced as quickly as possible to depositors in closed banks through a deposit liquidation board.

Funds will be furnished by the Reconstruction Finanace Corporation, in which a special division will be established, headed by C. B. Merriam, a corporation director, to make the advances.

So that this division may work in close co-operation with the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Deposit Liquidation Board will oversee its work.

Merriam also will head the liquidation board. Other members are to be Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation; Dean G. Acheson, Under-Secretary of the Treasury; Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget; J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation.

President Explains Object.

A formal statement by the President said the "object of establishing this deposit liquidation division and trying to stimulate the distribution of frozen bank assets is: First, to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay, and, second, to bring about more orderly liquidation of the assets of closed banks; this will prevent dumping of assets at sacrifice prices."

Under the plan, the special division will make advances on the assets of closed banks up to a maximum of 50 per cent of their deposits, including distributions heretofore made.

"This does not, of course, mean that in a bank whose remaining assets are worth less, the depositors will get 50 per cent," the President said. "They will get in such case only their share in the remaining assets." He added:

"Distributions in any case will be possible only to the amounts of the loanable value of the assets which have not already been pledged or otherwise disposed of.

May Be More Later.

"In cases where the condition of the closed bank will justify it, proper consideration will be given to a larger distribution than 50 per cent. More than one distribution will be made if assets improve in value."

Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Corporation, told newspapermen the President's statement should "disabuse" the public mind on the amount of money that could be freed from closed banks.

"Reports have mentioned the figure at four billion dollars or five billion dollars," he said.

Special advisory and appraisal committees will be organized to speed the appraisal of closed bank assets where they have not already been made by Government agencies. These committees also will recommend loans and will be recruited from representative local bankers, business men and farmers.

Assurance was given today by Jones after a meeting of the board today that Government agencies are "ready to proceed with all possible dispatch" and that "given the co-operation of depositors and state banking authorities, there appears to be no reason why there should be any reason for undue delay."

Jones said committees would be formed in each Federal Reserve district to co-operate.

Five years was set by him as the "probable period for orderly liquidation" of all the banks' assets.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, received foreign newspaper correspondents today and discussed Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

In a half-hour speech to the correspondents, the Foreign Minister charged the British Foreign Office with misrepresenting Germany's attitude to Washington and renewed Germany's pledges to assist in any project for ridding the world of the arms burdens provided equality for Germany constitutes the basis of such discussions. He said:

"The cardinal question around which the entire politics of the present day turns, and concerning which the unequivocal answer must be given is:

"Shall the division of nations into victors and canquished be eternalized or is, at last, the principle to receive recognition that all states are members with equal rights of the community of nations?

"The recognition and realization of this principle is decisive for every form of international co-operation.

"All statesmen for years have theoretically proclaimed this as a self-evident truth, but they could not bring themselves to drawing the necessary and practicad consequences from it.

Answer Given at Geneva.

"Last Saturday it became clear at Geneva that the German people are denied equality in one of the questions supremely affecting its very existence, namely, national security.

"Thereby the Powers destroyed the foundation on which the honest and truthful co-operation of nations alone is thinkable.

"They thereby deprived Germany of the possibility to participate within the framework of the Geneva institution in discussions of actual international problems.

"With an evident will to discriminate against Germany on this principle they violated the fundamental idea underlying the League of Nations and themselves gave evidence that they attach no importance to honest and real co-operation with Germany.

Cites Pledge of Equality.

The Foreign Minister recalled how Germany in the summer of 1932 withdrew from the conference and how the five-Power declaration of Dec. 11, 1932, expressly guaranteed equality.

"When we re-entered the conference," concluded the speaker, "we learned with disappointment that the foundations of the conference discussions no longer existed.

"There was but one answer to make, namely, to leave the conference.

Public opinion broad seems surprised at our reply. That is understandable, since the recent negotiations were conducted confidentially, but the participating statesmen were in no wise surprised.

"With satisfaction, I observe that during these last negotiations, the representatives of the United States and Italy left no effort untried to mediate.

"All the efforts, however, failed, on account of the efforts of the other Powers to erect a united front against Germany, to which Germany could do nothing but yield. This united front failed to develop."

Gives Views on Disarmament.

The Foreign Minister then developed his ideas of disarmament, which he said was two-fold: A reduction of the armament level and an equalization between the disarmed and the highly armed states. He especially contrasted the French with the German disarmament, saying:

"We tried during the negotiations of last week to awaken an understanding for our position on the opposite side. Herein we failed. It is now claimed we made an understanding impossible by new and unpermissible demands far exceeding the earlier demands. Such a claim contravenes the facts."

Von Neurath for the first time disclosed his instructions of Oct. 6 to the London Embassy in answering the question of Sir John Simon, the British Foreign Secretary, concerning Germany's position.

"I emphasize," said the Foreign Minister, "that the foundation of our position in regard to disarmament is our demand for equality, as guaranteed Dec. 11.

"We stood by the English plan and a five years' duration convention but declined to accept the idea of a trial period, but insisted our equality must begin immediately.

"I stated we were ready immediately to transform the Reichswehr into an army with short enlistments."

How this army was to be armed, Von Neurath said, depended upon what concrete disarmament measures the highly armed states agreed to.

"We are ready," added the speaker, "to support every prohibition of weapons, provided this prohibition is applicable to all states."

In his instructions, the Minister pressed for an answer as to what category of weapons would be forbidden and destroyed, how the weapons still permissible were to be defined, and in what quantity they were to be permitted to the highly armed nations.

Von Neurath energetically denied he ever had taken a position other than this. Washington, he declared, was wrongly informed by London, so that the impression arose that Germany had made new demands.

"The real condition of the affairs could easily have been cleared up at Geneva so that the American Government could quickly convince itself of the incorrectness of its information," the Minister said.

Sir John Simon's new plan, approved by the United States and France, he said, was unacceptable because "the control practically would be limited to Germany."

"The other Powers," continued the explanation, "would at any time

Times Says Ways of a 'Swashbuckler and Hothead' Have Been Introduced in World Diplomacy

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Among the points made in London newspaper editorials regarding Germany's action in withdrawing from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference are that peace in Europe is in no wise necessarily threatened, and that peoples and governments must keep cool heads and work all the more earnestly for peace.

The Times attacked Hitler for introducing into foreign affairs "the ways of a swashbuckler and a hothead which answered him well in internal politics in Germany," and referred to his declarations Saturday as "a normal culmination of Hitlerism."

The paper deprecated war talk and urged the Government to publish as soon as possible "the scheme Germany rejected on the eve of its conclusion."

The London Post, which from the inception of the League of Nations opposed and ridiculed it and admired Americas refusal to join, said: "There is less occasion for panic than for relief that so much humbug has been swept away. Germany's sharp action may even work for good by helping to put an end to so much pedantic nonsense."

The Telegraph said: "No grounds exist for the fear that peace is endangered, although the League suffered a disastrous shock. The prospect of disarmament today is no

While beneficiaries of trust funds have not come through the depression unscathed, trustees have made a far better record in investing their trust funds than individuals have made in investing their own funds. Just how much better is disclosed by income tax statistics of the United States Government.

Comparing 1931 incomes (the last year for which detailed statistics are available) with the average of the five prosperous years 1925 to 1929 inclusive, reveals the following:—

The income derived from investments of all individuals making tax returns declined proportionately 2¼ times as much as the decline in income derived from trust funds.

Here is uncontrovertible proof on a nation-wide scale that beneficiaries of trust funds constitute a favored class and have fared far better than other people in the matter of investments.

Does Union Electric Have Lowest Rates?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENT advertisements of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. state that it has the lowest electric rates in the country. David Lilienthal, director of the power development of the Tennessee Valley Authority, has made comparisons in electric rates, which were carried in the Sept. 30 issue of the Literary Digest. These comparisons are for small, medium and reasonably large household users. The comparisons follow and the figures speak for themselves:

Tennessee Valley Authority	1.50
Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	1.55
Louisville	2.00
Union Electric in St. Louis	2.05
Union Electric in Flat River	2.85
Tennessee Valley Authority	6.50
Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	5.05
Union Electric in St. Louis	8.80
Louisville	11.30
Baltimore	13.13
Union Electric in Flat River	13.35
Tennessee Valley Authority	7.30
Tacoma, Wash. (municipal plant)	7.05
Baltimore	18.13
Union Electric in St. Louis	11.80
Union Electric in Flat River	19.35

The local rate for Flat River is included for comparison purposes.

Hudibras and the Brain Trust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Quoth Hudibras: "Alas, what is't t' us
Whether 'twere said by Trismegistus,
If it be nonsense, false, or mystic,
Or not intelligible, or sophistick?"

WE should all devoutly pray that the good Lord give our Brain Trust common sense. It has given us birth control of pigs to increase the price of pork. Its next move will be making all roosters capons to increase the price of chickens.

Restoration cannot follow destruction. That is axiomatic. It is self-evident that a subtraction of a sum equal to an addition results in zero. Hope, the medicine of the miserable, will not cure our disease. The proper remedy is an adherence to the Constitution and common sense. That which conflicts with common sense is absurd. T. J. ROWE.

Objects to School Taxes.

MUCH has been said regarding the plight of Missouri public schools and the discussion will continue until school taxes are regulated. As it stands, 50 per cent of the people are paying the whole, while the other 50 per cent are riding along on wings of song. To illustrate, the writer not so very long ago borrowed $500 to pay taxes. More than $200 went to school taxes and I have not one child in school. At the same time, I know of a man with a good job, an automobile, and five children in school, who paid only $6.91. Would this man be hurt any if he paid $5 each for his children?

I also think it a good time for the schools to stop spending millions of dollars on expensive school buildings and football fields and return to the good old days. If there are 80,000 unemployed school teachers in the country, who will force the issue along the lines of my ideas, they will be rewarded by returning to their places of occupation, with plenty of money to buy all the pork necessary, without making it necessary to dump thousands of baby pigs into the Father of Waters. What Christ Condemned.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALLOW me to express my appreciation of your editorial, "The Fighting Church." It is an expression of the fact that the Christian church today is getting more and more away from narrow-mindedness and bigotry, and, in a liberal spirit of co-operation, is tending to bend its efforts toward combating the unjust relationships that exist between man and man. After all, bigotry, hatred, intolerance, social discrimination and injustice were the sins which Jesus Christ condemned with the most vehemence.

That Wheat-Dumping Proposal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANENT the prefatory plan of the farm administrators to export some 35,000,000 bushels of wheat to be sold for less than the domestic price, with the difference between the domestic price paid and the foreign price received to be paid by the U. S. Government:

The Government has always intransigently resisted the subsidized dumping of commodities on its shores for less than the prevailing price in the country of origin, and now it proposes to stoop to that disgraceful practice itself. Such practice is analogous to charging one's much impoverished brother twice as much for bread as one is charging an utter stranger.

Maybe the Government can indulge in such a questionable practice without jeopardizing its ethical standing in the markets of the world, but certainly a leading nation should avoid becoming a paragon of inconsistency. JUNIUS JR.

LABOR AND THE NEW SOCIETY.

The New Deal has promised the moribund American labor movement a new lease on life. The A. F. of L. is still far from organizing the 40,000,000 workers in the United States, but it can now claim that it has increased its membership from a little over 2,000,000 to nearly 4,000,000 in the last six months.

Labor did not realize this gain by virtue of its own strength. Its new position of advantage is a handsome gift which has been presented to it by the Federal Government. By writing into the Recovery Act the right of labor to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing, the administration tipped the balance in labor's favor. It gave to labor an opportunity such as it had never had before in history; such as it is not likely to enjoy again for years to come. And now labor is in danger of throwing that opportunity away.

At its Washington convention, the A. F. of L. has insisted, by overwhelming majority, on the preservation of the antiquated craft form of union organization. It has decreed, for instance, that teamsters who work for breweries must join the teamsters' union rather than that of the United Brewery Workers; that firemen, oilers and engineers employed by breweries must likewise join the unions of their respective crafts. It has similarly decided that teamsters who work for clothing manufacturers must affiliate themselves with brewery and other teamsters instead of joining in the union of their fellow clothing employes. At the same time, other craft unions have hotly protested the inclusion in the new "Federal" unions, which the federation has been organizing on an industrial or factory basis, of workers who, they contend, rightly belong to them. The decision on every crucial point has been in favor of the craft as opposed to the industrial structure.

Craft structure grew out of an era of handicraft production and petty trade. It is an anachronism in an industrial system which is dominated by mechanized mass production. The incapacity of the craft union to afford representation to the workers in the present industrial set-up has been proved by its utter failure to unionize such basic industries as rubber, automobiles, oil and steel. Employers are organized on an industrial basis. Employes, if they are effectively to pit their economic strength against that of the employers, must adopt a similar form of organization.

Craft organization dissipates labor's strength in petty jurisdictional disputes. Only the other day, construction on the new building of the Department of Labor in Washington was suspended and hundreds of men were thrown out of work while the carpenters and the metal workers quarreled over their respective rights to install the covers over the building's radiators. Business men who have dealt with their workers individually in the past naturally hesitate to let themselves in for this sort of thing. While they may be willing to recognize and deal with an independent union, with national affiliations, which can speak for and take responsibility for the whole group of their workers, they may, with good reason, resist the introduction into their plants of scores of craft bodies which threaten to waste both time and money in quarreling among themselves.

Large employers of labor cannot well conclude agreements with unions which represent only a fraction of their labor force, without any relation to the terms on which the remaining majority of the force is to be employed. No more can the Government effectively plan for the future development of industry as a whole if its calculations are to be upset by the perpetual struggle of contending labor groups for individual advantage.

The difficulty is that the officers of the existing craft unions have a vested interest in the preservation of the present form of organization. Upon it depend their positions and their incomes. The present members of these bodies likewise have a property interest in attempting to maintain the relative advantage of their particular crafts over the rest of American working men. The truth is that these people have no interest in the well-being of labor as a whole. They are looking out only for themselves. And they are perfectly willing to let the devil take the hindmost.

This is an attitude which constitutes the gravest threat to the future of organized labor in the United States. Labor cannot safely rely on the Government to support its organization in the future in the way in which it is supporting it today. If it does not seize upon its present opportunity to unionize the mass production industries, it may lose it forever. The Federation is proving itself to be a feeble instrument for the accomplishment of this task. The millions of men and women who are working in America's major industries may have to build their representative organizations outside the Federation's hampering walls if they are to realize the large promises which the recovery program now holds out to them.

The A. F. of L. can co-operate with the administration in building a new society. Or it can drop back to a position of relative insignificance in the American labor movement. If it adheres to the policies which it has embraced at Washington, we cannot doubt that this will be its fate.

We haven't arrived at the end of the recovery road, President Roosevelt said in his address to the National Conference of Catholic Charities. "The longer, harder part lies still ahead." Somewhat different from the official communiques so frequently issued in the early days of the depression, that "prosperity is just around the corner."

A VICTIM'S APPEAL.

Police efficiency evidently is at a low ebb in Managua, capital of Nicaragua, if one may judge by an open letter to the thieves and robbers of the city, recently published in the newspaper La Noticia. The writer, Vicente Murillo Gonzalez, says he is an impoverished citizen and, like others of his group, has lately been robbed of all his possessions except the clothes he was wearing. So he appeals to the local thieves to let the poor alone. "If a spark of honor remains in their consciousness," he implores, "they should not molest those already stricken with poverty and hardship." He ends on a note of polite threat: "If these ruthless rascals continue to prey upon the poor as well as upon those who have more to lose, they will soon oblige the indigent classes to take up robbery for a livelihood, too; which, of course, will ruin those previously in the business."

It may be that this victim's appeal will result in the thieves' union immediately adopting a Robin Hood code, to shut off the threatened flood of competition. It is to be hoped, however (and that may have been the subtle intent of his letter), that it will rouse the police to put the entire industry out of business. What Managua seems to be witnessing is what will happen in any country if lawlessness gets out of hand, when no citizen, however powerful or however humble, may consider himself safe from criminal depredations. In this country, if the kidnaping racket had gone unchecked, we might have seen it no longer confined to wealthy victims, but spreading to abduction of ordinary citizens, whose families can raise $50 or $100 ransom, as is the practice in China today. Fortunately, our Federal authorities have needed no Citizen Gonzalez to stir them into action.

THE INDUSTRY NRA FORGOT.

State Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Lee says that while the minimum yearly wage for common labor under the national recovery codes is only $750, more than 15,000 trained teachers now employed in the public schools of Missouri are receiving less than this amount, and that 4000 during the present school year will draw no more than half that amount.

A similar condition obtains in other states. In Illinois, the principal complaint of public school teachers is non-payment of salaries already earned. In the one town of Benton, the schools owe their teachers $145,000 in back pay. Many unpaid teachers are destitute. There is no market for promises to pay in the form of school warrants. Holders of this paper have sold it at discounts ranging from 30 to 80 per cent. One instance is cited of a man who turned over a warrant for $350 to pay a $12 dentist bill.

This wretched condition in a governmental service is a direct negation of all that national recovery legislation stands for. Instead of more pay and more employment to enhance buying power, there is less pay and less employment. In Missouri, there are 1000 fewer teachers employed today than in the school year of 1930-31.

An Illinois school man hit the nail on the head when he asked why the Government should not lend money on teachers' orders when it could pour millions into the railroads, whose inability to meet their obligations has become proverbial.

Government aid to schools is not only logical but pitifully obvious. It is so obvious that we cannot but wonder why it was not requested months ago. The Recovery Administration has been liberal and responsive to appeals in furtherance of the NRA principle of more jobs and more purchasing power. It seems inconceivable that it would turn a stony ear to the public schools and their workers if the facts were adequately set forth.

FIGHTING CRIME IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.

Organized crime henceforth will meet organized resistance when it carries its depredations into Southern Illinois. Machinery to that end was created in a meeting recently at Carbondale, when more than 50 law enforcement officers from a score of towns assembled to plan their battlefront. Paved roads and automobiles make a swift getaway possible for the modern criminal, so lawlessness no longer is a matter of merely local concern. The assembled officers agreed to speed up their notifications to neighboring towns when crimes occur, to use the telephone extensively, to give closer attention to descriptions of criminals and their motor cars. Precious moments, vital to the capture of fleeing criminals, no longer will be lost when every man has been rehearsed in his emergency duties. Other groups or communities would find it wise to band together in similar fashion against criminal invasion. It is to be hoped that the new unity of pursuit will put down the criminal plague in our neighboring Egypt.

BACK TO BALTIMORE.

Henry L. Mencken is to retire from the editorship of the American Mercury at the end of the year and will, it is announced, resume his old trade of writing books as he saunters down through the mellowing twilight. His departure from the magazine field will be widely regretted, but it is, after all, a logical abdication. Before Mencken goes, prohibition will have gone, and that is a consummation he has most devoutly hoped for and toiled for through, goodness knows, how many lusty, gusty columns.

Of all the pens that belabored prohibition, none, perhaps, played so continuous a rataplan upon its vulnerability as Mencken's, none cracked it oftener "on the button," no other assailant has had such a gay, grand time of it as he did, no other critic, we feel sure, immersed its defenders in such depths of anguish, or in such a ghastly, sputtering rage.

Next to prohibition, Mr. Mencken's pet aversion, we should say, is democracy. The fellow is a royalist at heart. And nothing else, we feel sure, would so gladden his romantic soul as to witness the interment of the Constitution and the coronation of the first American Emperor. Will he live to see that purple day? Norman Thomas keeps on telling us that Fascism is just around the corner, and Fascism is the temporary residence of the man of destiny who will presently move his belongings over to the imperial palace.

Well, the Mercury, as trained and gaffed and tossed into the periodical cockpit by Mencken, has been a winged creature, the stylist of the tourney, a game and strutting bird. But it compelled its editor to go to New York often, and for Mencken to be away from Baltimore is like Ovid among the Goths. So, our professional, engaging and most imitated iconoclast is going home, back to the familiar haunts, simple ways and homely comforts of his native city which his bourgeois being craves. Happy days.

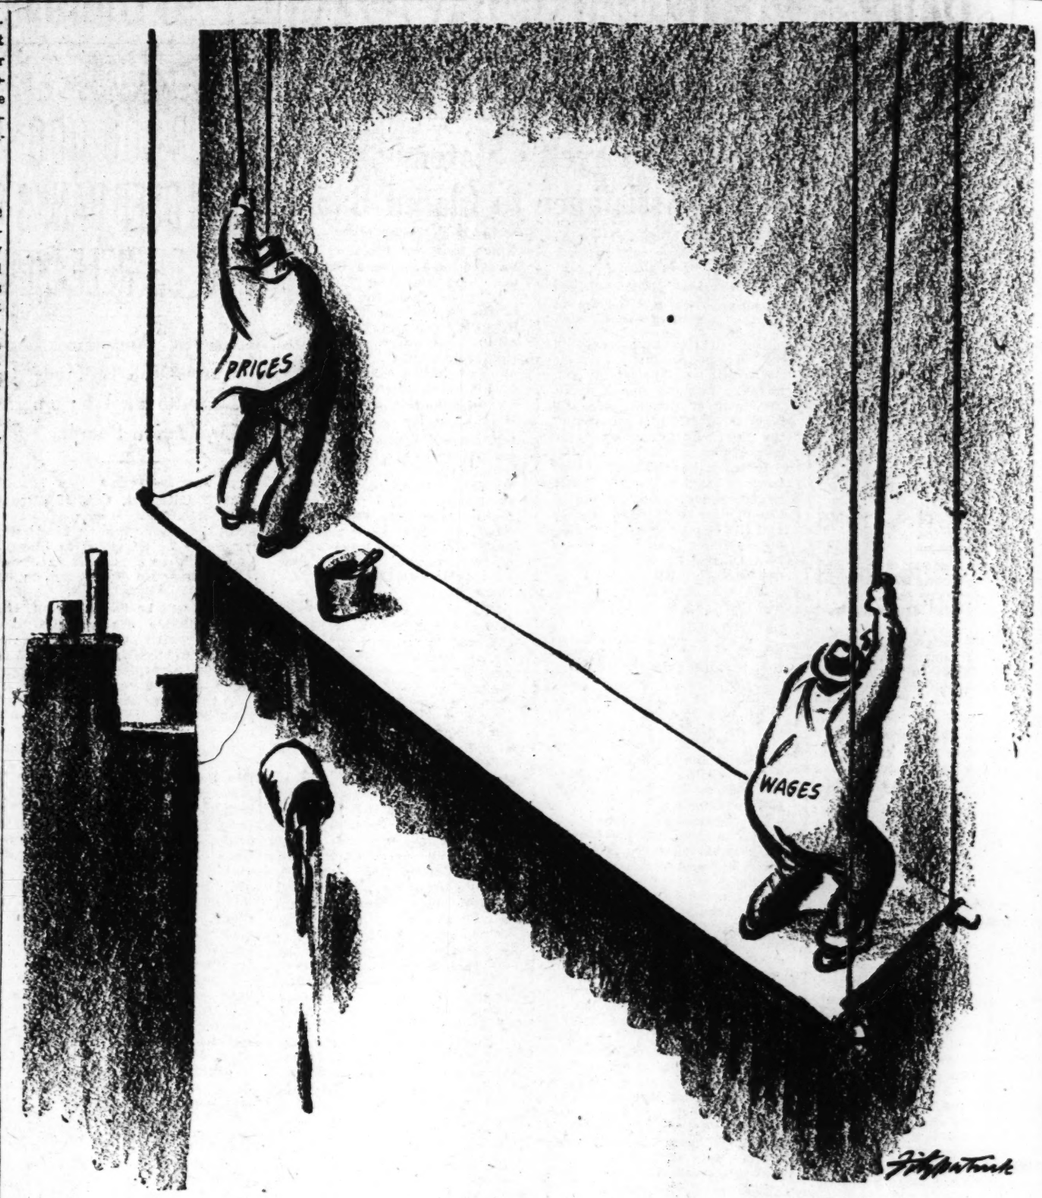

THE ORCHESTRA CARRIES ON.

The Symphony Orchestra is not only going to carry on, but the Executive Committee has courageously decided to give the city the finest season in the orchestra's more than 50 years. The superlative is warranted, first, by the announcement of the soloists that have been engaged, distinguished artists all of them, and, second, by the fact that, under the leadership of Conductor Golschmann, the orchestra has risen to its greatest heights.

This decision of the Executive Committee is precisely the kind of decision the time requires. It is strictly en rapport with the spirit of our national administration. The outstanding quality of this Roosevelt reign is courage, and the bold policy of the orchestra's management in offering us a larger variety of more tempting fare will, we are certain, be vindicated.

The country is talking about St. Louis in terms of new respect. While other cities, some of them showier and, if it may be said, somewhat noisier, have staggered into insolvency during the depression, St. Louis has come through it with its credit unimpaired. So stands St. Louis, economically. Culturally, no winter of discontent is on the calendar; instead, a program of superior excellence and delight.

The Symphony Orchestra is entitled to congratulations, and the Executive Committee to a sincere, rollicking "Atta-boy!"

The Philippine Independence Paradox

After years of agitation for freedom, Philippine Legislature is about to defeat Hare-Hawes-Cutting law, which grants it; liberty still is desired on idealistic grounds, but new act is assailed as "economically indefensible"; end of free trade with U. S. means ruin of insular business and great decline in Government revenues.

AN impassioned orator springs to the rostrum. "The lying imperialistas now assert that you do not want your freedom . . . the freedom for which you and your fathers laid down their lives in a successful revolution before America ever set foot on the Philippines. Is it true? Have you forsaken the ideals of your country? Do you no longer wish to be free?"

Back in the corner of his office, a tall, alert, handsome man says quite casually: "Of course, it is obvious that the acceptance of the Hare-Hawes-Cutting independence law means the entire liquidation of the sugar industry of the Philippine Islands within 10 years. And that means collapse of Government revenue, no more money for schools and health service, possible disorder . . ."

He is Rafael Alunan, former Secretary of Agriculture, and former Secretary of Finance, who knows whence the Government's income is derived.

In the Philippine Senate, Manuel Quezon takes the floor. Small, dynamic, impulsive, idol of the masses, he now controls the most powerful legislative steam-roller ever developed in Philippine politics.

"Of what use is a promise of independence," he demands, "if, before the 10 years of its interim have elapsed, we shall have been strangled out of existence? Why offer us independence under terms so onerous that it cannot possibly be sustained, even if we, by some means, survive until its entirely problematical consummation?"

The paradox of Philippine independence: a well-organized Legislature, bending every effort, even to the extent of deposing its former leaders, to defeat a law granting Philippine independence, after 20 years of incessant clamor for such a law. (Since this article was written, the Philippine House has definitely rejected the law, and the Senate, which has cast a preliminary vote to that effect, is expected to follow suit.—Editor's note.)

Mere thought of a budget large enough to provide for national defense, foreign diplomatic, consular and trade services, internal order and a reasonable degree of public progress is an economist's nightmare. No program has been evolved whereunder domestic taxation can replace the American free market as a source of revenue.

As a consequence, the Philippine independence question becomes a vast debate of feeling against fact, instinct against economics, race pride against the foreboding showing of national annihilation. It is little wonder that the Filipino leaders, themselves, are confused, puzzled, distressed, obliged frequently to contradict themselves. Two years ago, Manuel Roxas stumped the Philippines, declaring that the islands were "writhing in a hell of slavery," and that nothing but immediate independence would release them. Sergio Osmena was telling Secretary Hurley that his people had had enough of concessions of further autonomy and periods of preparation, and that nothing but immediate independence would answer their demands. Meanwhile, Quezon, on the other hand, proposed a transitional period of 10 years on the ground that immediate independence would prove unsalutary.

Today, Roxas and Osmena have been ousted from their legislative positions as Speaker of the House and Vice-President of the Senate, respectively, for their insistence upon the acceptance of a law which provides a 10-year interim. Roxas again stumped the southern islands, this time declaring that immediate independence meant nothing but chaos and disaster, and led the fight in the House, unsuccessfully, against the traditional resolution demanding immediate independence, on the ground that it embarrassed the possibility of accepting the Hawes law. No less striking is the change of Quezon's position. He has rallied strong support to the banner of immediate independence in a powerful legislative campaign against the Hawes proposal.

The plain fact, of course, is that independence, as an ideal, is always desirable, but that any bill which sets forth the concrete machinery by which it is to be achieved will bring home, at once, the disadvantages, dangers and positive disaster which await such a course of action. The present Hare-Hawes-Cutting law is being defended upon emotional grounds. It "at least" grants independence. No attempt is made to defend it upon economic grounds, for it is economically indefensible.

The Philippine Islands derive 65 per cent of the insular revenue from trade with the United States in four export products—sugar, coconuts, hemp and tobacco. On the other hand, all the humanizing services of Government, schools, sanitation, public works, pensions, research and communications, are dependent upon appropriations from the insular Government.

Under such economic conditions, any independence measure, with its consequent modification of the economic structure of the islands, means a curtailment of these services and an immediate reflection in the intimate life of the whole people.

Nor has the menace of external conquest been entirely forgotten. The Philippines, once independent, will occupy a strategic position in the Pacific. They will offer a fertile field for conquest and an admirable base for operations. The Japanese have asserted that they do not want the Philippines, simply wouldn't have them, in fact. In the light of their recent expansion, with its definite and obvious economic causes, no one is likely to take that disclaimer seriously. If the Japanese do not want the Philippines, it can only be because the War Office has lost its mind.

It is such a situation that Manuel Quezon, commanding a powerful majority in the Philippine Legislature, is obliged to face. Quezon, author of the famous statement that he would rather live under a government "run like hell by Filipinos than run like heaven by Americans," is an ardent patriot. He wishes well for his people. He has always been in the forefront of the independence campaign. But he is faced now with an independence law which promises nothing but internal chaos and external conquest. He foresees poverty, weakness, disorder and eventual annihilation.

There are many persons who believe he is merely clearing the ground for some new and more permanent relationship between the Philippine Islands and the United States.

Alertness at Washington

From the New Republic.

ONE excellent trait of the administration is its readiness to move rapidly in the general direction it favors, the moment any delay or obstruction arises. There is every sign, for instance, that since the outcry about the tardiness of public works, Secretary Ickes and his organization have been putting on the last possible ounce of steam, including double shifts in the office (shortage of staff has apparently been a severe handicap). Likewise, he has been putting pressure on cities and states which are prospective borrowers, but are reluctant to spend more, or find difficulty in getting started.

The administration also shows signs of being keenly aware of the necessity of stepping up capital expenditures in general, and is trying to bring about large purchases of rails and other railroad equipment by forcing reduction of prices on the one hand and financing the railroads to buy on the other.

No sooner did the outcry of farmers' representatives for inflation become threatening than the President matched it with the warnings about dwindling relief funds, and authorized the use of $75,000,000 or more to buy food and clothing for the destitute. This, of course, is not enough, but administration circles are reported to be quite conscious of the need for much larger direct relief.

We have in Washington, not a soggy and insensitive mass of dough, as in some previous administrations, but a nervous, alert and hard-working group who are doing their level best to effectuate a program. If they fail—as they themselves admit freely that they may—it will be due not to stupidity or lack of good intention on their part, but to an impossibility of doing what they want to do in the social and economic system with which they have to deal.

WHAT ST. LOUIS GOT.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

SOME time ago the Evening Sun printed an article describing the efforts of the City of St. Louis to cope with the problem of its blighted areas. St. Louis, like most large cities, is afflicted with certain decayed residence districts which have outlived their usefulness. These districts, most of them in the heart of the city, are expensive because they eat up tremendous sums for such services as paving, sewage disposal, police protection and so on; yet they have so depreciated in value that they do not yield sufficient taxes to pay for the services. That expense is a burden on all other tax-yielding property. Still more important, these rotten districts are a burden in that they are community sore spots in which disease, misery and crime flourish.

But St. Louis, under the leadership of a man named J. A. Wolf, decided that something should be done about these districts. A plan was worked out for the partial rehabilitation of these districts by means of a limited dividend housing corporation. The Public Works Administration has granted the corporation a loan of $500,000, which will allow it to proceed with its work.

What interests us is the fact that, when it comes to such blighted areas, Baltimore is way out at the head of the column. But, unlike St. Louis, Baltimore has done little about it. The municipal government has blandly disregarded the existence of the problem. And—so far—there has not been a private corporation to undertake rehabilitation.

The Public Works Administration has shown that it is sympathetic to such efforts. When will Baltimore wake up?

The DAILY WA... MERRY GO...

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.

THE resolution putting American labor on record for a boycott of German Nazi goods caused a greater row in the convention of the American Federation of Labor than almost anything else.

John P. Frey, member of the Executive Committee, and Matthew Woll, vice-president, vigorously opposed the resolution; said it was an affront to Germany.

President Bill Green with John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, fought for the resolution; said the Nazis had killed organized labor in Germany.

In the middle of the fight Marvin McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt and colonel on the staff of the Governor of Kentucky, telephoned to say that the administration opposed the resolution. A boycott on German goods would be extremely embarrassing to the State Department, McIntyre said; might upset Norman Davis' disarmament negotiations.

Later, the anti-Nazi camp queried the State Department and got this reply: "The Administration has no interest at all in the matter."

IT was King Fuad's birthday. The great and near great of Washington were gathered at the Egyptian Legation. Champagne flowed. Pate de fois gras was swallowed by stately dowagers. Caviar slipped down the throats of slim maidens. Members of the Cabinet passed from dowager to debutante.

Tall, stately semi-bald Homer Cummings, Attorney-General, towered above them all. Suddenly up to him came charming Mrs. Russell Bennett, former wife of Rear Admiral Frederic R. Harris.

"General," she whispered excitedly, "I want to tell you something."

The tall Attorney-General stooped over.

"General, there's a man over there I want you to watch."

"Where?" asked the Attorney-General, expecting a kidnaping suspect.

"Over there," she breathed. "The other day in the Piggly Wiggly I saw him steal a pound of butter."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.

THE resolution putting American labor on record for a boycott of German Nazi goods caused a greater row in the convention of the American Federation of Labor than almost anything else.

Tall, stately semi-bald Homer Cummings, Attorney-General, towered above them all. Suddenly up to him came charming Mrs. Russell Bennett, former wife of Rear Admiral Frederic R. Harris.

"Over there," she breathed. "The other day in the Piggly Wiggly I saw him steal a pound of butter."

Red-Tape.

LOUIS RUPPEL, one-time New York newspaperman, now Deputy Commissioner of Narcotics, believes there is too much red-tape in the Government. He tells this story to prove his point.

Recently, narcotic agents captured a large consignment of illicit drugs. It occurred to Louey that they would be useful for medicinal purposes in army hospitals, and calling an assistant, he directed him to get in touch with the War Department and have a truck sent for the stuff.

"But that is not the way such things are handled, Commissioner," the clerk admonished. "You have to write a letter to the Secretary of War, and then he sends it through regular channels."

"Rats," observed Louey. "Who is the officer in the War Department who had charge of such matters? I'll phone him and get the thing disposed of in a few minutes."

Louey called, but the matter was not disposed of in a few minutes.

"We'd like very much to get those drugs for our hospitals," the officer replied, "but I have no authority to send a truck after them. You have to write the Secretary of War, who will communicate with the Quartermaster Department."

By this time Louey was getting rather exhausted. But he decided to make another try. He called the Quartermaster Department.

"I'm sorry we can't send a truck without instructions," was the answer. "What you do is write a letter to the Secretary of War, and then he'll communicate with us, and . . ."

"Never mind, never mind," interjected the weary Louey. "I know all about it. Let the stuff remain where it is."

Note: Ruppel's red-tape slashing effort was not unproductive. After a couple of days' delay, an Army truck was dispatched for the drugs and they were turned over to the Medical Corps.

Warning.

GENERAL JOHNSON'S speech to the American Federation of Labor was an indirect but deliberate warning that the Roosevelt Administration might step in with a sort of Fascist control of labor unions.

This may sound like harsh medicine, but the way the situation looks to Gen. Johnston and other higher-ups is something like this:

Industry is being forced to give up its hit-and-miss, laissez-faire policy. The Barons of Big Business are being forced to fix minimum wages, maximum hours, cut out unscrupulous competition, in some cases agree on price-fixing.

Therefore organized labor has got to do the same.

The day when labor chiefs can row between themselves over jurisdiction is gone. The Barons of Labor can no more have regional disputes now than the Barons of Big Business.

The day of craft unions with their extremely involved competition also is over. Unions have got to be on the "industrial" plan—covering an entire industry. This may cut down the number of cushy jobs for antiquated labor union chiefs, but it has got to come.

And if these labor changes don't come, the Government may step in just as it is stepping into the employers' field. That is what Gen. Johnson's speech meant.

"Our withdrawal need not interfere with its work, as we are disarmed and as nobody can deny the inequality of the armaments between us and the rest.

"For them there is no longer the possibility of concentrated efforts on a second disarmament of Germany, but all the clearer let us hope it does the task that has become evident and agree among themselves about their mutual disarmament.

"Germany will, of course, at all times examine the serious proposals and continue to be ready to come to an understanding concerning its future armament regime on the basis of equality."

WOMAN M. P. VISITS ST. LOUIS

Miss Marjorie Graves in City Friday on Tour.

Miss Marjorie Graves, a member of the English House of Commons, was in St. Louis overnight last week in the course of a rapid trip to "take a look at the United States." She arrived Friday afternoon and left Saturday morning for Washington.

Miss Graves has represented East London in Parliament for two years. She expressed a feeling that one nation should know how others were solving their problems, in explaining her American tour. England, she asserted, is "a trifle farther" out of the depression than the United States.

Nicholas E. Roll Funeral.

Funeral services for Nicholas E. Roll, 67-year-old retired grocer, will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday from the Witt Brothers' Undertaking Co., 2929 South Jefferson avenue, with burial in New St. Marcus Cemetery. Mr. Roll, who was one of the founders of the South Broadway Merchants' Association, died suddenly of heart disease Saturday at his home, 2627 Virginia avenue. He operated a grocery for 35 years at 1403 South Broadway. His wife and a daughter survive.

WHY PAY MORE for QUALITY CLEANING

It's no trick at all to offer a cleaning service that is low-priced.

But to give the patron, at a low price, a cleaning service that is unexcelled in St. Louis . . . well, that's the trick that's winning us new customers every day.

HORSE SHOW CLOSES AT MISSOURI STABLES

Virginia Girken, Mare From Dayton, O., Wins Five-Gaited Event.

The St. Louis Horse Show closed yesterday at Missouri Stables with a program climaxed by the five-gaited stake event, won by Virginia Girken, a mare from Bettydot Stables, Dayton, O., with Earl Teater as her rider.

Second place went to Artistic Rose, owned by the Holekamp Farm and ridden by Miss Margaret Holekamp. Captain Copper, owned and ridden by Roy Davis, was third, with Frances McDonald, owned by Mills Brothers of Chicago and ridden by W. B. Sparks, fourth.

The roadster stake afforded a colorful event as 10 rigs dashed about the ring, narrowly avoiding collisions at the unbanked turns. Entrants owned by George Peak of Winchester, Ill., took first, second and sixth with the owner driving the horse which finished sixth.

Miss Jane Johnson, Veiled Prophet Queen and a consistent winner throughout the show, which opened Wednesday night, shared honors with her 13-year-old brother, Jack, in the class for ladies' and children's jumpers. She placed third on Durazno, from Trail's End Stables, while her brother won on Step Aside, from the same stables. Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff was thrown when her horse refused the second jump, but remounted and resumed the contest.

Detailed summaries of events follow:

Ladies' and Children's Jumper—Step Aside, Trail's End Stables, Jack Johnson, rider, first; Symphony, Gladys Grey, owner and rider, second; Durazno, Trail's End Stables, Jane Johnson, rider, third; Gangster, Trail's End Stables, Jane Johnson, rider, fourth.

Children's Lead Class—This was a class for children under 6 years of age, and since distinctions would have been annihilant the judge gave blue ribbons to all the contestants as follows: Dickie Sutter, Susan McElwee, Sally Hastings and Jean Schierbaum.

Best Girl Rider, 12 Years Old and Under—Louise Olin on her own horse. Dark Master, first, Betty Butler on the Missouri Stables horse, Nip, second; Margaret Ann Littlejohn on her own, My Cameo, third; Harriet Burkart on her own, Merely Mary Ann, fourth.

Five-gaited, Amateur, Owner to Ride—Mrs. Paul E. Winter on Winter Starlight, first; Mr. E. J. Walsh on Fifty-Fifty, second; Haymond Masek on Miss Pelletier, third.

Roadster Stake—Sun Cloud, George Peak, owner, Earl Teater, driver, first; Saun Glo, George Peak, owner, Ralph Peak, driver, second; Grand Lottery, Jack B. Kaiser, owner and driver, third; Will Do, Verne H. Youngblood, Newburgh, Ind., owner and driver, fourth; Grand Larceny, owned by Jack B. Kaiser, fifth; Fire Chief, owned and driven by George Peak, sixth; Bachelor's Dream, owned by Youngblood, driven by Ira Keele, seventh.

Best Pair of Girl Riders From Any School—Virginia Purdy and Mary K. Forrestal, Fontbonne College, first; Betty James and Doris O'Connor, Fontbonne, second; Ruth Gander and Jane Blakeslee, Maryville College, third; Eileen Barnes and Mary J. Finney, Fontbonne, fourth.

Three-gaited, Amateur, Owner to Ride—D. C. Kerckhoff on Mello Glo Highland, first; Margaret Holekamp on Patsy Peavine, second; Anita H. Barnes on Sweet Mystery, third; Louise Olin on Dark Master, fourth.

Best Boy Rider, 12 Years Old and Under—Bruce Cohn, first; Robert M. Schwartz, second; John McElwee, third; Arnold Cohn, fourth.

Five-gaited Stake—Virginia Girken, Bettydot Stables, Earl Teater, rider, first; Artistic Rose, Holekamp Farm, Margaret Holekamp, rider, second; Captain Copper, Roy Davis, owner and rider, third; Frances McDonald, Mills Brothers of Chicago, W. B Sparks, rider, fourth; McDonald Barrymore, Harry J. Burkart, owner, Arthur J. Mueller, rider, fifth; Lion Heart, T. K. Simmons, Tulsa, Ok., owner Oscar Gibbs, rider, sixth; Rex Rose, Dr. John W. Opp, owner, Hugh Dempsey, rider, seventh.

Triple Bar Jump—Gangster, Trail's End Stables, Delbert Green, rider, first; Pierrot, owned and ridden by Paul Peltason, second; Major, Fleetmont Farms, Paul Bakewell III, rider, third; Feather Rock, Trail's End Stables, Delbert Green, rider, fourth.

Mayor Kelly Wants to Keep It Open to Celebrate Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Mayor Edward J. Kelly asked the World's Fair to stay open until Nov. 11 and suggested today a free barbecue for all who attend a "Personal Liberty" day at the fair, Nov. 8.

The special observance, he said, would be in celebration of the anticipated consummation of repeal of the eighteenth amendment at the Nov. 7 elections. Mayor Kelly said he felt that everyone attending a Century of Progress Exposition on "Personal Liberty" day should be treated to a barbecue donated by the packers and food dealers of Chicago. He proposed another celebration on Armistice day.

FIVE SYMPHONY CONCERTS FOR STUDENTS ARRANGED

They Will Be Given by Orchestra on Thursday Afternoons at the Odeon.

Five Thursday afternoon students' concerts will be given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon during the coming season. They will take place on Nov. 16, Dec. 7, Jan. 18, Feb. 15 and March 15.

The programs have been arranged by Conductor Vladimir Golschmann and musical supervisors of co-operating private, parochial and public schools. The first two emphasize works in which the woodwind is prominent, the third features compositions in which string choirs are brought forward, the fourth illustrates orchestral duties of brass choirs and the fifth is to be a request program.

In connection with the series a students' contests in handicraft, art, literary and musical efforts will be held in which winners will receive awards and the school receiving the highest percentage of honorable mention will receive a prize. Entries will be judged in four groups, each comprising three grades. The handicraft awards will be for models of musical instruments, the art awards will be for scrap-books and illustrations of conceptions of musical compositions, the literary awards will be for original poems, and the musical awards for melodies and accompaniments.

The St. Louis Musicians' Guild passed resolutions yesterday praising the Symphony Society's Executive Committee for continuing the concerts after a period of depression and urging music lovers to make the coming season a financial success. The opening concerts will be Friday afternoon, Nov. 3, and Saturday night, Nov. 4.

MICHIGAN AND OHIO STATE TO BATTLE; BIG SIX LEADERS MEET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A demonstration of just what happens when an irresistable force collides with an immovable object will be given with variations on dozens of football fields this week.

The parade of touchdowns occasioned by early-season practice games has ended. The big fellows start picking on each other now.

Glittering intersectional pairings headed by Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Minnesota, Army and Illinois contribute added spice to a program dominated by such important sectional contests as those involving Michigan and Ohio State, Princeton and Columbia, Penn and Dartmouth, Yale and Brown, Tennessee and Alabama, Texas Christian and Texas A. and M., Washington State and California.

Briefly here's how the situation lines up on the basis of early season results:

Pittsburgh Plays Gophers.

EAST—Pitt, Fordham, Colgate, Syracuse and Princeton look best at the moment although the latter two have not yet been seriously tested. Pitt's "suicide schedule" takes the Panthers to Minneapolis to face Minnesota. Fordham will play Boston College with the Rams favored against a foe that always is tough. Colgate, its unscored-upon record spoiled by Rutgers, should "take" New York University and Syracuse looks too powerful for Cornell, soundly shellacked by Michigan last week. Princeton's sophomore backfield stars undergo their first real test in the meeting with Columbia's crack eleven. Carnegie Tech has not a little hope of overturning Notre Dame's disappointing eleven and Navy hopes to rally from the Pitt debacle at Virginia's expense. Auburn faces George Washington in another intersectional contest. Penn-Dartmouth, Yale-Brown, Harvard-Holy Cross, Lafayette-Bucknell are the other leading pairings.

MIDWEST—Victor over three preparatory opponents, Army should discover its own strength, or weakness, against Illinois which showed surprising power in walloping Wisconsin last week. This game will be played on neutral battleground at Cleveland. The collision of Michigan and Ohio State, two mighty elevens, at Ann Arbor tops the Big Ten program but Chicago's debut against Purdue and Iowa's second conference start, against Wisconsin, will be watched with interest. Northwestern and Indiana are paired in the other Big Ten game. Nebraska and Kansas State, Big Six leaders, meet at Manhattan, Kans., while Oklahoma and Iowa State get together at Norman. The Creighton-Rice tussle Saturday, and Xavier's defense against Washington & Jefferson at Detroit's trip east to face Duquesne Friday round out the intersectional part of the schedule.

Tennessee Meets Alabama.

SOUTH.—Tennessee, beaten for the first time since 1930 by Duke last week, returns to Southeastern Conference competition against Alabama's "mystery" team. Georgia Tech and Tulane, Mississippi and Sewanee and Vanderbilt and Mississippi State square off in other conference games, while Florida and Kentucky uphold Southeastern prestige against Southern Conference foes, North Carolina and Washington and Lee, respectively. South Carolina's clash with Clemson Thursday and Virginia Military's contest with Maryland Saturday are the only Southern Conference tussles. Georgia's Bulldogs play Mercer Friday.

FAR WEST.—Southern California, a distinct favorite for the Pacific Coast title again, should dispose of Oregon State, and California seems to have more power than Washington State. U. C. L. A., Stanford, Washington and Montana all face non-conference rivals, the latter tackling its traditional foe, Montana State of the Rocky Mountain Conference.

Arkansas and S. M. U. Lead.

SOUTHWEST.—Texas A. and M., with better prospects than for several years, hopes to beat Texas Christian for the first time in four campaigns. Arkansas and Southern Methodist, conference leaders, play strong intersectional opponents in Louisiana State and Oklahoma A. and M., respectively. Texas, beaten by Nebraska and Oklahoma in succession, appears in for another tough afternoon against Centenary, unbeaten since 1931.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN.—Utah and Denver, the leaders, have an open date. Colorado University and Brigham Young will be favored over Colorado Aggies and Western State, respectively. Wyoming and Colorado Teachers play Friday.

SHUTE AND DUDLEY LOSE IN GOLF EXHIBITION

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 16.—Denny Shute, British open golf champion, and Ed Dudley yesterday lost a best ball foursome exhibition match, 2 and 1, to Glenn Spencer and Warner Mather, Baltimore professionals. The match was played over Mather's course, the Woodholme layout.

The visitors each carded 74, one over par. Mather, who was off, trailed everybody with a 78 but the 72 scored by the long hitting Spencer was sufficient to turn the trick.

A Long, Long Trail—Zabala Winning 30,000 Meter Race

Juan Zabala, Argentine distance runner, and winner of the Olympic Marathon in 1932, finishing first in the 30,000 meter race at the Chicago World's Fair. The Argentine won so easily that he did not have to extend himself. The record is held by Jose Ribas, another Argentine.

Scheduled Race Meeting at Aurora Track Cancelled

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.

THE 1933 racing season in the Chicago district started on its last roundup today when Sportsmans Park, the half mile oval on the western edge of the city, opened for a 14-day stand.

So far as the major tracks are concerned, the season is over. Aurora was to open today but the meeting was cancelled.

President Edward O'Hare announced that seven races will be run each day with the exception of the two Saturdays when there will be eight events on the card. The inaugural purse today drew six in the overnight entries.

JOCKEY PORTER INJURED, WILL BE OUT FOR WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Jockey Earle Porter, sensation at the Rockingham Park and Jamaica race meetings, was in Immaculate Hospital at Jamaica, N. Y., yesterday suffering from an injury that may keep him out of the saddle for several days.

It was sustained in the last contest at Jamaica Saturday when his mount, Thundertone, ran too close to the rail, jammed Porter's foot against the wood and smashed his right big toe. Nothing much was thought about the accident then, but Saturday night complications set in and the boy was taken to the hospital for X-ray treatments.

Moore Captures Title.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Merle Moore, University of Arizona star, marched to his second Southwestern singles title in the final of the four-day tennis tournament yesterday. Moore turned back Charles Mickle of Phoenix, 6—1, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Billikens Will Reach Their Peak in Battle With Missouri Tigers

By James M. Gould

As a usual thing, when a college eleven has won two of its first three games and, in thus achieving a percentage of .667, has scored 11 touchdowns, followers of that team are jubilant. An average of nearly four touchdowns a game is a pretty high ratio, no matter what the opposition.

This ratio has been achieved by the St. Louis University Billikens but, if satisfaction at the team's showing is felt by alumni and undergrads they are keeping the display of such satisfaction very well hidden. It isn't that the Billikens haven't done fairly well; it is that they haven't done as well as they are expected to do. One of these days, these Billikens are going to rear up and make apparent that great power that has so far been latent and, when they do, the opposition on that occasion is going to have a very troublesome evening.

A brief review of the St. Louis U. season to date shows a victory over James Millikin by a score of 32 to 0, decisive enough but not an especially brilliant exhibition for St. Louis plays were slow starting and there was general lethargy. Then came Kansas State with a mighty tough ball club. This game disclosed some real power on attack and there is little question that the Kansans, getting their three touchdowns as they did, extra-long runs and passes, were extremely lucky to get away with the decision. At the risk of being called a "downtown quarterback," this observer reiterates that the Billikens, except for that unfortunate and untimely substitution, would have won over the Big Six team.

Pioneers Surprised Billikens.

Grinnell College, beaten in their first three starts, was next. The Billikens won, 19 to 13, but only after the grimmest of fighting when the Pioneers, twice during the game, took a one-touchdown lead. In this game, there was a difference of only a few yards in the total ground gained in favor of St. Louis. Even the most rabid Billiken rooter could hardly claim that the showing of his favorites was a brilliant one.

Well, then, what's the matter with the Billikens of 1933? Basically, not a thing. The team hasn't started to click as a unit, that's all. There's real ability, offensive and defensive and it is bound to show before long.

This week-end finds the Billikens scheduled in one of those "we must win this game" battles for, Saturday afternoon, the Missouri Tigers make their appearance at Walsh Memorial Stadium. St. Louis will be the favorite, naturally.

Missouri Not Clicking.

Basis of comparison is offered by the showing of the Billikens and Tigers against Kansas State as a common foe. Missouri failed to score against the Kansans and allowed their opponents 33 points. The Billikens yielded 20 points and themselves scored 14. All of which, if one were statistically inclined, would show, on offense and defense, a margin of 27 points in favor of St. Louis.

Unfortunately or not, comparative figures don't mean a thing in football and games are not won by showings against a common foe. Yet, the chances are that the Billikens should make it four straight over Missouri in Saturday's game.

Since the two schools resumed football relations in the 1930 season, Missouri has been unable to win. In 1930, the Billikens won, 20 to 0; the following year they were successful, 21 to 6, and last year, it was three in succession when St. Louis was victorious, 19 to 6. In the three games, the Tigers scored 12 points to 60 for the Billikens.

Coach Carideo at Missouri — there's a lad who has had tough going since he started at Columbia —teaches the same system that Coach Walsh employs at St. Louis. So, there'll be no clash there. But, in football, it isn't the system itself, it's the use made of it.

Another for the Billikens.

From the sidelines, it looks as though the Billiken adherents can be of good cheer. A line that includes such players as Rollen, Conlon, Spehr, Meinhardt, Axtell, Bockrath, Philpot, Montgomery, Kersens, Beck, Nisbet and Krause and a backfield that has Kane, Rapp, Hurley, Howland, Arenz, J. Rapp, Thompson, Bassett, Feldman, Lawler and Casey listed, can hardly fail to produce a great eleven.

It is fair to assume that the misfortunes of the team which have not, however, prevented it from winning two of their first three games, are about over and that, from now on, that clicking sound at Walsh Stadium will come from the consistent and efficient teamwork shown by the St. Louis eleven.

There's power "in them, thar Bills."

Gebors Capture Title.

The Gebors won the Y. M. H. A. indoor baseball championship, defeating the Celts, 9 to 2, in the final game played yesterday. Sammy Berman, pitching for the winners, allowed six hits.

M'KINLEY HIGH TO MEET SOLDAN IN FEATURE OF SCHOOL LEAGUE

By Harold Tuthill.

Two of the three teams which are tied for the lead in the City High School football race—Soldan and McKinley—are scheduled to play each other in the feature game of Saturday's doubleheader. In the second contest at the Public Schools Stadium, Beaumont battles Central.

Cleveland, the defending champion, which shares first place with Soldan and McKinley draws a bye as does Roosevelt, which dropped a 7 to 6 decision to Soldan last week.

Bound for Cellar.

Since both Beaumont and Central suffered defeat in their initial appearances, the loser of next Saturday's game will drop into sole occupancy of the cellar, unless the game results in a tie, in which case Roosevelt would be last, since tie games in the league percentage count one-half won and one-half lost.

McBride will open its Preparatory League campaign Saturday afternoon when it meets the last place Western Military Academy eleven at Alton. St. Louis University High and Christian Brothers College are co-leaders, each having defeated Western.

Both University City and Kirkwood, at the top of the St. Louis County race, will engage in league competition this week. The Indians are host to Normandy, Friday afternoon and Kirkwood invades Maplewood, Saturday. Other games are Webster Groves at Wellston, and Principia Academy at St. Charles in a nonleague contest at night, on Friday and Ritenour at Clayton, Saturday.

Principia College will oppose the Hannibal-LaGrange eleven, Saturday afternoon at Taylor field and the Principia "B" and "C" elevens will play Country Day's "B" and "C" squads, Saturday morning n the same field.

In Southwestern.

In the Southwestern Illinois Conference, Granite City will make its bow to the conference race by opposing Belleville in Granite City's Homecoming, Friday. That night, the co-leaders, Wood River and Edwardsville will battle for first place honors at Edwardsville and Alton will be host to Collinsville. The East St. Louis Flyers will entertain Madison Saturday in the fourth conference contest of the week.

F. AND M. GUARD OUT FOR REST OF SEASON

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Hospital attaches said yesterday Omar Cannon, Franklin and Marshall guard, injured in the football game with the University of Pennsylvania, suffered a fracture of the transverse process of the lumbar vertebrae, which will keep him out of the game for the remainder of the season.

Cannon was knocked down by charging Pennsylvania linemen and interfering backs in the second period of the game. It was stated the injured bones were not an important part of the vertebrae, but would not permit him to play again while they were healing.

HUBBELL IS VICTOR; SCHUMACHER BEATEN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Carl Hubbell is still making his bid for headlines. The New York Giants' pitching hero hurled for the Bay Parkways against the Bushwicks in a semi-pro tilt here yesterday and won 6 to 3.

Hal Schumacher, another world's series luminary, was not so fortunate, losing for the Parkways in the nightcap, 3 to 1.

WRAY'S COLUMN

An All-Time Man Passes.

BABE RUTH and his almost unbelievable salary are on their way out. Despite contradictory statements from Babe regarding his intentions for next year, it is obvious that he is through, both as concerns a full season's work at his old pace and his enormous salary.

RUTH

If Ruth is active at all next year, it probably will either be as a part-time player at a greatly reduced salary or as a manager at a stipend that cannot be guessed, except that it will not be within 50 per cent of his peak pay envelope.

Ruth's inability to continue as a day-by-day performer with the Yanks was evident to all last season. During the All-Stars game at Chicago the Babe was taken out and the man sent in to replace him made a brilliant catch.

"Had the Babe been in there," commented the broadcaster, "his old legs would not have brought him within 50 feet of the ball."

That indicates expert opinion of Babe's baseball future. The old legs have failed him, although he can still hit better than the average. Independently rich, it is doubtful if the Babe would accept a halfway job as player. In fact, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter during the season that unless he felt he could give his club a full season of service, he would probably quit, because it would be unfair to sign for a big sum and not be able to earn it.

All indications, therefore, mark the passing of this great player as a diamond hero. It would be as a pathetic anti-climax if he were to remain in the game a worn-out wreck of his former self.

May Never Be Surpassed.

NEVER is a long t' e, but there seems a good chance that the feats of the Bambino will never be surpassed. This generation probably will not see the Babe's marks eclipsed, unless another rabbit ball craze obsesses club owners.

Of course we all know that Joe Hauser, while with the Minneapolis club, broke Babe's home run record by six or more home runs. But park conditions and a rubber-core ball contributed greatly to that result. Hauser, in the big leagues, had no such performance to his credit.

The probabilities are that no baseball player now active can shatter the Babe's record, if the baseball of today is not altered. Lou Gehrig, Al Simmons, Chuck Klein and Jimmy Foxx are the men on the horizon to whom we may look for possible overthrow of Ruth's top mark.

Jimmy Foxx seems the man most likely to come close to Ruth's great major league record.

Foxx Has Best Chance.

CONSIDERING ages, Foxx may have 12 years left in the majors. He has averaged about 30 home runs a year since he came up. If he can maintain this average he will have achieved a total of 584 home runs when the curtain drops on his major league career. Even so, his total would then be lacking about 100 runs of equaling Ruth's mark of 683.

Klein, Gehrig and Simmons all would have to average 35 to 40 homers and keep it up for 10 years, to compare with the Babe's wonderful achievement.

Ruth's high water mark in home runs for a season, in total home runs for a major league career and in extra base hit average in all likelihood will not be equaled in this generation, unless a change in the official baseball makeup is made.

Ruth's remarkable extra-base record is worthy of remembering. In 19 active years in the major leagues he has driven out 480 doubles, 136 triples and 683 home runs.

His slugging average for this period is .685 as compared with .638 for Jimmy Foxx for a very much shorter period in the majors. The same goes for Chuck Klein's .628 and Al Simmons' .582.

A Track Owner Complains.

"RACING is rapidly becoming a week-end sport," remarked a racing authority of many years' experience, who is now connected with the promotion of racing at one or more tracks throughout the United States. For reasons of his own he desired that his name be omitted from any mention of what he had to say. But what he said was too interesting to suppress.

"While some tracks do not complain of mid-week patronage," he pointed out, "nearly all the racing promotors of today find it put up to them to get their expenses on one or two days of the week. Notwithstanding cheap admissions and almost a free gate in many places, the betting public does not put much money through the mutuel hoppers, on an average, more than four days out of the six. Saturdays and holidays, of course, are well attended.

"Racing conducted honestly can not go forward on that alone. I am wondering what will happen if relief of some sort is not obtained, especially since so many more race tracks have sprung into existence and the possibility of getting high class horses from which to fill events has dwindled almost to the zero point."

Now It Comes Out.

"WHAT'S the remedy?" replied the turfman to a question. "That would surprise you. Briefly, I would have states which legalize racing suppress the handbook or impose a heavy annual license fee to keep out the pikers. At least this would give the State a revenue, even if it did not help racing.

"Take a look at the racing situation say in Illinois, where I am connected with a track as part owner and manager. In Chicago there are I would say not fewer than 20,000 handbook agents. They operate every day and even on Sunday. They are found in cigar stores, barber shops, shoeshining stands, newspaper vending booths, 'taverns', restaurants, tailor shops—everywhere.

"They pay commissions to men who turn in bets to them. Imagine the field they cover. They operate in violation of the law and the State gets not one dollar of benefit from them. In fact it costs the State money to prosecute them or to make occasional and fruitless raids.

"Contrast with this the effort of the track promoter to live and keep the sport going on a clean basis. We have to charge admission and the player has to pay his transportation to and from the track. In all this may cost him $2.

"But if he is just a betting man, the handbook saves him that $2 by handling his bet, at no cost either in admission or transportation. Imagine how much custom a race track loses through the handbook.

Owners Bet With Handbooks.

"BUT that's not the half of it. The operations of handbooks men keep thousands of dollars away from the track that would have been bet by horse owners. The handbook man says to the owner: 'Why bet at the track and have the odds cut down on your horse? Bet with me. We pay track odds for cash over the counter and it won't get back into the mutuel to cut down the price.' That's an argument any owner or big bettor will fall for.

"One of the most exasperating features about it is the fact that some of the bookmakers actually come to the track with their bank rolls and clients and take away business from the mutuels by laying prices right at the track.

"About the last straw was the case of the bookmaker who told his client: 'Make your bets with me and then go to the track and watch the races run. Here's a ticket and my boy will drive you over to the track.' Isn't that enough to make anybody weep?

"The queer part of it is that handbooks have been flourishing in every state in the Union which prohibits gambling and nothing is done about it. Millions of illegal bets are made every year and the states get no revenue from it.

"The handbooks seem immune. But they pin racetracks down and make them pay and pay, and then ride the life out of them every time a favorite fails to win.

"In all reason, if any state wants revenue, why doesn't it tackle the handbook first and the racetrack afterwards? One's against the law and the other tries to keep within it."

Billiard Stars To Compete in Tourney Here

Professional and amateur three-cushion billiard players will compete in the Southern sectional three-cushion tournament to be played at Peterson's, starting next Monday. Seven players are entered in the competition, five of the number being from St. Louis.

R. B. Harper, Rocky Mountain champion from Denver and Frank Fleming, Champaign, Ill., veteran, will be the out-of-town contestants.

The local players who will strive for the title are Bud Westhus, Gene Deardorff, Herbert Peterson, L. M. Dieckmeyer and Ben Goodman. Goodman, a former Denverite, is now making St. Louis his home. At one time he was city champion of Denver.

HORSES IN DEAD HEAT IN BUENOS AIRES RACE

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16.—Two thoroughbreds, Requiebro and Tamesis, ran a dead heat in the 50th running of the national prize, Argentina's classic horse race yesterday.

The pre-race favorite, Hasta Ahor, was slashed by two masked men who invaded his stable and was unable to run.

Lecces Trim Edgemont.

The Lecces of Collinsville gained a 4-to-3 victory over Edgemont, pennant winner in the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League, in a game at Edgemont, yesterday afternoon.

THREE MEMBERS OF WASHINGTON ELEVEN HURT IN CHICAGO GAME

Three Washington University regulars were painfully injured in the game with Chicago here last Saturday and all three may be out of action in the Bears' next engagement which is with Bradley Tech, Friday night.

The most seriously hurt are Nathan Tutinsky, halfback, and E. Niehaus, center. Tutinsky did not start against the Maroons. Sent in as a substitute, he was taken out after only two plays, his face bleeding from a gash which required 30 stitches to close. "Tut" later went back into the game but his efficiency naturally was lowered. Niehaus, playing splendidly on defense, took a hard hammering during the afternoon and finally had to retire. Today his arm is in a sling and an X-ray will be needed to determine the extent of the injury.

The other casualty is Dwight Hafeli, fullback. Hafeli entered the contest with a badly bruised elbow and came out with it bruised some more. He probably will be able to play Friday but Tutinsky is definitely on the sidelines and Niehaus is a very doubtful starter.

It is fortunate that the Washington schedule calls for a "breather" this week because after two weeks of Big Ten competition, the Bears could do with a bit of easier opposition. Bradley Tech has shown nothing thus far this season to warrant any Washington fears of defeat and, with the Drake game following on Oct. 28, it is hoped that reserves will be able to play most of the game Friday. This game, incidentally, was originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon but a wish to avoid conflict with the St. Louis U.-Missouri game led to the change in date.

Coach Conzelman today praised his players for their plucky showing against Chicago. He feels that they gave the Maroons a real battle until the constant hammering they received made their resistance weaker. Comparing Chicago with Illinois, Conzelman said he thought the Illinois line was the stronger but that Chicago had the better backs. He spoke highly of the ability of Nyquist, Zimmer and Berwanger.

The battered Bears will have only very light work this week in preparation for the Bradley game.

ST. LOUIS WILL BID FOR NATIONAL TITLE PIN TOURNEY IN 1936

Preliminary plans for bringing the American Bowling Congress championship tournament here in 1936 were made at the annual meeting of the St. Louis Tenpin Bowling Association, held yesterday. Several officers of the A. B. C. were guests at the local meeting.

Frank B. Grodzki was again named president of the St. Louis Association, with Jerry Ameling as secretary and C. Howard Stewart, treasurer.

Other officers elected were: A. J. Werder, first vice-president; Sid Wilson, second vice-president; A. B. Berne, third vice-president; George Fishwick, fourth vice-president; Charles P. Bieger, fifth vice-president, and Arthur Rothwell, auditor. F. J. Dierkes, E. Krill, August Knierim, James N. Koelsch, E. B. McElheny, Roy Nelson, W. D. Russell, Fred T. Sunkel, Edward Taylor and J. H. Woemhoerner were named members of the Executive Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKESIDE, Mo., Oct. 16.—G. E. Crosby, with a score of 92 out of 100, won the championship in the first annual Missouri State Skeet Shoot held here yesterday. A total of 57 shooters from St. Louis, Jefferson City, Kansas City and other parts of the State competed.

G. E. Nickel with 91 was second, while Charles M. Clark of St. Louis, was third with 89. L. H. Egan won the 25-target event in a shoot-off, breaking 25 straight. It was the fifth 25 Egan has recorded this season.

The event was held under the auspices of the National Skeet Shooters' Association.

Father Wins From Son.

D. C. Garroway defeated his son Dick, 1 up, to win the championship of the Normandie Golf Club in the 18-hole final yesterday. William Mason Jr. won from H. E. Doerr, 5-3, in Class A; Chase Morsey defeated J. D. Eby, 1 up, 21 holes in Class B, while K. A. Welker took the Class C title, winning from Fred Hebler, 3 and 2.

Trojans Beat De Molays.

The Trojan football eleven gained a 13-to-0 victory over the St. Louis Chapter, DeMolay team, yesterday at Subiette Park. Six members of the DeMolay eleven suffered injuries, which may keep them out of the opening league contest at Sisler's North End Park next Sunday.

Bike Finals Next Sunday.

The Missouri State championship bicycle races will be held in Forest Park next Sunday morning. It was announced by Lon O. Relm, local representative of the Bicycle Leagues of America. Competition will be in both senior and junior divisions.

GULDAHL VICTOR SCORES 68 ON FIRST 18 TO GAIN SIX-UP LEAD ON RIVAL

By W. J. McGoogan.

Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis Country Club professional, has another golf championship to his credit today, having defeated Orville White, former Westborough pro, 3 to 6, in the 36-hole final of the St. Louis District match play tournament at Algonquin, yesterday.

Ralph won three of the first four holes of the morning round, and after that White was never able to square the match. The tall Texan, who finished second in the National Open tournament last June, finished the morning round with a great 68, three strokes under par, and was six up when they went to lunch.

White, obviously nervous at the start, had a 74 for the first 18 holes, but started a little better in the afternoon, winning the first hole. Guldahl, however, birdied the next two and it was impossible for Orville to match him.

It started to rain as the afternoon round was scheduled to begin. After some delay the downpour ceased but the damage, so far as attendance was concerned, had been done. Only about 300 persons followed the play. When the match ended, on the twelfth green, the two players completed the 18 holes for the benefit of the spectators, White finishing with 67, four strokes under par for a 141 total for the 36 holes. Guldahl had a 69 for an aggregate of 137.

Guldahl Outdrives Rival.

Guldahl hit a tremendous ball off the tee all day long and was out in front of White with his first shot on almost every hole. In addition, Guldahl was in good putting form, and when that is the case it is just too bad for his opponent.

Ralph had seven birdies and two eagles in the match while White had nine birdies.

Guldahl sliced his tee shot on the first tee in the afternoon round for one of the few mistakes he made all day, and followed that up by pushing his shot out to the right on the second hole. He had a line of trees to carry with his second shot but negotiated them with a four iron and rolled the ball to within seven feet of the hole to get his eagle.

His other eagle came on the 562-yard sixteenth hole in the morning, cracking two fine wood club shots to the green and getting down in one putt.

Starting the final nine holes seven up, Guldahl lost the twenty-eighth hole to White's birdie four, but got the next with a par three to Orville's four, then wound up the contest with a birdie three on the thirtieth hole.

White Finishes Strong.

From then on White played his best golf, winning three of the final six holes and losing none. He birdied 14, 15, 17 and 18 and got pars on 13 and 16, but by that time it was too late.

The tournament, the first of its kind here in which amateurs and professional met in match play, was played largely for the benefit of the Caddy Association, to which 50 per cent of the proceeds went. Jimmy Manion, Normandie amateur, conceived the idea and was largely instrumental in carrying it through, even playing himself and losing only in the third round to Guldahl, one down in 36 holes. A total of 57 players started but there were additional complimentary entries of more than 100.

The District Association officials were so pleased with the event that it is likely to become a permanent fixture on the golf calendar.

Guldahl received $125 for his victory, White $75 and each of the losing semifinalists, both professionals, received $25.. In addition, Guldahl got $15 for the medal honor as he led the qualifying round with 141 for 36 holes, one stroke better than White.

GULDAHL DEFEATS WHITE, 8-6, TO WIN MATCH-PLAY TITLE

VICTOR SCORES 68 ON FIRST 18 TO GAIN SIX-UP LEAD ON RIVAL

By W. J. McGoogan.

Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis Country Club professional, has another golf championship to his credit today, having defeated Orville White, former Westborough pro, 8 to 6, in the 36-hole final of the St. Louis District match play tournament at Algonquin, yesterday.

ELLIOTT IS WINNER IN STATE GOLF FINAL

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 16.—Alfred Elliott Jr. of Mexico, Mo., won the championship in the annual Columbia Country Club amateur invitation golf tournament here yesterday by defeating Paul Leslie of Jefferson City in the finals, 4 and 2.

In the semifinals, Elliott defeated Percy Gill of Richmond, and Leslie beat Dean Parks of Columbia yesterday morning. Parks shot a subpar 70, but lost on two bad holes.

In a special event for professionals, Norman Scotten of the Sedalia Country Club defeated Merle de Moss of Kirksville by a single stroke, with a 54-hole medal total of 228, two under par.

Gunners and Oklahoma Team Display Brilliant Form in Hard-Fought Scoreless Tie

One of the best exhibitions of scientific, real football seen here this season went to waste at Public Schools Stadium yesterday when rain kept the attendance at the Gunners-Oklahoma Chiefs pro game down to a few scattered hundreds. Neither team scored but, despite that fact, there were plenty of thrills.

The Gunners had the edge on offense, counting 10 first downs to three for the Oklahomans, but the teams were equal on defense. The work of both lines was of the highest class and it was a pleasure to watch ends who could "end," tackles who did that very thing and guards who "came out" efficiently or "stayed in" if the occasion required such a move. Both teams were well-schooled and, apparently, in great condition.

The Big Thrill.

One of the big thrills of the game came in the first period when Joe Spudich, last year a star at McKendree College, returned a kick 70 yards with his teammates giving one of the greatest exhibitions of clever blocking ever seen on a St. Louis gridiron. But, with the ball inside their 10-yard line, the Chiefs, most of whom played on the Oklahoma City U. Firemen two years ago, and won by a point from St. Louis, braced beautifully and took the ball on their eight-yard mark. Again the Gunners rushed into the danger zone and again they were stopped by the Chiefs' great defense. Spudich was hurt in this period and was out of action until the third quarter.

Spudich and Johnston did most of the Gunners' ground-gaining but Frahm and Breidenstein helped out with cuts through the line and were excellent on defense.

For Oklahoma, Massad, former Oklahoma U, star, did most of the plunging. Sedbrook, Hand, Anderson and Schwab equaled Massad's play on other formations, and what probably saved the Chiefs from defeat was the long-distance punting of Eaton, who dropped back from end.

Clean and Clever.

As a rule, a scoreless tie isn't particularly interesting but this game was an exception because it was so cleanly and cleverly played. So well-matched were the elevens that it is planned to bring the Chiefs back here for a return game later in the season.

Next Sunday the Gunners will oppose the Memphis Tigers. Last year Memphis held the 1932 Gunneds to a 0-0 tie.

Moses, formerly of Southern California, and Senn, who attended Knox College, were new Gunner players who saw action. Moses' debut was marred when he fumbled two kicks, but he showed he was a great passer and a good defensive man. Senn played too short a time for the passing of judgment on his ability.

Spudich Has Future.

It is apparent that Joe Spudich has a great future before him if he intends to continue in professional football. This ex-McKendree back can do—and does—everything. A sure catch of punts, he is great in open field, and if any of the big league pro teams have scouts, Joe probably is already marked for 1934.

A great thing about pro football is the "clean-cutness" of play. An opponent is taken out without any fuss; tackles are clean and hard, nobody's nervous and all know how to play the game.

After the Gunners had been held to two yards of gain in three tries, with the ball on Oklahoma's eight-yard line in the first quarter, the versatile Spudich tried for a field goal. It was a foot or so wide.

The first two plays of the game, after the kick-off, established some sort of a record. Frahm of the Gunners passed and Eaton intercepted, after which Anderson of the Chiefs heaved one and Spudich intercepted.

Another for "Book."

Another one "for the book" came in the third quarter. The Chiefs had the ball and Eaton completed a short pass to Massad. The catch was clean, but Massad tried to reverse his field and was thrown for a five-yard loss. Ripley might be abel to use that one.

JENNINGS WINNER IN 37-MILE AUTO RACE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—"Windy" Jennings, of South Bend, Ind., won a 37½ mile automobile race in 34:29.10 at Veterans of Foreign Wars speedway yesterday, finishing a lap and a half ahead of Cliff Miller, Detroit. Henry Banks, Royal Oak, was third.

A 20-mile event was won by Bill Carr, of Cleveland, in 19:45.25. Jess Fifer, of Toledo, took a two and a half mile motorcycle race in 2:31.90.

STIX TEAM WINS, TAKES LEAD IN SOCCER LEAGUE

By Herman Wecke.

Packing entirely too many heavy guns, even with three of their first stringers on the sidelines, the national champion Stix, Baer & Fuller soccer team gained its second victory in the St. Louis (professional) League at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, defeating the Ben Millers, 3 goals to 1. In the opener, Phil Kavanaugh's Minit Rubs gained a 3 to 2 victory over the Andersons. Fewer than 1000 persons attended the doubleheader.

When the Stix took the field, such stars as Eddie Flavin, Bill Watson and Ollie Bohlman were on the sidelines. In fact, they did not play at all, while Alex McNab toiled only in the second period. But so well did the others performs their tasks that at the end of the first half, the champions were leading, 3 to 0.

Manager Tate Brady will have a real task in selecting a regular lineup, when all his athletes are back in condition and ready, to go at top speed. The eleven has an overabundance of forward and halfback talent.

McLean First to Score.

Soon after hostilities opened, Willie McLean put the Stix ahead when he sent one into the net after passes by McPherson and Nilsen had brought the ball into the penalty area. Next a loose ball came to Bill McPherson after a clear of a corner kick by Frankie Pastor and the halfback made it 2 to 0. Before the half closed, Werner Nilsen made it three for the champions.

A fine hook shot by Larry Kickham gave the Millers their only score in the second half.

In the opening game, the Andersons were first to tally, scoring when Goalie Bertel was slow in making a clear. M. Selby rushed in, blocked the ball, and sent it into the net. The Kavanaughs equalized when A. Garcia caught Rodriguez out of position. Johnny Roe made it two for the Andersons when he was in the right spot after Lodderhose's hard shot hit the upright. Bart Connors and Pat Reidy scored for the Kavanaughs in the closing half.

Next Sunday, the Stix will play the Kavanaughs, while the Millers mix with the Andersons.

Bill McPherson was forced out of the second game, when he was accidentally kicked in the head by Ollie Klund, when the two attempted to clear a loose sphere. He was not badly injured. A few minutes later, Benish, halfback of the Millers, stopped a hard shot from McLean and was forced to quit the field.

Although three goals were scored against Johnny Hamm he is still the best "goalie" in the league. He made some wonderful "saves" during the match with the Stix.

U. CITY PLAYER OVER AGE LIMIT; SCHOOL FORFEITS LEAGUE VICTORY

Fullback Lilburn Ochs of the University City High School football team has been found ineligible under the 20-year maximum age rule, and the school automatically forfeits its County League victory over Ritenour, because the boy played in that game.

Miss Julia B. Griswold, principal of Wellston High and secretary of the league, stated this afternoon that Ochs had been found ineligible and that the victory of University City over Ritenour was wiped out. The board does not have to meet to pass on the matter of forfeiting the game.

The question of Ochs' eligibility came up when he failed to appear in last Saturday's game against Webster. It was learned that while the school record indicated he was within the maximum age of 20 years, the State birth record showed he was born April 24, 1913.

Questioned about the Ochs case, Coach "Stub" Muhl said:

Our office took a reasonable amount of precautions to see that no ineligible player was on our team, but in the case of Ochs, we have found more positive records that he is over age.

"Ochs was a good player and has been for three years. He was just over-enthusiastic, as any high school football player might be. He turned in his suit this morning when it was found definitely that he was ineligible.

"I am sorry the incident happened because it puts the school and the player in a bad light. I want to say that at least 10 members of our squad last year had to be kept off this season because of our rigid scholastic rules and that ought to show we are trying to do the right thing."

As a result of the change in University City's record, the county race is opened up considerably. The Indians now have a record of one victory and one defeat, while Kirkwood, Maplewood and Wellston have yet to be beaten in league play.

The Old Master.

"Mack 50 Years in Game. Will Carry On."

OLD Connie has played, and has seen a good deal of it,
And hopes to continue for many a day;
At last the old Mahout is getting the feel of it—
The first 50 years are the hardest, they say.

Old Connie's career's a continuous story,
In which he has won lots of honor and fame;
The next 50 years should redound to his glory,
Unless he decides that he won't like the game.

In time he has handled a score of lieutenants,
The stars he's developed amount to a mob;
And if he kicks in with a dozen more pennants,
Perhaps he'll be given a permanent job.

Gotta Match.

It looks as though the "child novelist" has had her nose put out of joint by the 2-year-old kids that smoke four or five strong cigars every day.

Ask Uncle Dudley.

Dear Uncle Dudley: Just what is a "ringer" on a race track?—Aunty Skid.

It is a horse that is there with bells on until they find him out.—U. D.

The flying tackle has practically been discarded by the football players, but the wrestlers will continue to use it until the new crop of footballers come into the mat game with the latest holds as practised on the gridiron.

So astute an authority as Jock Sutherland says a guy can carry on more efficiently for "dear old Rutgers" on the gridiron than he can from a cot in a hospital. There may be something to that.

Although a top notcher in his day Nick Altrock probably makes considerably more clowning than he ever did pitching. And the transition from a pitcher to a comedian was easy. All he did was turn his cap half way around so that the peak was over his ear instead of his eyes and there he was!

Many say that it was team spirit that won for the Giants. On the other hand even the Senators' worst enemies wouldn't say that they enjoyed losing a game.

As a mascot that blue pigeon that flew around the ball park in Washington was a washout. A clay pigeon could have done as well.

One for the Book.

Football officials in the Pacific Coast Conference will have to carry the rules in the heads this season. Rule books are taboo. They may not know much about football but they'll have to be memory experts.

A golfer in South Bend, Ind., boasts that he has played golf every day for eight years. He must be after a continuous record of some kind.

Adolfo Luque didn't wax enthusiastic over the proposition to make him President of Cuba after winning the final game of the world series. Presidents of Cuba don't last as long as baseball managers.

And they never know whether they will go out of office under their own power or on a stretcher.

"Gus" Dorais says there is no such thing as a 10-second man on the gridiron. On the waffle-iron maybe, in a cake eating contest, but not on the gridiron.

NELSON AND MARTIN WIN BOWLING MATCH

Roy Nelson and Lee Martin of the Wooster Lamberts defeated Ben Cohen and "Windy" Glaub of the Silver Seals in a five-game doubles match at the City Limits Recreation yesterday by 160 pins. Cohen and Glaub were far off form and rolled only 1837, while Nelson and Martin counted 1997.

Martin rolled 1014, with a high game of 232, while Nelson scored 983, with a high game of 223. Glaub had 920 and Coen 917.

Colgate Stars Injured.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Warren Davis and Jim O'Hara, two of Colgate's best tackles, will not be able to play against New York University this week-end, it was determined yesterday. Davis has a dislocated elbow, and O'Hara a severe knee sprain. Dr. L. C. Beebe, university physician, said they would not be able to play for at least two weeks.

BECCALI FAILS IN HIS EFFORT TO SET RECORD

By the Associated Press.

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 16.—Luigi Beccali, Italian holder of the Olympic 1500-meter title, failed in an attempt to lower his own world's record for that distance yesterday a an international athletic meet.

He was clocked in 3:49.6, compared with the mark of 3:49 he established last month.

Steel Castings Take Lead.

The St. Louis Steel Castings gained a lead of 126 pins over the Vescovo women's team in the first half of a six-game match at Vescovo's Recreation Saturday night. The Steels totaled 2778, while the women rolled 2652. The Vescovos received a handicap of 120 pins.

Myrtle Schulte with 570, which included a 203 game, was high for the Vescovos, while W. Glaub was best for the Castings with 613. Glaub hit 268 in the third game.

CHICAGO BEARS RETAIN LEAD IN PRO TITLE RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—High scores predominated yesterday as the leaders held their positions in the National Professional Football League.

Both the Chicago Bears, defending champions, and the Portsmouth Spartans, were victorious, but the Windy City eleven remains in first place because of a defeat that blemishes the Spartans' record. The Bears renewed their civil war with the Chicago Cardinals and turned in a 12-to-9 victory; the Spartans beat Boston, 13 to 0; Brooklyn rolled up 27 points, against Cincinnati's 0; New York smothered Philadelphia, 56 to 0, and Green Bay blanked Pittsburgh, 47 to 0.

The Bears came from behind in the second half to win their fourth straight game. After marching nearly 75 yards, a pass, Hewitt to Johnson, was good for a touchdown and Manders added the extra point. A safety and a field goal by Manders gave the Bears five more points and the game in the final quarter. Joe Lillard scored all the Cards' points in the second quarter.

Presnell Proves Star.

"Press" Presnell booted and passed the Spartans to victory. He tossed a 45-yard pass to Cavanie that was good for six points, kicked the extra point and then booted two field goals. It was the Spartans' fourth win in five starts.

The Gotham eleven's aerial attack proved too much for Philadelphia in its league debut and the former scored in every period. Philadelphia never got beyond the New Yorkers' 30-yard line. The win placed the Giants in third place.

Green Bay outplayed Pittsburgh in all departments. The Packers intercepted several passes and put on many long runs that resulted in touchdowns. It was the Packers' second win of the season, against two ties and one loss.

Brooklyn broke into the win column after three losses by trimming Cincinnati, 27 to 0. Shipwreck Kelly was the scoring punch, with three touchdowns.

Presnell continued to lead the league in scoring. He has 27 points, two touchdowns, six points after, and three field goals to his credit.

EAST ST. LOUIS DRIVER WINS IN RAMONA FEATURE

One automobile catching fire and another breaking through the outside fence of the track provided the thrills in the auto and motorcycle races held yesterday afternoon at Ramona Park's speedway.

Johnny Rogers of Benton, Ill., was the driver whose machine crashed through the fence. He was leading on the fortieth lap of the 50-lap feature when the accident happened. In the same race, on the eighteenth lap, a fire broke out in the engine of the racer driven by W. Ross of Terre Haute, Ind. Both of the machines were put out of action.

Pete Alberts of East St. Louis won the feature race in 23 minutes 6.5 seconds. The distance was approximately 12½ miles. Red Bradley of Peoria was second and Tom Thompson, St. Louis, was third.

A heavy track caused the marks in the motorcycle events to be slow. Lee Healy won the first four-lap race in 3 minutes 40 seconds, while Steve Domyan and Ben Chester finished behind him. In the second race of the same distance, Domyan was first in 3 minutes 48 seconds, Chesney and Healey following him across the finish line.

This week, Hank Eiler, one of the track officials, is to petition E. C. Smith, secretary of the American Motorcycle Association, for a license. Minor changes in the track will be made to conform to the association rules.

MINOR LEAGUERS WIN IN CHARITY CONTEST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—The Elks charity baseball game between major-league stars, including "Lefty" O'Doul, Joe Cronin, Chick Hafey, Willie Kamm, Tony Lazzeri and others, and an all-star Pacific Coast League team netted $6000. More than 15,000 fans crowded into Seals Stadium yesterday to see the minor-leaguers defeat the major stars, 5 to 3. Ty Cobb managed the majors, and Jimmy Caveney managed the minors.

Dizzy Dean Injured.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—"Dizzy" Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, may not appear with "Pepper" Martin and an all-star squad against the Philadelphia Royal Giants, Los Angeles colored team, in a baseball game here tonight because of injuries to small bones in his right hand suffered yesterday while practicing in Pasadena.

Open Season for Coaches.

IF anyone has the idea that the life of a football coach is a happy one, then that one has a wrong idea. Already, with the season just under way, rumors are flying thick and fast with famous football-teachers slated for "this way out" action.

A football coach, apparently, MUST win. Only by victories is his ability measured. Excuses don't go. Even the very important factor of his influence on the boys he is working with does not, it would seem, enter. Up at Illinois, Zuppke was beginning to "get talked about." But, to show the reverse of the shield, now that the Illini have defeated Wisconsin so decisively, "Old Zup" is himself again and should he win from the Army at Cleveland next Saturday—a not impossible task—the exit rumors would be packed away in mothballs for another year.

There is also heavy firing at the head of Coach Frank Carideo of Missouri. Last year, Missouri's woes were attributed to an extra-heavy schedule with which Carideo had nothing to do and the introduction of a new "Notre Dame" system at Columbia. This year, the Tiger schedule started more slowly but all that Missouri has to show in two regular games is two crushing defeats. If, though, the Tigers should win their next game—and they'll be underdogs in the Billiken game—the head-hunters would retire as they have in the case of Zuppke.

And Still They Come.

SPEAKING of upsets—and what football fan isn't—this season probably will go down into sport history as the "upsettingest" of all. They started early this year and each Saturday has added to the list.

Let's look at the list thus far:

Sept. 30—Iowa 7, Northwestern 0.
Oct. 7—Kansas 0, Notre Dame 0.
Oct. 7—Kirksville 26, Missouri 6.
Oct. 7—Minnesota 6, Indiana 6.
Oct. 13—Drake 6, Creighton 0.
Oct. 15—Minnesota 7, Purdue 7.
Oct. 14—Illinois 21, Wisconsin 0.

Now, these are only the major upsets which have attracted notice all over the country. Besides, there have been scores of others which, in their own circles, have been just as surprising.

And, it's an odds-on bet that next Saturday will see many another.

Absence of Rule-Changes.

AMONG other things the football fan can be thankful for this year is the absence of changes in the rules. Those who were fairly conversant with the 1932 regulations are "up" on those of 1933. That rule which automatically moves the ball in 10 yards from the sideline has worked out nicely. It has speeded up the play considerably and now a team doesn't have to lose a down because his team hasn't kept to the straight and narrow path down the center of the gridiron.

Perennial Winners Lose.

BY winning from St. Mary's by a single touchdown, Saturday, Southern California ran its string of consecutive victories to 25 but two other teams which also had somewhat similar records, were stopped.

Duke won from Tennessee, 10 to 2, and thereby shattered a three-year winning streak for the Volunteers and Oklahoma, for the first time in 14 years, defeated Texas.

Apparently, all a team needs is patience.

JACK BUCKHART NEW MUNY GOLFCHAMPION OF UNIVERSITY CITY

Jack Buckhart is the new municipal golf champion of University City. He defeated Bob Brown, 10 and 9, in the 36-hole final of the championship class yesterday.

Two other finals were played. In class A, C. Hassler defeated Mel Douglas, 4 and 3, in their 18-hole match, and in Class C, Dr. D. Benjamin, won from Joe Uhl, 1 up, in 19 holes. Next Sunday, A. W. Dellendorf is scheduled to play Herb Starck in the 18-hole final in class B.

JACK DOYLE, IRISH BOXER, TO VISIT U. S.

BELFAST.—Jack Doyle, Irish heavyweight boxer, plans to visit the United States early next year.

He revealed to the International News Service that Jack Dempsey has agreed to act as his manager. Doyle is also a fine singer but prefers boxing to singing. He has, however, taken out an insurance policy to cover any risk to his throat while boxing, as an injury might harm his voice.

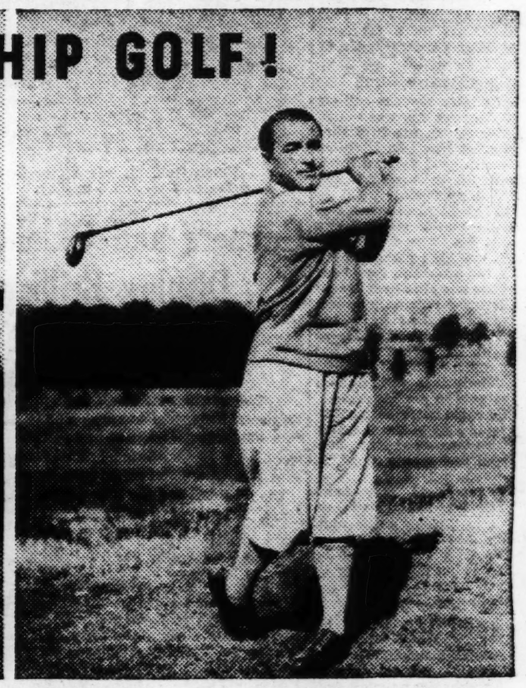

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF!

DENSMORE SHUTE—Britons gasped and gaped when he won the 1933 British Open over St. Andrews' deceptive fairways and angry bunkers. Golf prophets say Shute will line up with Golf Immortals. Answering a question, Shute recently said: "I have tried all the brands, and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

TOMMY ARMOUR—Often called "Wizard of the Irons," Armour has won a flock of championships, including the U.S. Open in 1927, the P. G. A. in 1930, the British Open in 1931. Tommy knows his golf and his cigarettes. "What do I think of Camels? They are my brand and have been for years. I smoke a lot but I must be sure that my nerves are healthy and my head is clear—that's why I prefer Camels."

GENE SARAZEN—This great golfer began his winning ways in 1922 when he became U. S. Open Champion. He has been a consistent tournament winner ever since. This year he won his third P. G. A. Championship. On the subject of cigarettes Sarazen says: "I agree with Shute and Armour—I smoke Camels, too. They always taste good—and they never interfere with my nerve control."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women whose work and play demand healthy nerves and level heads prefer Camels. Active people agree that they can smoke these fine-flavored, milder cigarettes without fear of jangling their nerves.

Another thing about active people—they are pretty generally steady smokers... And, as anyone who smokes Camels will tell you, you can smoke as many of these cigarettes as you want—and never have a "cigaretty" aftertaste. The last cigarette at night tastes as good as the first in the morning, if you smoke Camels.

Try a package of Camels today... Enjoy the superior flavor of their costlier tobaccos. If you are a steady smoker you will appreciate the fact that Camels never get on your nerves, never tire your taste.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You will find Camels rich in flavor and delightfully mild.

INAZO NITOBE, JAPANESE PEER, EDUCATOR, DIES

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 16.—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japan's last League of Nations representative, died in a hospital here last night. He was 71 years old.

He became ill here a month ago while on his way home to Japan from the Pacific Relations Conference at Banff, Alta. He developed pneumonia.

A few hours before his death an operation was performed which involved opening the back on the left side to drain an abscess.

Dr. Nitobe was one of Japan's foremost public men. He was a Crown member of the House of Peers.

He told the League of Nations that Japan had decided to quit the league, following the report of its commission censuring the empire for its invasion of Manchuria and creation of the State of Manchukuo.

After representing his country at Geneva in 1932, he became chairman of the Japan National Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Dr. Nitobe, who came of an ancient Samurai family, was born at Morioka, Japan, in 1862. His studies took him to the Sapporo Agricultural College, the Imperial University of Tokio, Johns Hopkins University and the Universities of Bonn, Halle and Berlin, Germany. He won the degree of master of arts at Johns Hopkins and that of doctor of philosophy at Halle.

He taught at the Universities of Hokkaido, Kyoto and Tokio before coming to the United States as exchange professor to six universities under the Carnegie Peace Foundation. He served as Under-Secretary-General of the League of Nations and represented the league on the International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation, which was composed of such notables as Dr. Albert Einstein, Mme. Curie of France, Prof. Gilbert Murray and Prof. Henri Bergson.

Dr. Nitobe was author of 16 books in Japanese and six in English. "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," which he published in 1900, was translated into 12 languages.

worse, and there is still a possibility it may be improved."

The paper recalled that Germany could not quit the League for two years and was bound both by the Locarno treaty and the Kellogg pact and was a signatory to the recent four-Power pact. It emphasized that the four-Power pact provided means for renewing negotiations.

The News-Chronicle maintained that Germany had right on her side in protesting against the failure of the allies to carry out their promise to disarm, but took the worst possible way of attaining her ends.

The Labor-Socialist Herald blamed the allies and especially Sir John Simon's speech at Geneva Saturday for the situation. "Germany was not invited to negotiate a compromise; she was asked to accept a humiliation," the Herald said. "Wherever war comes the United States won't be there, and we should stay away, too."

Lord Beaverbrook, the publisher, pleaded for the denunciation of the Locarno peace pact in a speech at the Guildhall last night, declaring France "at this moment" has the right to demand British co-operation in military action against Germany.

"At present," he said, we must take part if a war breaks out. . . . The treaty of Locarno obliges us, after deliberations of the Council of the League of Nations, to assist the French in driving armed Germans from the left bank of the Rhine if fortifications are built or military defensive measures are taken there by the Germans."

Soviet Press Sees Danger to World Peace.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 16.—The Soviet press sees danger to world peace in Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference. At the same time, however, it declares the action demonstrates the complete inability of the League to carry out its functions.

Izvestia, recalling the similar withdrawal of Japan, said: "When Germany wants to obtain freedom of action for its military adventures, it does likewise, and declares to the world that it has decided to enter the path of war preparations."

Declaring Germany's action was the result of the failure of Nazi domestic policies and consequent international isolation, the Government organ continued, with the assertion that withdrawal had cleared the way for new chauvinistic and militaristic propaganda.

Pravda, declaring Germany now faced a uniform front of the United States, France and England, said "Europe has become a volcano with the whole capitalistic world preparing for war."

ALTA LESSEYT.

As the climax of a bitter quarrel, Miss Lesseyt, 36 years old, shot and killed her sweetheart, Tom Bay, motion picture cowboy, and then sent a bullet through her own breast. In the hospital in Burbank, Cal., she said another woman recently had come into the life of the cowboy actor and they had had frequent and bitter arguments concerning the triangle. At the hospital it is said that she probably will recover. In 1925., Bay was defendant in the killing of another film cowboy, "Yakima Jim" Anson, but after a lengthy trial was acquitted.

Wallace Beery in Plane Smashup.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DEAL ON FOR WINE FROM CHILE

U. S. Group Seeks to Purchase Large Part of Supply.

SANTIAGO, Oct. 16.—Wine dealers from the United States were reported today to be negotiating for the purchase of a large part of Chile's wine supply.

It was understood that American dealers with a capital of $5,000,000 have indicated interest, and that wine producers, exporters and Government officials are giving close attention to the possibilities of the American market when prohibition is repealed. The 1933 wine production of Chile is estimated at 250,000,000 liters (a liter is about 1.06 quarts). A large part of the wine is consumed within the country, but exports have increased recently, chiefly to Europe.

STOCK PRICES FALL UNDER BIG WAVE OF LIQUIDATION

Attributed Partly to Traders' Inability to Interpret Domestic and Foreign Situations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Stocks tumbled today under waves of late liquidation attributed partly to inability of traders to interpret the complexities of both the domestic and European situations. There was little support for most of the leaders and losses of 1 to 5 or more points were general. The activity expanded on the decline and transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares. The close was weak.

Heavy selling volume came into the market around 1 o'clock after a morning of extreme dullness in which equities displayed a sagging tendency. Brokerage houses reported considerable discouraged public realizing in the afternoon. Short selling, while picking up noticeably in some stocks, was, as a whole, said to have been unimportant. There was believed to have been no unusual amount of foreign liquidation.

Grains held fairly well during most of the day, but they fell with stocks. Wheat slumped the full day's allowable limit of 5 cents a bushel. Cotton also turned downward. Secondary bonds were substantial losers. The dollar gyrated erratically in foreign exchange dealings.

There was a moderate rally just before the close that cut share losses fractionally to more than a point. Among losers of 5 or more points were Allied Chemical, National Distillers, Case and Union Pacific. Issues down 1 to more than 4 included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Smelting, New York Central Sears, Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, General Motors, Western Union, Johns-Manville, American Can, Westinghouse, Delaware and Hudson.

Wheat closed 4¾@5⅛ cents under Saturday's finish. Corn was not in such great supply and ended with losses of only ⅜@1⅝ cents a bushel. Oats were off 2⅛@2⅞ cents and rye and barley declined about 5 cents. Winnipeg wheat eased ½@¾ of a cent. Cotton broke $2@2.40 a bale. Bar silver eased ¼ of a cent at 36⅛ cents an ounce.

The British pound sterling, off more than 10 cents at one time, recovered 6 cents of this loss at $4.53¼. French francs also rallied and were down only .01⅛ of a cent at 5.62 cents. Dutch guilders got back more than a cent and was but .15 of a cent lower at 57.95 cents. Belgian belgas, Swiss francs, German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen held their declines to around 1-10@⅜ of a cent.

News of the Day.

Traders who have been watching the price of newly-mined gold, which is fixed daily by the Treasury, for a clew to the Government's fiscal program, were highly interested in the announcement of today's value of $29 an ounce compared with $29.83 last Saturday. Today's rate is the lowest set by the Treasury since daily quotations were started. The previous low was $29.10 an ounce on Sept. 11, and the high was $32.28 on Sept. 20.

Financial quarters, studying the fluctuations in the gold price, both here and in London, find little relation of daily quotations for the metal to administrative monetary policies. Bankers point out that the Treasury's price is based largely on the world value which is fixed in London and which follows the movements of exchanges in the gold standard countries. The decline of the French franc and allied currencies, it is said, means that fewer dollars and pounds will buy an ounce of gold in those countries and, consequently, the dollar-sterling gold rates drop in proportion.

Over Week-End Developments.

European developments were accompanied by a very sharp rally in dollar exchange, which carried our unit to the highest levels in more than a month. French francs opened 17 points lower at 5.47 cents, while sterling's initial quotation was $4.46¾, off 10½ cents, since Saturday.

Paris advices to Wall street said there had been heavy short covering by professional speculators in the dollar. It was pointed out by exchange dealers that the recovery might be attributed in part to the return of capital which had been taken abroad as a precaution against currency inflation here, as a result of nervousness over the present situation in Europe.

BOND MARKET TONE MIXED AT THE CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The bond market closed lower in the corporate sections today. U. S. Governments were firm. Liberty 3½s and some Treasury issues ended points of 4-32 to 11-32 points.

Some other issues, like Allegheny Corporation 5s and American & Foreign Power 5s and 6s, moved under heavy selling. The latter gained 4 points on a large turnover, but finished 2 points below the best.

Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s closed a shade off at the bottom.

Most other prime issues yielded fractions. The trend was downward generally. The first hour was dominated by the foreign list with final quotations showing little recovery from the losses. Domestic issues were under less pressure on Saturday, but most of them were lower.

CLOSING CURB PRICES WEAK, WITH MANY NET LOSSES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Closing curb prices were weak today, with many net losses ranging from 1 to around 5 points as a result of a late selling wave which affected all groups.

Pan-American Airways, Distillers-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Standard Oil of Indiana, Singer Manufacturing, Electric Bond and Share and American Gas lost 2 to 5 points.

Newmont, Gulf Oil and New Jersey Zinc were down nearly half a dozen points.

$1100 in Time Certificates Also Taken; She Thought Money Would Be Safer in Home.

Theft of $1100 in cash, two bank deposit time certificates for $1100 more, and jewelry valued at $200 has been reported to police by Mrs. Anna Schmitt, 5336A Greer avenue, who said her home was entered while she was away at work Saturday.

Mrs. Schmitt, who is employed as a hotel maid, said she had hidden the money and other articles in a purse in a wardrobe. A relative residing on the floor below her flat discovered a door open at noon Saturday and notified her.

The money, Mrs. Schmitt said, was withdrawn from a bank last January when she decided it would be safer in her home.

SAYS 100 HIGH SCHOOLS LACK FUNDS FOR YEAR

Superintendent Lee Asserts He Believes Legislators Will Be Given Problem.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—A hundred or more high schools in the southern part of Missouri probably will be unable to meet their payrolls throughout the year unless additional money is forthcoming, according to Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Schools.

He based this opinion, he said, on talks and communications received from various school superintendents and principals in that section of the State.

While not giving a list of the schools in financial distress, he made public a letter received from William H. Justice, Superintendent of Schools at Newburg, in Phelps County.

"Last year our faculty worked for nine months and received only two and one-half months' pay," Justice wrote. "After teaching six and one-half months last year without pay, we are in a financial situation which makes it almost impossible for us to teach this year unless we receive our pay each month.

"At this time we can only expect four months' pay for this year. What attitude would the State Department take toward us if we should close school in March? Would State funds be released next August for work done this year, if we should close school early, with the local school board's sanction, because of insufficient funds? Would there be any danger of our teaching certificates being revoked?"

Lee said he was urging that every effort be made to keep all schools open, at least until after the special session of the Legislature is over. He added he believed the Governor would present "this distressing situation" to the lawmakers.

WILL DIRECTS MAN'S HORSES BE PAINLESSLY DESTROYED

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 16.—The will of Thomas Price of South Orange, who was shot to death from ambush in Waynesville, N. C., three weeks ago, directed that all horses owned by him at the time of his death, be painlessly killed. The testament of the former president of the New Jersey S. P. C. A., was filed today in the Surrogate's office.

"Any horses owned by me at the time of my death," the will said, "shall as soon as convenient thereafter and before they are removed from the premises, be painlessly put to death under the supervision of a competent veterinarian." The will directed that the veterinarian report his destruction of the horses to the executor of the estate, the Fidelity Union Trust Co.

Price was alleged to have been killed by a poacher now under arrest, whom he had warned to keep off his Waynesville estate.

ROBBER-SLAYER PUT TO DEATH IN CHICAGO, SECOND IN WEEK

Ross King Electrocuted for Shooting Policeman; Boy, 8, Visits Father in Cell.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Ross King, 29 years old, was electrocuted in the Cook County Jail early today for the murder of Policeman Harry Redlich.

As in the case of Morris Cohen, put to death last week for the slaying of another policeman, vain eleventh-hour attempts were made to save his life. After his wife said good-by to him last night, she and his attorney tried to find a Judge who would grant him an insanity hearing.

King was convicted of shooting Redlich in the back last July 8 during an attempted robbery. A companion who engaged the officer in conversation while King fired the shot was sentenced to 199 years in prison. He is John Bongiorno.

There was one member of King's family who did not know his father's life was to be forfeited. That was his 8-year-old son. When the lad visited the jail a few days ago, jailers told him his father was a trusted employe.

Among the 75 witnesses at the execution were two stepsons of Policeman Redlich, Raymond and Alvin Larson, and a nephew, Edwin Stadelman.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN JAIL DEATH

R. W. Harrison Hanged Self in Cell With Necktie.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today in the case of Ralph W. Harrison, former Nashville (Tenn.) real estate dealer, found hanged with a necktie in a cell at Police Headquarters Saturday night. Harrison, 44 years old, had been arrested in Hotel Statler Saturday evening and booked as "suspected of flourishing a deadly weapon."

William F. Korf, a registered nurse, who asked the arrest, testified at the inquest that Harrison, who had been drinking, tried to push him from a twelfth-story window in the hotel at the point of a revolver. Harrison had told police he was in St. Louis to establish himself in the electrical business. His body was identified at the Morgue by Mrs. Belle Holby of Nashville, who was in St. Louis visiting friends.

Child, 7, Struck by Street Car.

Neva Williams, 7 years old, 3849 West Pine boulevard, was hit by a street car when she ran into the street in front of 3808 Olive street, yesterday morning. She suffered a skull injury.

QUITS PRESS BODY BECAUSE ACCUSED MAN IS SECRETARY

Clinton P. Bliss of Hillsboro, Ill., Resigns After Re-election of H. L. Williamson.

By the Associated Press.

HILLSBORO, Ill., Oct. 16.—Clinton P. Bliss, publisher of the Montgomery News here, resigned today as first vice-president of the Illinois Press Association, because, he said, the association re-elected as its secretary H. L. Williamson, accused by Gov. Horner of diverting State funds while serving as State Superintendent of Printing.

Bliss also resigned as a member of the association. He was elected to his post at the meeting of the association at Champaign Saturday.

In a telegram to C. R. Denson of Minonk, president of the organization, Bliss set forth his reasons for resigning because the association "saw fit to re-elect H. L. Williamson to the office of secretary regardless of the fact they knew he stands charged with the crime of diverting to his own use funds of the State of Illinois while serving as State Superintendent of Printing."

Bliss said he felt he could not serve with Williamson "until he has proven himself innocent of the charges preferred against him by the Governor of Illinois."

$20,000 DEWEY MAUSOLEUM AT ARLINGTON IS SOLD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — The $20,000 mausoleum in Arlington National Cemetery in which the body of Admiral George Dewey, hero of the battle of Manila Bay, had laid until removal to the crypt of Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral in 1924, has been sold.

It is being removed by the Columbia Garden Cemetery of Huntington, W. Va., and is to be used as a public receiving vault at a branch at Clarendon, Va. The mausoleum has been empty since the removal of Admiral Dewey's body, and has been a source of worry to the War Department because of its proximity to the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Fearing that she would not be buried next to the Admiral in Washington Cathedral because of restrictions on burials there, Mrs. Dewey specifically directed in her will that her husband's body be returned to the mausoleum upon her death. However, the Cathedral chapter adopted a resolution to permit her burial beside her husband.

SON, 17, CONFESSES KILLING PASTOR AND STEPMOTHER

West Virginia Youth Says Their "Constant Quarreling" Caused His Act.

By the Associated Press.

RIPLEY, W. Va., Oct. 16.—Ralph Eddy, 17 years old, is in the county jail charged with killing his father and stepmother and police say he confessed, saying the couple's "constant quarreling" caused his act.

Missing since Sept. 11, when the Rev. James Frank Eddy, pastor of a small church at Trace Fork, and his wife, Mrs. Bertie Eddy, were found slain in their home, young Eddy was arrested yesterday. Police Chief John Britton of Charleston, who accompanied the youth to Ripley, said Ralph signed a confession in which he wrote that his nerves broke because his parents argued so much.

The youth told police he had been riding about the country on freight trains since the day of the shooting.

GERMAN LABOR LEADER DENIES UNIONIZATION IS FORBIDDEN

Wilhelm Reichardt Issues Statement After Boycott Action of American Federation.

BERLIN, Oct. 16. — Wilhelm Reichardt, secretary of the Nazi "workers-front," said yesterday of the American Federation of Labor boycott:

"It is untrue that it has been made impossible for workers in Germany to organize themselves—that is only a lie of those emigrants who by their betrayal of the workers have plunged German working classes into the deepest misery."

Reichardt said no other country gives more attention to the unionizing of labor than Germany, and added: "All the unions have been incorporated since May 2 into the Nazi organization and that this is done by their consent is proved by the fact that many hundreds of thousands joined although no compulsion existed."

He said that continual wage-cutting in the past two years under the old German administration was halted immediately by the Nazi government.

BURGLARS CARRYING AWAY OFFICE EQUIPMENT CAUGHT

Two Men Have Adding Machine, Typewriter, Check Protector and Seal of Eagle Iron Works.

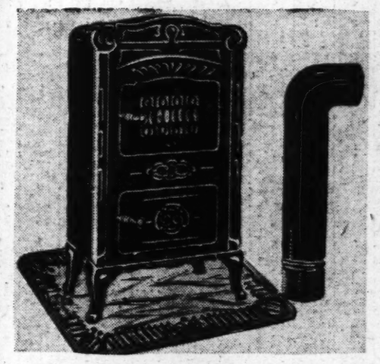

Two men, one a Negro, were arrested last night in Luxemburg when Constable Doran found them carrying a typewriter, adding machine, check protector and the seal of the Eagle Iron Works, 8100 Pohlavenue.

One of those arrested, police said, admitted they had stolen the equipment in a burglary at the Eagle plant earlier in the night.

DISPUTES between Russia and Japan concerning the Chinese Railway have reached one of the usual stages, both sides saying that they have "every desire to avoid war," always a dangerous protestation. Russia and Japan are said to have plans fully prepared for war if it comes, and there is talk of concentration of troops by Japan.

If that war does come, it will provide another interesting, rather costly, test of Soviet efficiency.

Western Europe has war worries of its own. Hitler, to prove that he means what he says, causes Germany to withdraw, not only from the disarmament conference, but from the League of Nations. This leaves him free to do as he pleases in any direction, without League control, and carry out his plan to scrap the Versailles treaty, rather than accept for Germany a permanent second place.

All this ought not affect us, but, unfortunately, it does affect us, because our statesmen seem unable to get their little feet off the European fly paper, come home and attend to matters in the United States.

Germany's action, according to a special dispatch to the New York Times, "apparently came as a surprise to the State Department." Everything comes as a surprise to the State Department. In that same dispatch, the Times assumes from Mr. Hull's remarks that this country is "now solidly with our former allies."

HOW solidly? Not again solidly to the tune of ten billion dollars, let us hope. We should give Europe time to finish repudiating the original debts before starting new ones.

There is one grain of comfort in the fact that war usually does not happen when everybody expects it.

Plucky little Belgium, "not meaning to be taken by surprise this time," is completing the forts along the frontier to cost $150,000,000. That gives work to men that need it, but the taking by surprise will come in another way, when airplanes fly over the forts, paying no attention to them.

Dispatches from Paris say: "The French are calm." They may be, having enough airplanes, explosive and gas bombs ready to destroy every important city east of the Rhine, and most of the human beings in those cities.

It is inconceivable that Hitler should invite actual war unless he has prepared to meet it in the air. Germany's admirable commercial air fleet could do nothing against thousands of special fighting planes in the French air fleet.

Chancellor Hitler's radio speech, giving Germany's reasons for leaving the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference, was broadcast four times, in four languages, German, English, Spanish and Portuguese, covering all the world that listens to radio.

The speech, ably prepared, perfectly adapted to influence the German nation, included serious words intended to propitiate France:

"Similarly, we take cognizance, with hopeful emotion, of the assurance that the French Government, under its present chief, does not intend to wound feelings of or humiliate the German people."

And after further friendly reference to France:

"The German people are convinced that martial honor in thousands of battles and skirmishes has remained clean and without blemish, exactly as we also see in the French soldier our old glory—bedecked opponent."

There was, however, no broadcasting of Hitler's talk in the French language. Perhaps Hitler remembered Bismarck's saying, after his rough talk to France, following the war of 1870, in which he spoke German, although he knew French well: "When I discuss with men with whom I expect to come ultimately to an understanding, I speak their language; but when I see that it is useless to discuss with them, I speak my own."

Hitler used four languages, but not French.

The French might reply, also quoting Bismarck, "the decision will come only from God, from the God of battles, when he lets fall from his hand the iron dice of destiny." Those dice were the cannon balls.

It will be a sad day for Europe if those dice start falling again.

Chancellor Hitler has simplified politics as Mussolini has done. The aged Von Hindenburg dissolving the Reichstag, proclaims a new

by Elsie Robinson

The High Cost of Excusing

YOU get so mad! Looking back over your life you get so mad and discouraged. Just one darned mess after another. One flop after another. What's the use? You never have the breaks—

ELSIE ROBINSON

But maybe there's a reason why you never have the breaks. Maybe there's a reason why your life is just one mess after another. Stop a minute. Wipe your tears, pull up your jaw—and use the good old bean.

There was that mistake you made this morning. Not much of a mistake; you've almost forgotten it. Don't forget it. Sit down and think about it. That mistake was important. It holds the secret of all your misfortunes. You don't believe that? Listen—

You made that mistake. Just a silly little mistake. But what did you do about it? You did what you have always done whenever you made a mistake, big or little—YOU LOOKED AROUND FOR AN EXCUSE. Quick as a flash, without a moment's hesitation you looked around for an excuse.

And that, of course, was natural. It was the old animal instinct of self-preservation asserting itself. Mistakes mean trouble. Trouble means danger, discomfort, humiliation, possibly punishment. An animal's first impulse is to hide from danger. You, too, are an animal. Your first impulse, also, is to duck.

So you ducked. As soon as you made that mistake, you grabbed the nearest excuse and ducked. That was easy. One can always find a thousand handy alibis. Blame someone else. Say you were sick. Say you didn't know.

You made an excuse. Probably it was a good excuse. It satisfied others. It prevented trouble—hushed the nagging. And you felt fine! You stopped feeling shaky inside, prickly outside. Your courage was returned; your wounded vanity was soothed. Everything was jake again. Or was it?

No, it wasn't. For you really haven't wiped out that mistake at all—and you know you haven't. You'll go on making mistakes just like that, again and again. Life will continue to be "one darned mess after another" until—

UNTIL YOU STOP DUCKING—STOP MAKING EXCUSES, AND FORCE YOURSELF TO FACE THE REAL REASON FOR ALL THESE MESSES.

But what is the real reason?

The real reason is YOURSELF.

The real reason is SOMETHING IN YOUR OWN NATURE.

Many other things may come into the picture. Other people may come in. Sickness may come in. Disorder may come in.

BUT BEHIND THE OTHER PEOPLE, BEHIND THE SICKNESS AND DISORDER, LIES SOME WEAKNESS IN YOUR OWN NATURE THAT IS TRICKING AND TRAPPING YOU AGAIN AND AGAIN.

Some weakness—laziness, cowardice, conceit, greediness, silliness, which is it? I don't know. Nobody can know except yourself. And you'll never know until you stop running away and turn and face yourself.

Even then you must be ruthlessly honest, ruthlessly brave, if you wish to help yourself. You mustn't allow yourself to make even one smallest excuse for yourself, to lay even a particle of the blame on the other fellow. Making excuses, passing the blame, these things will give you temporary comfort. But—if you do it, you're lost. Life will go on being "one flop after another." You will go on whining, whimpering, crawling.

Long ago a wise man sat talking to his friends. Plain on their faces he read the record of their discouragement and discontent. Once more they asked him for the secret of success. Smiling a little sadly, for he knew they would never follow it, He said:

"KNOW THE TRUTH, AND THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE."

Know the truth about yourself. Then the weakness in yourself, which is responsible for all your misery, will no longer spoil your life.

You can be free. You can be strong. You can be happy. You need only to face yourself.

BUT HAVE YOU WHAT IT TAKES?

Harlequin Casserole.

Now that cooler days are here we turn gratefully to the casserole with its ever different surprises. One pound pork cut into cubes, four chopped onions, two cups boiled noodles, one-half cup grated cheese, four tablespoons chopped parsley, one cup tomato sauce, three tablespoons chopped pimentoes. One teaspoon salt, one-half cup chopped green peppers. Fry pork in bacon fat until light brown. Mix vegetables with the noodles, cheese and salt. Add meat and pour into a buttered casserole. Pour tomato sauce over it, sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake for one hour in a moderate oven.

He was operated on and recovered, but for 71 years following his recovery, until his death in 1864, he never slept a wink This did not prevent him from becoming a brilliant French lawyer, notary and statesman. It is believed that the operators removed a portion of the brain and that this was responsible for his sleeplessness.

HEALTH

Preventing Arthritis

EXCEPT for the arthritis known to be caused by germs, such as gonorrhea or epidemic meningitis, we do not as yet know enough about its various causes to say much about its prevention. However, much can be done by the individual to minimize his chances of developing arthritis or minimize the seriousness of the disease if one has it.

There are two principal factors in arthritis, one of which might be called the seed and the other the soil. By the seed we have in mind the causative agents, whatever these might be, and by soil we mean the condition and the state of resistance of the body.

Preventive treatment in arthritis is directed at the soil. It has been established that those conditions which undermine the general health favor the development and the aggravation of arthritis. Among such conditions we must include insanitary surroundings, overfatigue, malnutrition, other chronic diseases, metabolic and glandular disturbances.

Poorly ventilated workrooms, dampness, excesses of temperatures, long hours of work, excess fatigue and inadequate rest periods contribute to the arthritis problem.

Of course, at the present time the shop, factory and workplace environment is considered a social and economic matter, rather than a medical one, but medicine, like Mrs. Grundy, sticks its nose, if not its tongue, into every sphere. The only difference is that medicine is justified in doing so.

As to the seed of arthritis, accumulated studies point to infection as being the outstanding causes of arthritis. It accounts for 70 per cent or more of the cases.

Infection, particularly when focal and chronic, may act in devious ways. Thus, it may attack the joint directly or it may contribute to the arthritis by lowering systemic resistance, by disturbing metabolism and even by upsetting the endocrine balance in the glands of internal secretion.

Two of the glands of internal secretion, the thyroid and sexual gland, are known to have a definite influence upon arthritis.

However, since arthritis is associated with disturbances in metabolism, any and all of the glands of internal secretion may influence its course.

In hypothyroidism, that is, the condition in which the thyroid gland functions below normal, it is not uncommon to find a loosening of the ligaments around certain of the larger joints, particularly of the knee, heel, ankle and vertebrae, that is, the segments of the spinal column in the region of the chest.

This causes knock-knee, painful heel, flat-foot and at times curvature of the spine. These conditions, which are frequently painful, are due to the defective metabolism associated with hypothyroidism.

In such conditions, excellent results can be secured at times by the administration of thyroid extract.

The opposite condition, namely, hyperthyroidism, in which the thyroid is overactive, is also at times associated with arthritis. This is specially likely to be the case among women during the early years of childbearing.

Various disturbances of the ovaries and at times, too, of the uterus have been found associated wrth arthritis.

Thus, fibroid tumors of the uterus are found at times in cases of arthritis involving one joint. The explanation is that the fibroid tumor exposes the uterus to invasion by germs and in consequence a focus of infection is set up.

At times the ovaries in some manner as yet unexplained influence the conditions of the joints so that arthritis is seen to develop in young women.

In the arthritis associated with disturbances in the ovaries and in the uterus, diathermy, a form of internal heat treatment, often has given good results.

election that would fill the hearts of American bosses with envy. There is only one German party, the Hitler party. Only his candidates will be voted for, other parties having been suppressed, or gone into voluntary retirement.

Von Hindenburg frankly proclaims that the election is intended merely to enable Germans to give expression to their fealty to the Reich."

Dr. Monroe, professor of entomology, who knows everything about insects, reports interesting discoveries concerning sex control in the insect world, especially among flour-beetles. Partial starvation in the larvae or grub stage has a great influence on sex. The learned professor thinks the birth of boy babies in greater numbers than girl babies in recent years may be due to mothers dieting to keep thin, also partly to the fact that hard times have made food scarce.

Let young women remember, however, that the mothers of Abraham Lincoln, Charlemagne, George Washington and Edison did not starve themselves.

John D. Rockefeller Jr's. recommendations for liquor control after prohibition goes, prepared for him by experts include reasonably low taxes on liquor, saying truly, that a big income for the Government is not the only thing to consider. More important is the fact taxes, too high, will mean keeping the bootleg industry alive, and continuing the financing of organized crime. The Rockefeller report urges taxes sufficiently reasonable to cause "the illicit manufacturer and the bootlegger to lose their market."

The pursuit of desperate criminals is no safe occupation. Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant of the United States Attorney-General, whose work sent "Machine Gun" Kelly and his partners to jail for life, is called frequently on the telephone. One caller said: "I'm a pal of Kelly's. 'You'll get yours." Later, the same evening, a different voice said: "If we don't meet you in Atlantic City, we'll attend to you in Washington." Other threats come through the mail.

Those who telephone and write might be warned by the fate of Kelly. Assistant Attorney-General Keenan is himself rather dangerous, with the additional advantage of being intelligent. In reply to all threats, he remarks: "We shall have our own way in taking care of this matter," and says nothing else.

Lemon Tarts

Cream one-fourth cup butter with three-fourths cup sugar and add the grated rind of one-half lemon. Mix one cup of sugar with four tablespoons flour and add three beaten egg yolks. Combine the two mixtures, beat and stir in slowly one and three-fourths cups milk and one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice. Turn into gem pans lined with uncooked pastry and bake until firm. A lovely little dessert that does away with serving at the table.

Careful Bidding and Play by Lenz

SIDNEY S. LENZ needs no introduction; his name is known wherever fine card playing is cultivated. Sidney has for many years been one of the outstanding figures in bridge, as tournament winner, writer, lecturer and exponent of the art of card playing in its most advanced form. In the recent American Whist League Congress he obtained a well merited top on this hand.

Mr. Lenz, in the South seat, was the dealer, and passed. North bid a no trump. Opponents always passed; South, two hearts; North, two no trumps; South, three hearts, which North wisely passed. With very meager protection in spades and diamonds, he deferred to his partner's warning that the safety of the hand must be sought in a heart contract.

Under my system the same contract should be reached in a different manner. North's hand does not measure up to our no-trump standard. One club would be the bid; one heart by South; one no trump by North, not quite strong enough for a two no-trump force, and wishing to hear South's rebid—if he can make one—before committing the hand to a game contract. Two hearts by South, having no fit in clubs and no solidity in the heart suit for no-trump purposes. Three hearts by North, who on the rebid holds normal heart support, and wishes to give South a further chance by intimating that his first rebid of one no trump was somewhat of an underbid. Pass by South, realizing that the singleton club is a duplication and that the bidding has not eliminated many losers from their 26 cards.

Actually most players got to four hearts and went down two. It is really a hard-luck hand that you cannot, after the club finesse wins, escape with the loss of only two diamond tricks and one heart trick. In a rubber game one could not be blamed for getting to four hearts, but under match-point scoring one should be able to stop at three by the bidding inferences suggested above.

The Play.

West opened the eight of clubs, dummy's queen won. Some careless players immediately took their discard of a spade on the club ace, and then played the two high spades and ruffed the third one, shortening themselves in trumps and losing control of the trump situation and thus of the hand as a whole.

Mr. Lenz made no such blunder. He saw that need to ascertain the trump situation before laying himself open to an immediate force if West should win the trump lead and return clubs. So at trick two, declarer led a small trump and finessed. West won the jack with his king, and led out the king of clubs, to drive out the ace and set the stage for forcing declarer.

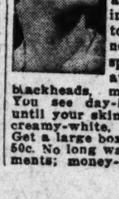

Mr. Lenz discarded a spade and led the queen of hearts. East did not follow, and declarer, realizing the danger of West's trumps, led a small spade to his own king and led a small diamond. The king fell to the ace; East led a club, South trumped, led a spade to dummy's ace, came back with a diamond, finessing the nine. West took it with his queen, and led a club. Declarer trumped; won the next two tricks with the trump ace and the jack of diamonds and conceded the last trick.

Three-odd were made by this beautiful, careful, logical sequence of plays: two spade tricks, the queen and ace of trumps on trump leads; two trumps by ruffing clubs; two club tricks; one diamond trick. In no trumps the hand would be helpless, as the enemy would keep leading the black suits.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

PORTRAIT OF A MAN TALKING TO HIMSELF.

IT MUST be among the supreme satisfactions to such men as Paul Whiteman and Rudy Vallee, who came from the provinces long ago, to brave the Broadway firing squads, and find themselves again perched high and gracefully in this feverish midst of ours...Only those who nibbled at the favors of the fickle Street can appreciate their struggles and achievements...For Broadway bores easily and is restless with those who cannot survive its indifference...And I cannot join the controversy makers, who are arguing which of the two talented personalities will out do the other...It doesn't matter to me—for talent is still at a premium, and having them back to interrupt the parade of mediocrity will suffice...If wishes come true and I had two of them—I'd wish I could Bing Crosby a tune and think up such hilariously funny ideas as some of those in the newest Mickey Mouse...And if I had another wish I'd wish that Mickey's imitators would give up wasting all that time...Wonder whatever became of "Lazy Bones?"...And David Hutton?

Can't imagine Ring Lardner being so ill and preparing so amusing a travesty as he did for one of the mags—his last piece...Imagine having a keen sense of fun flat on your back...I didn't know Lyle Talbot was once wedded to a local lady—until she phoned after the broadcast, which told of his accident...The shock of it left her limp—although they were divorced years ago...The line quoted by Bruce Barton is something to paste on your wall, at that—the definition of Courage—holding on another minute...Bruce Macfarlane and two of the "Sailor, Beware!" cast, a hit, were on the verge of hollering uncle when they clicked...The trio were together in dozens of failures, too, until this unexpected success happened along...Of course, I believe the man who told it to me—but it makes me ache a little knowing it...He was in London, it appears, and a phone caller said: "This is Jim"..."Jim, who?" he replied..."Jimmie Walker" said the voice..."Oh hello, Jim come right up"..."Do you really mean it?" asked Walker with great humility, "you mean you'll see me?"...Imagine Walker feeling that low in spirit—once the gayest of us all...Nothing has mattered, he said during that call, and nothing does matter—but his love for Betty and hers for him.

One line of type can arouse so much hope in some homes...Recently here it was noted that a Kansas City girl, who had stranded her kin, had come to Broadway where she was getting the worst of it—and over two dozen letters came from Kansas City mothers wondering if the girl was their daughter—and where could the railroad fare reach her?...The glamour of the Street still manages to entice and hold these kids, but why, I don't know...The Street itself certainly is monotonous even for those who can afford its diversions...The lonely must have it pretty tough.

It was the sort of scene that a scenario writer probably would steal for a flicker...In the sector of Water St. the other day, where a small army of outcasts gather and dine on the leavings of the nearby cafes—an old man walked up to take a stale roll from a refuse can... Some of the younger fellows, just as hungry, snatched it from him—and proceeded to abuse him with violent language...Frightened, the little old fellow tottered away and paused a safe distance to watch them all "dine" on the garbage...A moment or so later a dirty, unkept exile approached him, and offered an aged roll...Moved by this unexpected kindness, the old man was touched to tears...Slowly, he straightened his body and murmured: "Oh, that's all right," and then he went on his way...Most of the others watching this tender scene remained silent—and none of them ate...All of which happened in New York City, in the United States of America—just two blocks from Wall St., where the wealth of the world is congested.

Telling Willy Nilly

"We didn't think we could help them," the little Ducks said, "and we became so interested in our swimming lesson after our sleep that we forgot about them. We thought, too, that when daylight came they would be able to get back, as the Bears would surely appear by that time to help. You see Jelly and Honey Bear left us to continue our nature class by ourselves."

"Excuses!" cried Top Notch. "You're heartless and cruel. The Chickens' parents are beside themselves with worry. They are crying their rooster and hen eyes out, sobbing that their soft, adorable little Chicks are lost forever."

"They were thoughtless, but they didn't mean to be cruel," said Christopher Columbus Crow. "They were too worried about themselves and forgot even to mention the Chickens to me. But I remember where I found the Ducks. The Chickens must be near there. I'll get Willy Nilly and show him the way. You'd better come, too, Rip."

"The little Chickens never came home from the nature class," Christopher cawed as he reached Willy Nilly's. The little gnome-like man had been putting away food for the winter. He had filled a whole pantry full of good things and was rejoicing in the work he was accomplishing, although he had not nearly finished.

When he heard about the Chickens the tears began to stream down from his eyes. "I'm afraid these cold autumn nights will have proved too much for them," he said mournfully.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

by MARTHA CARR

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

y dear Mrs. Carr:
AM writing you, for I have no one to help me and I do believe I need advice. And I'm telling everything so I hope you will derstand my predicament.
am engaged to a young man, se fraternity pin I am wearing, who is 21 years old. My age the same. Four months ago, he graduated from college. He in a small town near the city. present his mother isn't well, his dad cannot get along with-some help. So my fiance feels it is his duty to take his her's place for at least three nths, although there are two rs, one who works and one goes to high school. The lat-could very well miss school and perfectly willing, but the parents not allow it. Because of this, fiance says he will not start look for work for three months. The boy does not owe his par-a thing as far as I can see. worked his way through high ool and college. His parents the car he drives, but he pays expenses and he is allowed to it just one night a week. I mind, but we planned to get ried as soon as he had a steady Now, perhaps, I'll have to wait more year; I've already waited It looks as if he ought to to our happiness.
I am still young and know I uld go out some. I stay at home day and every evening, except one evening I am with him. you think he should trust and release me, until he is to be more definite? But he he could never feel the same I went with another fellow. ase, Martha Carr, what would advise me to do? Be patient?
PUZZLED.

You have good reason to be mewhat dissatisfied; not, per-ps, because the wedding will have be postponed, because you are young enough to wait a little, because you see your fiance o much in the role of "willing se" and, being loaded by his ily with more cares, expects to help carry the burden. If is to do housework at home, I k he is making a mistake. It uld be better to hire someone get into his own field as soon possible.
Certainly he should be willing for to go out more, and should k of planning for you. His ewpoint seems to me a little rped.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
LEASE tell us all about an in-formal wedding for this coming Thanksgiving. The bride is me-m blonde with blue eyes; brides-id medium brown hair with gray e eyes. Also tell us of apparel men. The wedding will be held the Catholic Church. JOY.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
IKE many others, I am coming to you for advice. When I was a year old my father and other were divorced. My mother k me with her to live with her ople. Her father and mother had ven sisters and brothers, all of m reminded me that I was in r home, and I surely was not anted. My mother is a very iet person, always keeping her ubles to herself. She never emed like my mother, when I uld see other children's mothers ss and make over them.
We lived there until I was 12, hen my mother came to another y to keep house for a man; then e married him. Again he didn't e me and made things miserable. other wrote my father to send me thes. This made him mad and e row started; I having to go and e with him, his new wife and his other and father. How poor old anddad and grandmother loved e and cared for me!
I graduated at 15, grandfather assing away soon after, and un-tunately married a boy across e street soon after. Mother d me why I did this. I didn't her that my father told me he ted me and hurt me to the quick ery day. My husband and I re divorced after three years d he wanted me to remarry him, ich, of course, I would not do.
From this time, I worked in a tel. Now I am out of work, and disgusted and miserable. Things aven't been very nice for me from baby on, and what I wouldn't e for a happy home. I am in k with a man who is so good to but doesn't say anything about ing married. Sometimes he is ppy and I do not know whether loves me really or not.
I live again with dad and grand-other. When she and I are alone e are all right, but my father eats us both shamefully. He bor-ows money and cheats people, and hings are sickening.
Oh, Mrs. Carr, please tell me what do. Should I leave here or should wish and wait? I can get a room d enough work to pay for that. IFE IS NOT A BOWL OF CHER-RIES.

The best thing in such a situation, ually, is to change your environ-ent. You have grown hopeless d discouraged, because you can e now beyond your own horizon at life may be like where there kindness and affection and con-deration You probably could not agree your father, and, while you doubt feel that you owe much tenderness and kindness to your grandmother, it might be easier for her were you to live elsewhere and come to see her often, in your father's absence. He probably knows that, with you there, he has two instead of one to combat. And this in turn reacts upon your grandmother. Stay within calling distance, but do not stay in the house. She will enjoy your visits and in case of need will still have you near.

You would, of course, be sure you know this second man thoroughly before you trust your happiness to him.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
RECENTLY I have noticed tiny red veins appearing on the inner side of my leg at the bend of the knee. Will you kindly tell me what causes this and if there is anything I can do to make them disappear? Also, I shave my legs and this seems to make the pores larger. Is there anything I can do about this?
MILDRED J.

Probably neither trouble is serious. The first may be due to sluggish circulation or a little strain. The shaving probably only makes the pores look larger.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I AM a senior in high school, but have never gotten along with other young folks. They are polite, but indifferent. I try to be as friendly as possible. I am not shy. But I cannot get into any crowds and I have never had a real chum. The boys are indifferent and ignore me completely. At dances I have just been a wall-flower. I am tall and slender, but not really hard to look at.
My hobby is Girl-Scouting. I get along much better with girls older than I.
UNHAPPY.

Appearance means something, of course, but lack of self-consciousness, a willingness to adapt yourself to the tastes and opinions of others, looking cheerful and happy (try it whether you are or not) and sacrificing your own pleasures for the interests of others—all these are far more important.
When you are thrown with boys and girls are you always watching to see if they will like you, looking for slights, too free or too standoffish? Try to cultivate a friendly, agreeable manner, without being forward. Sometimes, girls and boys stand back and wait and again they dash in too quickly and seem cheeky—then they are thrown back upon themselves. Don't worry, always, about what people are thinking of you. They are probably too busy wondering what you think of them to be critical. Scrupulous neatness, hair, teeth, hands and clothes—this is the start one must always make, it goes without saying.

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

Background of Marriage

HAPPY as well as unhappy marriages are in many cases made in childhood. This statement has nothing to do with infant betrothals nor child-marriages, but with the ordinary marriages of the present-day western world.
The happiness of a marriage often depends, not on the particular couple involved, but on their attitude toward each other. This attitude is largely formed in childhood, and will always color the relationship of the sexes.
The boy who has seen his mother and sisters treated with respect and consideration, and who has been taught to look upon woman's work and position in life as of equal importance with man's, is far more fitted to make a happy marriage based on mutual respect and understanding than is the boy who has been taught to belittle homemaking and child-bearing and rearing as less honorable jobs than earning a living.
The girl who has been trained, whether consciously or unconsciously, to look upon men as predatory animals, to be feared for their physical strength, and despised as creatures of low tastes and coarse appetites; or as animated meal-tickets to be fed and kept satisfied as necessary but incidental adjuncts to a home, has little chance of making a happy and companionable union.
It is the earliest impressions that leave the strongest imprint, and no amount of persuasion or teaching in the teens can efface entirely the marks made in early years.
It requires both parents working in unison to give a harmonious background in which the children can develop and which will become their pattern of married life.

CLOTHES to EXPRESS YOUR PERSONALITY

Another Article by a St. Louis Girl Who Knows Styles

By Eleanor Evans Pendleton

PERSONALITY plus—clothes play a much greater part in creating this enviable excess of that indefiniable possession than they are usually accredited. Besides functioning as attractive draperies for one's figure, clothes become effective backdrops for personality when properly selected. The trite saying "fine feathers make fine birds" is not far from the truth.

This season ushers in a mode in gowns differing from the style of the last decade. Shoulders in the newer models suggest a corner in place of the rounded effect of yesterday. In the illustration, pictured at the right, we have a sheer woolen in the new rust tone. Its many buttons lend it a decidedly military air.

While the wings of thistledown woolen may not be the slightest assistance in aiding you to fly, they are guaranteed to keep your spirits soaring. Which is something these days. The neckline may be worn open or closed in this model. Whichever way you elect to wear it, the alluring quality remains, especially when it is worn with its very enticing paisley scarf and cuffs.

The hat worn with this costume is quite unusual and most attractive with its new rolled brim. Its solitary trimming consists of a small stiff feather suggesting, in its aloofness, the graceful poise of a butterfly.

The costume, at the left, is a smart woolen in the new mouse-skin shade, which is a very popular color this season. Now in scanning this creation, don't overlook its very high neckline. This is one of its most important features. The yoke of kidskin is in the same shade as the woolen. It is quite unusual and imparts a touch and individuality all of its own.

The elongated silhouette of this gown is emphasized by the straight skirt line and the fullness of the low pleat at the front and back.

The hat of tweed felt is very snappy with a brim down in front and up in the back. The small perky feather fastened in a most unusual position on the front of the crown is positively intriguing in its jauntiness.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.

WITH "Footlight Parade," the screen in its quest for story backgrounds that will permit the logical introduction of musical numbers turns to the only branch of the commercial stage that has not been exploited previously.
There have been stories about the lives of dramatic artists behind the scenes. Struggles of small-time vaudevillians to make the big time ("Our names in lights, honey—wait and see!") have filled many a film. But "Footlight Parade" pictures the anguish of a chap who turns out week after week stage prologues for motion picture houses.

SINCE Lilian Harvey is starring in a film about marionettes there remain now, it might seem, only the little theater movement and college dramatics to be revealed for picture patrons.
Busby Berkeley, dance director, worked according to a lavish standard in "Footlight Parade," which comes from the same studio that presented "Forty-Second Street" and "Gold-Diggers of 1933." The new production affords a rapid-fire intermingling of drama, comedy, action and spectacle.
James Cagney, who used to be a hoofer, takes it up again here and in the climactic scene gives samples of the voice he has been training these many months. He plays the prologue producer. Joan Blondell is his square-shooting secretary, and Claire Dodd is the gold-digging menace.

DICK POWELL and Ruby Keeler are together again, singing and dancing, and Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbart, Gordon Westcott and Paul Porcasi are others who show up well.
Music and dancing, in the form of rehearsals, make a background for the action leading to the climax, when the awarding of a large contract depends on the success of three "sample prologues."
No stage could hold all that is offered in "Honeymoon Hotel," the "Shanghai Lil" number and the "waterfall" presentation.

EDDIE CANTOR in his serious moments—and like many comedians he is more often serious than otherwise—is something of an authority on the acting profession and the people who comprise it.
And he sees in the present personnel of the profession a departure from the old traditional caricature of the actor as a strutting fellow with a fur coat and rundown heels.
Granting that the caricature ever was true (which he doesn't) he still points to the fact that any number of actors have qualified as good business men in their own affairs and that more and more of them are taking steps when in the money to protect the future when they'll be out of it.

EDDIE was holding forth on this—apparently one of his favorite topics—at lunch the other day in his studio bungalow, the one that was Mary Pickford's when she was last active in production. He was wearing the slave's tunic for his role in "Roman Scandals," but his conversation showed the modern slant of one who has been through 1929. And how Eddie Cantor went through 1929!
"I lost $2,000,000 in 20 stock market days—$100,000 a day—and everything I had was in hock," he reminisced painfully.
"Then I made a picture for Sam Goldwyn without getting any money for it. I got paid, you see, but as fast as I made it I had to turn it over to the bank to dig me out of the hole."

BUT he dismissed that promptly. "I was still young and could earn—the fellow I felt sorry for was the old man who saw his life's work fall in the crash and couldn't come back."
Money talks for the actor, he believes, as it does for any man. Money in the bank makes it possible for an actor to turn down a role he doesn't like, and enables him to stick by a just salary demand, whereas if he's broke he has to take what comes along. Eddie thinks that more actors are coming to realize this.
The Cantor idea on investments since 1929?
"It's to look not so much for a return on your money as for a return of your money!

Pumpkin Pie Filling

(For two pies)

Two cups mashed cooked pumpkin.
Two-thirds cup dark brown sugar.
One-half cup sugar.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
One teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon ginger.
Two-thirds teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
Two cups milk.
Two tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix ingredients and pour into two unbaked pie shells. Bake 15 minutes in moderately hot oven. Lower fire and bake 40 minutes in slow oven.

SEEN IN THE STORES

By SYLVIA

CARVED ivory buttons adorn the front of a black wool crepe dress that any girls in her teens would adore to wear. This dress is of the two-piece type which spells success for any youthful school dress this season. The sailor collar of the fabric adds sections of white galyak. A wide black patent leather belt ornaments itself with crocheted edges.

Another practical dress to please the high school girl combined plaid with plain color. The skirt is of navy blue wool and the overblouse of a patriotic combination of red, white and blue. The high neckline is made festive by a throat-swathing navy blue velvet bow.

The elephant no longer appears in disfavor, judging by the many new costume accessories that exploit this lumbersome creature. Composition clips, for example, are designed with elephant heads as their decoration. Blue and black are the color schemes with bright red beads for eyes. I need not mention that such novelty clips are intended for sports clothes, exclusively.

Circus elephants are the decorations appearing on some new feminine cigarette lighters. These lighters are patterned after the masculine versions recently made popular because of their use of the old principle of flint for lighting purposes. In shape and size the lighters resemble tiny handbag perfume bottles. Several color combinations are available but most handsome is the union of black and white.

If you can't find sufficient articles to knit or crochet these autumn days, you might get out a few scraps of yarn and knit yourself a colorful yoke for a frock. Several unusual dresses that have appeared in the stores of late show a disposition to feature these knitted yokes. Red wool, for example, appears against the background of a one-piece brown corded dress. Tailored ties add a flippant note.

A woman who wants definite assurance that her new winter coat won't look like that of a fellow member of her bridge club should consider mole trimming. An eel gray coat in one of the stores demonstrates the most spectacular method of using mole. The fur starts at the bottom of the coat in front and wends its way upward, providing a wide border which expands as it reaches the neck and ends as a collar.

Ostrich feathers are camouflaged to look as much like fur as possible and plastered at intervals on some clever leather belts. The arrangement is that of tailored bows, made possible by the deft pasting of the feathers into flat little groups. As a means of being even more original, the designer emphasizes color contrast.

An evening hat must have a veil if it is to please the young sophisticate. It doesn't matter whether the veil is only a strip of maline. In fact, some tricky little evening hats are made entirely of maline in the rich, dark shades of autumn. This same transparent fabric is used for the foundation of a sequin hat with a flared eye veil.

One way of introducing the dropped shoulder line to a tailored wool frock is to provide a bertha-like yoke that extends over the top of the arms. Cartride pleats are used effectively to outline such a yoke on a black sheer frock while another row of the pleats serves as a choker type of collar.

If you're looking for something startling in the way of a dressy handbag, consider checkerboard velvet. The flat envelope is the style that St. Louis stores advocate in such striking combinations as black or red with white.

Italian Salad

Mix together one cup of chopped green peppers, diced celery, chopped olives and chopped pickles. Blend with French dressing. Serve on crisp lettuce, garnished with strips of pimento and whole olives.

TURIN.

ITALIAN silks and wool in luscious colorings to match this country's famous vintages are being used in the new fall costumes created by designers here endeavoring to forward a national style dictatorship for Italy. Deep rich blues and purples in all the varied grape tones are predominating colors, odd greens in olive tones and the color of the leaves of the grape vine also favored.
A glamorous red like pimento, a copper brown, a russet, a yellow plum and a pear shade are bright adjuncts to the autumn color chart. Fabrics are rough and hairy in appearance, but soft as down to the touch.
Adherence to the natural lines of the body with suits, dresses and coats simply but carefully molded to accentuate the sweep and the curves of the feminine figure, doing away with broad shoulders and exaggerated sleeve effects, high and tight waistlines.
Longer skirts for street and afternoon wear, 12 inches from the floor for semi-formal evening wear, instep length in front and touching the floor, often extending into a short train, for formal evening.
Evening gowns of stiff satins, rich brocades and velvets feature extremely high necklines in front and no backs. New dinner gowns often feature long sleeves and backless effects. The sheath effect is as good here as elsewhere with the gown hugging the figure to the hips and gracefully working out its fullness below.
Many afternoon dresses fashioned from wool will resemble coats having large lapels and straight, slender lines. These lapels are edged with fox or other furs, and wool muffs trimmed with the same fur are carried with the costume.
Ensembles of tweed and mixed woolen fabrics, consisting of a tailored frock with matching three-quarter coat are extremely smart, but the strictly tailored two-piece suit is equally popular. With the latter is worn a shiny satin blouse in bright colors, or a hand knitted pullover.
Small hats, bashed down over the right eye feature stiffened bows, winged effects, shirring, feathers and crystal ornaments. Velvet antelope, and felt are favorite mediums. Satin and cire are often used for evening. Few brims are seen and the tendency is toward a heightening effect in the crown.

Tomato Dressing

A delicious sauce in which slices of leftover roast may be heated. One quart tomatoes, two cloves, three allspice, one spring of parsley, one-half small bay leaf. Put on the fire two ounces of butter, melt and add one tablespoon flour blended with a little butter. Add tomatoes and spices and boil until thick and smooth. Strain into a frying pan, add slices of meat and cook just long enough to heat through, then serve.

GOOD TASTE

By EMILY POST

Yesterday's Generation Asks—

Dear Mrs. Post:
MY 18-year-old daughter is very fond of tennis and cannot understand why I hold it is not seemly for her to ride off with three boys to play tennis. I tell her she should suggest asking another girl to go with them. She considers me hopelessly "old-fashioned," and I have endeavored with little success to show her what you have voiced in the past: that conventions, though regarded by the present generation as irksome, have most excellent reasons for their existence and observance of them would prevent regrets. Will you please express an opinion of my view?

EMILY POST

Answer: Although, according to the present point of view, there is not the slightest impropriety in going off now and then with three boys to play tennis, I agree that it would be a serious mistake should she make going about alone with boys a habit. This is because a girl who is always with boys and never goes about with other girls, puts herself in a very insecure position. Perhaps you might explain to her that after all, the word declassee means a woman whom the wives, mothers and sisters of her men friends refuse to know.

Dear Mrs. Post:
What should I teach my son, who is 9 years old, to reply to an introduction? I want him to say "Ma'am," but I am told this is incorrect.
Answer: To a man, "How do you do, sir"; to a woman, "How do you do, Mrs. Jones." "Ma'am" has always been a colloquialism—except when replying to royalty. But why "sir" is used when speaking to a gentleman, and why "ma'am" is said to ladies in only a few localities is just one of those things that seem to have little reason further than that usage has made it so.

Dear Mrs. Post:
Will you help me plan a very small wedding in church, because it has been a long time since we've had a wedding in our family? 1. Is it necessary for the bride and groom to have any attendants? 2. Is it permissible for the bride's mother to act as her matron of honor? 3. And may the bride's 15-year-old brother give her away?
Answer: 1. The groom must have a best man. All other attendants are optional. 2. Absolutely no, so far as walking down the aisle is concerned. But she could stand next to her and hold her bouquet. 3. Yes.

DANGEROUS WATERS

— By —

WALLACE IRWIN

CHAPTER SEVEN.

SHE was fastidious with her toilet, trying this, trying that. She had only two party dresses to choose from, and she took her time deciding on the faint blue one. He had never seen her in this frock. She was fussy. She had run a comb through her short curls until they glowed like her skin, which showed its silk. Then in her own reflection, as she viewed it from a corner of her eye, she saw it again——

Her father's face, so full of reckless spirit, as a little girl had seen it for the last time. He had come in, strangely rigged in brownish soldier clothes; people in France wore clothes like that, the colored people had told her. Breck Barret had picked the little girl up, kissed her rapidly, rolled her between his hands. "You're goin' to take care of my horses when I'm away, ain't you, Shelby?" he had asked before he set her down. She had wondered why this had made Grandmother cry.

Gene Fairchild picnicked like a sultan. A commissary train had followed the two cars along the winding roads to the purple rocks and twisted trees that made Los Pinos a wonder. Had his slaves worn saffron turbans and shielded him with cloth of gold, roughing it could not have been more majestic than it proved at lunch time when a corps of assistants set up a striped pavilion, portable tables, astonishing machinery for the warming of food. Turkish carpets were laid down, that the ladies might not slip on slippery pine needles. A long line of men carried a banquet, scientifically packed in leather boxes and tin containers.

Yet there were only six in the party. Nicko had chosen to drive her own runabout, just room for herself and Johnnie, whom she summoned quickly before Gene Fairchild had found time to place his guests. Shelby remembered his look as he got in with Mrs. Nicholas; just a lift of the eyebrows. The arrangement suited Mr. Fairchild well enough, for he sat between Shelby and his niece in the back seat of his touring car. Mr. Vega was the fourth, and he was perfectly satisfied with a collapsible seat.

Nicko's car sprang like a greyhound, and she was well under way before the others were started. After the first mile she was completely out of sight, lost somewhere in the bending roads.

"I only hope they don't get the wrong road," said Gene Fairchild; then wickedly, "I guess you can always trust Mrs. N. to find her way about."

GENE was in fine feather this morning, his outing costume another, softer shade of green than his riding-clothes. There was a pheasant's feather in his hat. He possessed a sort of handsomeness, almost Italian. His mood, too, was brilliant. He told funny stories, not all of them new, but with something of a theatrical charm. He was there, obviously, to entertain two young ladies and an architect. Vega's face was puckered with amusement as he studied Gene and Olga. "A pair of cards," he seemed to be saying.

Mr. Vega's first name was Alfred, which Gene shortened to Al.

"Al," he said, slapping the architectural knee, "I'm saving a couple of tales for you."

Al looked ever so knowing, and the car rolled on. Olga was making an attempt at conversation, and Shelby listened with interest, curious to know what this silent girl would say.

"I just love to get out in the country. The real country, I mean," she said.

"It's jolly," said Al.

"I don't mean country like around the Rancho, with a Chinaman hiding behind every bush. Don't those Chinamen give you the willies? Sort of creepy."

"They're usually homicidal," puckered Al.

"What's that?"

"He's stringing you, honey," broke in Gene, stroking one of her thick, white hands.

"Oh, Al, are you stringing me?" She had descended to baby-talk. Olga was really rather awful, decided Shelby. And cryingly pathetic, too. Both of them were pathetic, Olga and Gene, but in such different ways.

But for Gene Fairchild she held an admiration. His generosity was too lavish perhaps, but there was a largeness in it. Piratical—that was the word she always thought of to describe the man. Even his social climbing—and that was all too plain—showed the wide gestures of the buccaneer. She found herself contrasting him with Johnnie, as you put the clear sapphire beside the multi-colored black opal. Gene Fairchild laughed, joked, gave the world his generous hand. Yet what was he really thinking? Where did he intend to go? Who was he?

All the way along the route he was entertaining, pointing out natural beauties, which he seemed to see with an almost aesthetic pleasure. He continued to be entertaining. He talked about people he had met in China. He described a landslide he had escaped in the Balkans and a great mineral deposit he had overlooked in Mesopotamia.

"Where in the world do you come from?" asked Shelby before she thought how impertinent it sounded.

SYNOPSIS

Shelby Barrett, of the proud but poor Kentucky Barretts, defies tradition and turns professional horsewoman. In California, she rides for Mrs. Nicholas, wealthy temperamental widow. Mrs. Nicholas, nicknamed Nicko, is interested in her guest, the socially prominent though impoverished Johnnie Wyatt. The fascinating Johnnie, however, is attracted to Shelby, although Nicko tries her best to keep them apart. One day Shelby returns home to report on the purchase of "Briary Bush," a new horse, and finds Nicko and Johnnie having tea. Johnnie is delighted with Shelby's arrival, but Nicko resents the intrusion and sends Shelby on an errand. The latter resents Nicko's attitude but realizes that after all she is only an employe and that Nicko has more right to Johnnie than she. Her confidence is renewed, however, when she hears Johnnie arguing against a luncheon with Nicko, preferring instead a picnic which Eugene Fairchild, a wealthy social climber, has arranged and to which Shelby also has been invited.

"All the eels in the world come from the Sargasso Sea" he replied, and the cheek nearest her showed a deep, round dimple.

Nicko and Johnnie were not in sight when they came upon the grove of Los Pinos. Nor was there any sign of the long blue runabout. Gene clambered through the woods, over the rocks, shouting "Hi-oooo!" at the top of his lungs. Al Vega displayed a new talent. By placing the tip of his tongue against the roof of his mouth, he would whistle like a silver flute. But his melodies brought only echoes, and the thunderous sound of a sea, pounding below the cliffs.

"Want to walk around and see the place, or shall we open up a thermos and try a cocktail?" asked Gene rather humbly. Possibly he was feeling the absence of two guests.

"Let's walk around," Shelby said. So they found a path leading down to the rocks, where they sat and looked over the sea. She didn't want to talk. What had Nicko done with her captive? Turned back to San Hernando, left the party, as she had been determined to do last night?

"That's lovely," said Gene.

"Yes, isn't it?" She was gazing at the sea, foaming at the edges like a million white horses, yet calm and royal beyond. When she turned, she saw that his eyes were on her. He shifted them uneasily, sat watching the water.

"I always see you next to something handsome like that," he said. "Big horses, big sea. And yet you're not so very enormous yourself." He laughed, and she joined in.

"I reckon I couldn't do much with a sea like that," she said, pointing down to the thundering surf.

"Channel swimmers," said Gene unexpectedly, "go in for a foolish kind of life. They roll themselves in lard, till you can't tell their noses from their toes, then they jump in and break their hearts to get across to France. Not that they care a damn about France. But they want to say they've done it. It gives 'em a kick. I suppose some swimmers would jump into that surf, just to make a record and tell the world."

"You're ambitious, aren't you?" Shelby studied his small-chinned Roman face.

"I've pulled myself up a long way." There was savage pride in that boast. "And I've learned as I came up. And I've taught myself to take it here"—strangely enough he touched his knobby chin—"and get up before they ring the bell on me."

"Women don't have to fight. Not if they've got anything in the bean."

A SILENCE. He offered her an over-size cigarette with a monogram and gold tip. It looked powerful, but she smoked it only to be doing something.

Then Gene Fairchild told her a little—only a little—of how he had pulled himself up. People called him a plunger in the old days, when he got started. Well, he was. Money was no fun, unless you watched it do things for you. Shelby, unschooled in stock-market slang, couldn't get much from what he said, except that he made his first money in an operation known as "selling short." What was selling short? She didn't ask him.

Indeed, her mind was wandering like the flight of birds she saw, low-swinging over the rising blue. Johnnie. She mustn't see any more of him. Or not much more. Nicko had seen to that, probably, and it was just as well. Shelby had told him to make a fuss over Nicko, and now he was dragged in. She remembered the comic face he had made when Nicko took him in her car. Yes. But Johnnie shouldn't have stayed over. That was no good for him or anybody. . . .

Nicko's high, palavering voice was heard on the path above; and there she stood, her arm through Johnnie's as she rehearsed the beauties of the sea.

"Hello!" shouted Gene, coming to his feet; "we've been looking all over for you."

"You're very cozy down there, it seems to me," jeered Nicko.

Gene had already begun scrambling up the rocks, but Shelby stood her ground, earnestly pretending to watch the surf until a tumbling and crackling among the manzanita revealed Johnnie coming down to her with a landslide of small stones. There was a studied recklessness in his performance, like ski-jumping. Firmly he planted his feet on the rock beside her, kissing his hand to an imaginary audience.

"Daredevil Johnnie's hairbreadth escape!" said Shelby, but her eyes had traveled up the rocks where Gene and Nicko stood facing one another with empty smiles. "How much time must I waste with you?" their mutual affability seemed to say.

"Come along, quick!" Johnnie had taken Shelby's hand and was pulling her farther down the path. Behind a boulder he grumbled, "She took the wrong road on purpose."

Bringing Grand Opera to St. Louis

Attico Bernabini Here to Select Chorus for Opening of Auditorium.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

ATTICO BERNABINI, who has been associated with practically all the great opera singers of the past 30 years, has come to St. Louis to take in hand the direction of the chorus of 80, all local talent, who will support Guy Golterman's presentation of well known stars in a season of grand opera to open the new Municipal Auditorium in January.

He is a fiery, temperamental Italian, and watching him conduct a rehearsal, in the light of his experience with accomplished stars, one wondered at his patience with this group of novices. Small of stature slight, wiry, he is keyed to high tension, yet he was always good-natured. So expressive is his playing, he makes the piano talk, yet not always succeeding with that medium in getting his ideas across, he would interrupt himself with a telling anecdote.

"Let me have that first note again. You remind me of the child taking his medicine. The nurse said, 'Swallow the first mouthful and the second dose will not be so bitter.' And the child said, 'Then let me take the second dose first.'"

Or, despairing of the piano to express himself, he would use his hands. "March your notes," suiting his fingers, one after the other to that action, thump, thump, thump, across the piano. "Do not lag like this"—dragging them across. "Open wide your throat," spreading his hand wide to illustrate. "Do not keep it closed like this"—clenching his fist.

"I was not always patient," he admitted afterward. "My first experience as maestro was in the great Theater Costanzi in Rome. I had come fresh from a little provincial town, where, as in all towns in Italy, we had our opera. I was not yet 21 years of age when I became assistant to such great figures in music as Mascagni, Puccini, Toscanini, Leoncavallo, Richard Strauss and others. Naturally, being that young, I got what you call the beeg head. Going back to my small theater for years I was no good at all. But I have learned. One must be patient with novices, even when they are stupid. If they knew it all, I would not be employed to teach them."

He was patient at being interviewed, too. In limited English he would repeat over and over, trying varying accents, until he made himself understood.

ASKED if, in America, comparatively lacking in musical culture, he did not become homesick for his native Italy, steeped as it is in musical tradition, he replied:

"I have been in America for 16 years. I now have my citizenship papers. If I did not like it here I would go back to Italy." So that was that. "America is like the spring," he said, with a rapturous expression. "Young, gay, fresh. Italy is like winter," changing to a stern expression—"old, experienced, wise. You have to be old to be wise. It is just a question, do you prefer youth to wisdom?" he laughed, throwing up his hands in a Latin gesture of surrender. There could be no question that anyone would prefer being young to being wise.

"I am interested now in planting the seed of opera in America," he continued. "As it is now, there is only one opera company left in this country, the Metropolitan. I was there for two years. The Chicago Opera, to which I gave 14 years, just now is a failure for want of support. The Metropolitan is not American. The operas are those of foreign composers, the singers foreign born or foreign trained. There is little or no chance for native-born, native-trained singers. Naturally people do not want to pay $5 to $7 a seat for debuts. You have not big artists in America because you have not the places where they may be proved and get experience. To have American opera you must have many, many small theaters. In Europe all opera singers start in a little way, in their home towns, all of which have opera companies. If you start in a small field as we now are starting in St. Louis, little by little you grow up. It is a desert, musically, America. But see what you do with your deserts. Do you know Salt Lake City? Nothing grew there. It all had to be planted, a tree here, a tree there. Now it is like a city in forest. It takes long, but we can begin to sow the seed.

"When you have more theaters you will have more singers, more composers, and after a while, some time will come a personality so big, you will have opera which will interpret the American spirit. Just how, I do not know. Each country's opera is influenced by the old traditions which originated in Italy, where opera was born, but each has its individual character. German opera is heavy, robust, virile. French opera is light and sweet. That of the Latin countries remains passionate. And so American opera will reflect the character of the people."

"In jazz tempo, perhaps," it was suggested. He hoped not. Jazz he characterized impatiently as only dissonance and noise. And the new futurism in music he lamented as pervading all music to the exclusion of national feeling.

"It may be long, long before the outstanding American composer appears. Many will be chosen and many discarded. How few operas have survived among all that have been written in Europe. Rossini wrote 170 operas, yet he is known for but one. Verdi wrote 36; he is remembered for but two or three. Wagner wrote how many? Only a few are still going. Faust'— he enumerated a dozen or more composers who had attempted music suitable to this incomparable libretto. "Yet we known only Gounod's. It will be long, but eventually we will get opera in this country which is truly American in character."

"I should think the first difficulty would be getting people to like grand opera at all," his interviewer suggested. "Plainly, since people do not support it, they prefer something else."

"That is because," he answered confidently, "they do not know opera. They are not familiar with it. You cannot expect people to like something they do not know. It is as if you asked them if they liked something to eat which they never had tasted."

BERNABINI dates everybody in opera from Caruso. Before Caruso there was none so great. Since Caruso there is none so great.

"He was the embodiment of the great voice and the great soul. His character was consistent with his singing. Many singers are good, but small in comparison to Caruso." Anecdotes occurred to him.

"In Buenos Aires, San Marco who was to sing Pagliacci was ill. He could sing the lighter parts of the role but not the heavy prologue. Caruso stepped into the breach. 'I will sing the prologue, then you go on with the rest of your part,' he suggested. So he did. The audience, not expecting to hear Caruso, of course went wild. And so the evening was saved not only for the audience but for San Marco.

"And how he used to keep us in good humor. One day I came to rehearsal and everything went wrong. Everybody was mad and I was maddest of all. Caruso found a bare space on the wall and he did a caricature of me. My hands were all this way and that. My hair was standing on end. It was so funny I had to laugh. Then we all laughed and then we could go on with the rehearsal. Needless to say, the boss, the owner of the theater has placed a glass over that drawing and it is preserved there in the Theater Colon in Buenos Aires today."

Toy Pattern for Children

CUDDLE PILLOW AND TOYS PATTERN 514

EVERY child loves soft toy animals. What tiny tot would not be delighted with this cuddly dog pillow that makes a nap something to look forward to instead of to evade? The dog can be made of any soft, white, or light-colored, plain material, with a spert ear in a figured material. The pillow measures 15x15 inches. The bunny, with ears that are made to stand nice and stiff, would certainly meet with loud approval, as it it about 8 inches tall without the ears, and so is a good size for tiny hands to hold. The little elephant appears amused at being covered with a gay print instead of a thick, leathery, hide, and he is just as soft as he looks, and measures 8 inches in length when finished. Pattern 514 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the pillow and the two small animals, and complete directions and yardages for making them.

Send 10c for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.

ALL of a sudden like there's a scramble for the services of Ben Lyon. Maybe Ben doesn't know it, but Radio tried its best to borrow him to play opposite Katherine Hepburn in "Trigger." Failing to get Ben, Robert Young has been put into the lead originally announced as belonging to George Brent. Brent is needed in "Mandalay," at Warner Brothers.

All was sweetness and light when Sylvia Sidney stepped off the train. Small is afraid that such a picture would create too much resentment.

The Mirror.

The ancients told us that the world is a mirror—all an illusion. The other day I was sitting in a barber's chair, idly looking ahead of me, sort of daydreaming. I saw a mirror and wondered for a moment why my face wasn't visible. Then I noticed the back of my head in it and roused to the realization that I was looking into the mirror that was hanging on the wall behind me. This seemed strange, because I couldn't see a mirror in front of me in which could be the reflection of the mirror that was behind me. Then I started in to find out the truth. Looking about, I soon discovered that I was gazing into so large a mirror that its frame had been outside my circle of vision. Thus I was apparently standing behind myself, but the big mirror explained it all. More on this.

Your Year Ahead.

From now until Jan. 3 those who celebrate this natal day will do well to pay strict attention to legal and partnership affairs, including marriage, for changes or restlessness upsets are indicated; the coming 12 months require adaptability and willingness to change your point of view, and possibly your location. Danger: April 6 to 14 and Aug. 13 to 20, 1934.

Tomorrow.

Just a Rub or Two.

When you are cleaning the door knob and bell, just take the rag with the polish on it and rub up the kitchen spigots. They are often forgotten and yet, when clean and shining, they give such a well-kept appearance to the kitchen.

The Bean Pot.

Drop a teaspoon of soda in the bean pot after using and fill with boiling water. Let stand in the oven of the range or in a warm place for about two hours. This will clean it perfectly, making the sides and bottom of the pot smooth and clean once more.

Bromo-Seltzer's Quick Action Gives Speedy Relief

DON'T be old-fashioned. Don't suffer with headache, and think there is nothing that will do you any good. Take Bromo-Seltzer and be free from headache torture. Feel its swift results. Then you'll know why Bromo-Seltzer has been the headache relief of millions for more than forty years.

Bromo-Seltzer's quick relief comes from its pure, tested ingredients, which are skillfully combined into a balanced medical compound under the direction of registered pharmacists. It is pleasant to take. And its action is prompt, because Bromo-Seltzer is already dissolved in water when you take it, and the system can absorb it at once.

A great many headaches are caused by over-indulgence in food or drink. One of Bromo-Seltzer's functions is to help correct this condition that causes headache and sour stomach. It also helps restore the blood to normal alkalinity. If taken while effervescing, Bromo-Seltzer gives almost immediate relief from gas on the stomach.

But you will want to try Bromo-Seltzer's helpful action for yourself. Get a dose from that familiar blue bottle at any drug store. But avoid substitutes or imitations. Be sure to ask for and get the one and only Bromo-Seltzer.

Travel Headache

FREE: Send a post card to Emerson Drug Company, Dept. 12 F, Baltimore, Md., for a free sample of Bromo-Seltzer.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

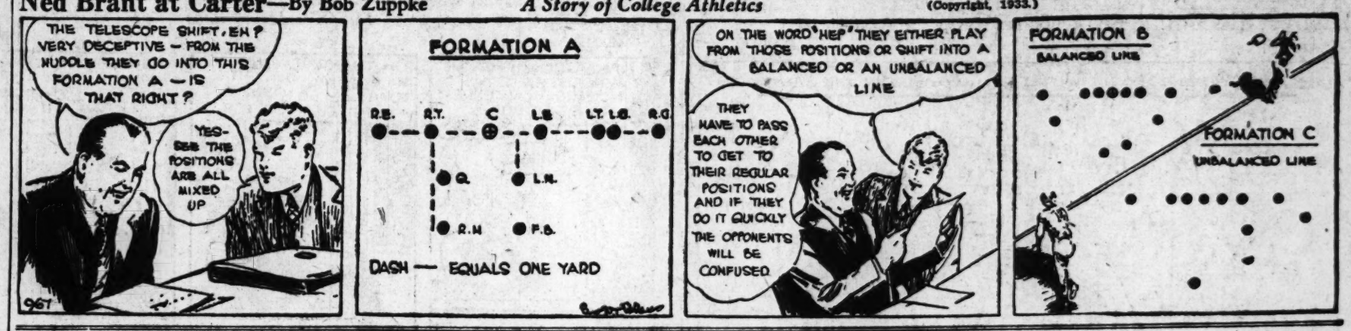

1. —Yes, but it produces three very bad results. First, to make the wealthy children snobbish; second, to make some less privileged children spend more money than they should in order to keep up; third, it develops in many children a sense of being inferior or handicapped. It is very unwise all around.

2. —As a rule, no. Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles, has just sent me the results of his confidential investigations of 572 men and 486 women who, following divorce, have been married at least five years. Three hundred and sixty-four men and two hundred and eighty-seven women report themselves as "happy"; sixty-one men and sixty-eight women "doubtful," one hundred and forty-seven men and one hundred and thirty-one women as "unhappy." For both sexes this is sixty-two per cent "happy" which, as I showed recently, is considerably less than the average number reporting themselves "happy" among first marriages.

3. —Probably not. If the defect was caused by some pressure or accidental failure of development before birth it would not be inherited. But if it was caused by a real chemical element in the germ cell it would be inherited by some of the children. It may have been a "recessive" defect carried in a hidden manner by the ancestors of both parents for several generations, but the chances are strongly against this.

Egg Omelet

Two egg yolks.
Two tablespoons cold water.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
One-fourth teaspoon celery salt.
Two egg whites, beaten.
Two tablespoons butter.

Beat yolks, add water and seasonings. Fold in egg whites and pour into pan in which the butter has been melted. Cook slowly without stirring until the omelet has become very light and a little brown on the under side. (It will require about five minutes). Carefully turn half over, holding omelet in place with fork and spatula. Let cook two minutes. Carefully turn onto warm platter. Serve at once.

Hominy and Bacon

When a cup or so of hominy is left over, use it in this fashion. Place the hominy in a shallow buttered baking dish, first seasoning it with salt, pepper and adding one tablespoon melted butter. Over this pour a thick layer of seasoned cooked tomatoes, then a sprinkling of buttered crumbs and over all thin slices of bacon. Cook slowly until the bacon is brown and crisp. A little cheese may be added instead of the crumbs, making the dish even more savory.

NEW SINGERS for OLD!
10 Million Owners of Singer Sewing Machines

HAVE you a Singer Machine made before the introduction of the modern Singer Electric? Then here is a "once-in-a-lifetime" opportunity to exchange it for any new model you want! For a limited time only, we will take it back and allow you 40% of your original cost.

This is such important news that Bonded Representatives are now calling on Singer owners as rapidly as possible with details of this offer. But you need not wait for this call. 'Phone, mail, or bring in the factory number and age of your machine and you can find out at once whether it qualifies. Use coupon.

This button identifies Bonded Singer Representatives. It carries color border and month during which it is valid. October button has brown border.

MEN—Attention! Men qualified to become Bonded Singer Representatives are needed to carry this message to Singer owners in a few sections of the city not covered at present.

DISBARMENT SUIT AGAINST J. G. WILLIAMS

St. Louis Bar Accuses Former Assistant U. S. Attorney of Keeping $1900 of Clients' Money.

CALLS HIS CONDUCT "MENACE TO PUBLIC"

He Denies Charges—Judge Hamilton Orders Him to Show Cause Why He Should Not Be Suspended

Suit to disbar Joseph G. Williams, former Assistant United States Attorney, on charges of unlawfully retaining more than $1900 due various clients, was filed in Circuit Court today by the Bar Association of St. Louis.

Asserting that Williams' conduct constitutes "a menace to the public," the complaint asks also that he be compelled to show cause why he should not be suspended from practice pending hearing of the case.

Circuit Judge Hamilton ordered Williams to appear Oct. 26 and show cause why he should not be suspended from practice pending final hearing of the case on Nov. 9.

Williams, in a statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter, made a general denial of the Bar Association's charges.

In asking for his suspension "in the interest of public welfare," the complaint alleges that Williams makes a practice of converting to his own use money accepted from clients for costs and expenses in connection with proceedings to save property from foreclosure."

Numerous distressed real estate owners have engaged him to protect their property under new Federal legislation, the petition recites.

Seven Instances Alleged.

Seven instances in which Williams is alleged to have withheld money from clients are detailed in the complaint. Four of them concern his representation of clients hoping to avert foreclosure of mortgaged property under the new "debtors' law" of the Federal Bankruptcy Act or seeking a Federal loan to protect property. The others relate to varying kinds of litigation in which he is charged with wrongful retention of clients' funds as long ago as 1924.

The first complaint is that he retained $70 given him by May Peters last March for costs of legal action to protect her property. She advanced to him $100 on account of his fee, $90 for costs of a bankruptcy action and $10 to make application for a Federal loan, according to the complaint. He made no application for a loan, it is alleged, and the bankruptcy suit was dismissed last month for failure to secure $40 costs in Bankruptcy Court. Williams paid $30 costs in Federal Court.

A similar complaint is that Louis F. Schultz, seeking to avert foreclosure of mortgaged property, advanced $100 to Williams last April of which $65 was to cover costs of legal action and $35 was for a fee. The petition recites that Williams failed to file suit and the property was foreclosed last month.

Other Similar Complaints.

Engaged to prevent foreclosure of property owned by Evelyn Rosenow, Williams filed a bankruptcy suit which was dismissed for failure to deposit $40 costs, the petition says. He receiver $102 for costs and $28 for a fee, paying $30 costs and retaining the rest, it is alleged.

In August Margaret Engel engaged Williams to prevent sale of her home at 4163 North Prairie avenue under an execution, the complaint recites, paying him $50 to obtain a Federal loan. He made no application for a loan and the property was sold a short time later, it is alleged.

The fifth complaint goes back to 1924. It charges wrongful retention of at least $760 of $1385 advanced by Mrs. Isiah Fleener on behalf of her husband, an invalid, now dead, to defend a landlord's suit for $110 rent.

Williams, it is alleged, appealed from a Justice of the Peace judgment for $110 getting $500 from Mrs. Fleener for an appeal bond, and again appealed to the Court of Appeals, getting $400 for a bond. He received also $55 for tender of rent, $180 for a fee and $250 "for the case," the petiton says. He did not use the $900 for bonds, it is alleged, and did not pay more than $20 for costs. He returned $425 only after the matter was presented to the Circuit Attorney, the complaint states.

Moorhead Estate Complaint.
